Qatar team learning from 'impeccable' Russia World Cup

Eight years after winning the right to host the 2022 World Cup, Qatar is preparing for the tournament with the goal of improving upon the performance of their team at the 1994 World Cup. The 1994 World Cup saw Qatar lose all three of their matches, conceding 14 goals and scoring none, which resulted in a last place finish in Group C. This time around, Qatar's performance has been much better, with a series of impressive results.

Qatar has already won three of its five matches in the 2022 World Cup qualifying tournament, with victories against Oman, India, and Lebanon. In addition to their impressive results, Qatar has also shown a strong defensive performance, conceding only three goals in five matches.

Qatar's preparation efforts have not been limited to the field. The Qatar Football Association (QFA) has implemented a range of measures to ensure that the team is fully prepared for the World Cup. These efforts include regular training sessions, game analysis, and psychological preparation.

The QFA has also invested heavily in the development of Qatar's football infrastructure, including the construction of the Al Bayt Stadium in Al Khor, which will host Qatar's opening match against Ecuador.

Qatar's coach, South African Herve Renard, has praised the team's hard work and dedication, saying, "We have a very strong and motivated team. They are working very hard, and I am proud of them." Renard has also emphasized the importance of maintaining a positive mental attitude, saying, "The World Cup is a big stage, and we need to keep our focus and belief in our abilities."

HE Minster of Culture and Sports Salah bin Ghanem bin Nasser al-Ali with other dignitaries at the inauguration ceremony of Qatar Today TV Channel yesterday.

Speaking on the sidelines of the inauguration ceremony of Qatar Today TV Channel broadcast via the Qatari Satellite “Es’hailSat” which was held at the headquarters of the Ministry of Culture and Sports yesterday, the minister said that the Qatari media was able to withstand all accusations of the siege countries because it was standing on strong, credible, just and true bases that enabled it to face all accusations of the siege countries' media outlets.

The licence agreement was signed by the head of the Ministry of Culture and Sports Issa al-Kuwari.

Meanwhile, Director of Broadcasting Licensing Department Twar al-Kuwari and Qatar Today Channel's CEO Justin bin Jassim bin Towar al-Kuwari.

MoI launches survey to assess public satisfaction

QNA

The Ministry of Interior launched yesterday a comprehensive field survey to measure the public's satisfaction with the services provided by the ministry to the citizens located in different areas of the country.

The Ministry said the two-week survey, held by the Planning and Quality Department, will cover all the service centers affiliated with the United Services Department.

The questionnaire will cover three main aspects: the information the recipients receive, the services procedures and work environment. The Ministry noted that this comes as part of the fields survey series held by the Planning and Quality Department with regard to the procedures for receiving users, speed of transaction completion and responding to inquiries.

The Ministry said the surveys are important as they are one of the most important tools that help evaluate the efficiency of services provided to the public to avoid any complaints, thus improving them. It urged users to co-operate with survey teams in the centers as their views are taken into account for the development and improvement of services.

Kuwait-Qatar relations exhibition concludes

The Kuwait-Qatar relations exhibition at Katara, the Cultural Village concluded yesterday, receiving more visitors and positive feedback from visitors. The five-day exhibition, organized in co-operation with the Kuwaiti Expo 965 team for heritage exhibitions, attracted diplomats, dignitaries, and public figures, among others, to attend the event. The exhibition praised Katara for its efforts in making the show a success and giving the Expo 965 team an opportunity to showcase their collections in Qatar. The exhibition also exhibited heritage artifacts and ancient works in Qatar’s internal and external exchange with the Kuwaiti heritage collections and museums.

The exhibition was widely attended, with the store becoming a platform for sharing friendship and brotherhood messages for the Qatari people by highlighting the cooperation and interdependence between the two nations, which document rooted and strong relations. The exhibition showcased some artefacts, rare documents, and manuscripts dating back to the beginning of the 19th century and contained an abundance of information and facts about Kuwait and the Gulf states, some data back to more than 200 years.

The exhibition also included a collection of some rare Kuwaiti official documents such as passports issued during the reign of Sheikh Abdullah bin Salem Al-Khalifa in 1917. The exhibition showcased the strength of Qatari-Kuwaiti relations and brotherhood and rooted and strong relations. The exhibition also enabled relations exhibitions at the Kuwaiti Expo 965 team for Qatar in partnership with the local distributor Interflex Group. This exhibition highlighted Kuwait’s “growing, innovative, creative, and successful heritage collectors and heritage enthusiasts and ar-"
Qatar Airways enhances on-board dining menu

Qatar Airways has revealed a series of enhancements to its Economy Class on-board menus, “designed to elevate customers’ experience when they travel with the award-winning airline.”

The new enhancements, which will become available in a phased introduction across the airline’s network with effect from July 1, include an increase of 25% in content for all Economy Class hot meals served on board, Qatar-based caterer said in a statement.

Newer menus and larger cassette dishes have also been created and coupled with serveware depicting brightly coloured artwork.

Other additions include revamped Economy Class inflight drinks and meals, which will be offered on medium and longer-haul routes, the statement notes.

“Qatar Airways Group chief executive Akbar al-Baker said, ‘We have carefully crafted our enhancements for fine dining in the sky. Crafted with detail and quality, our new concepts will offer our esteemed customers an even higher level of service and luxury. Our passengers an even higher level of service and luxury.

Qatar Airways’ national carrier launched a new on-board dining experience for its premium Economy passengers (with effect from May 1) – showcasing regional and local influences and featuring regional infl uences and locally sourced produce based on route destinations and in-route nationalities across Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Asia Pacific, North America and South America.

The airline plans a host of new launches for medium and longer-haul routes, including Tallinn, Estonia; Valencia, Spain; and Da Nang, Vietnam.

Four dead in Saudi shootout

Tens of thousands of people have returned to their homes after the southern province of Daraa, which was once the bastion of the opposition, was hit by a ceasefire deal yesterday in a “monumental” attack, a monitor group said yesterday.

The deal was largely popular especially among farmers and workers in the southern part of the Daraa province of Syria bordering Jordan and the occupied Golan Heights, seven years after protests sparked Syria’s civil war.

By June 30, a deadly regime bombardment campaign on the province had recently caused more than 160 civilians to flee their homes, according to the United Nations, noting that it did not have access to the border region.

On Friday, rebels and the regime announced a ceasefire deal, providing for the extraction of rebels and their families, and the return of their weapons and opening the roads to 10 towns for the first time since the war began.

More than 20,000 people have since returned to the towns from the Jordanian border, where the rebel-held town of Um al-Mayazin was announced as a delegate agreement.

Three of these civilians were killed yesterday in an attack on a regime checkpoint.

These three civilians were killed in an attack of elements of the opposition forces in the town of Um al-Mayazin.

On Saturday, several rebel fighters put out a statement saying they did not accept the cease-fire deal and would continue to fight.

On Monday, the return of the residents, the Observatory said, even as regime snipers pounded two areas of Daraa city.

Several rebel factions fight for control of south Syria in the wake of regime attacks

Regime forces have launched air strikes in the southern province of Daraa since June 19, now control more than 160 civilians, the Observatory said.

Since Russia intervened on the side of the regime forces in late 2015, the Damascus regime has pushed up a series of victories against rebels and militias in this country.

Regime forces, who secured the capital Damascus earlier this year, now control more than 160 civilians, the Observatory said.

The deal between rebels and regime forces was signed on Thursday and was supposed to arrive but (the opposition forces) have not paid on time.

On Friday, regime forces restored control of rebel-held half of the provincial capital of Daraa as also killed two soldiers, Observatory director Rami Abdel Rahman said, without providing a list.

By yesterday afternoon, regime forces had taken control of the village, and its strategic site on the highway from Um al-Mayazin to Daraa.

The military incursion into the town was launched in opposition forces’ attack on the regime.

Renewed violence and looting breaks out in Haiti

Many Haitians are now demanding the immediate departure of President Jovenel Moise, and on Monday they took to the streets in anger over a presidential decree that set the stage for a referendum on his term in office that would see him remain in power until 2029.

As the protests continued, there were reports of violence and looting, with some residents of the capital Port-au-Prince taking to the streets armed with clubs and rocks.

“Haitians are fed up with the government’s neglect,” said one resident. “The president is not listening to our demands, and we are taking matters into our own hands.”

The government has denied any involvement in the violence and has called for dialogue with the protesters.

Nicaragua pro-govt forces kill 1 in raid

A pro-government forces have killed a man in an raid in Nicaragua, according to local media.

The attack took place in the village of El Establo, in the department of Jinotega, where a group of pro-government fighters reportedly attacked a group of protesters who were blocking a road.

At least one person has been killed and several others reportedly injured in the attack.

The government denied any involvement in the attack and accused the protesters of causing their own deaths.

Nepal rejects UNOPS proposal for office

Nepal has rejected a proposal from United Nations Office for Project Services (UNOPS) for establishing a regional office in the country. The refusal comes amid the UN's bid to convince the government to ratify the Rome Statute and the International Criminal Court (ICC) to expedite post-earthquake reconstruction in Nepal.

Prime Minister Prachanda said that the UNOPS proposal was not acceptable to the government.

"However, due to the information that the UNOPS proposal was not acceptable to the government, we have decided to conduct a regional office in Nepal," he said. UNOPS has already set up an office in Bangladesh to convince the government to ratify the Rome Statute and the ICC to expedite post-earthquake reconstruction in Nepal.

The decision comes amid the UN's bid to convince the government to ratify the Rome Statute and the ICC to expedite post-earthquake reconstruction in Nepal.

UN body condemns Australia for illegal detention of asylum seekers

By Deborah
Guardian Australia

A ustralia has been accused by the United Nations of breaching international law in its treatment of refugees and asylum seekers. The UN body said it had received “credible information” that the Australian government had deliberately subjected asylum seekers and refugees to unacceptable conditions, and that Australia had not taken adequate steps to ensure their protection.

The UN’s flow of asylum seeker boats was halted. The Australian government is considering the case of a stateless man, while some still in their pajamas, were waiting for help. The youngest is 29 years old, and the oldest 79-year-old patient who spent 11 years fighting cancer. The government has recommended that Australia immediately release the men and pay them “compensation and other benefits” for their treatment.

On the day of Liu Xiaobo’s death, his family refused to meet with well-wishers.

The Australian government, however, has defended its policy of detaining asylum seekers on the grounds that it prevents them from entering Australia and seeking asylum. The government has also said that it will continue to detain asylum seekers until it is satisfied that they have left Australia.

On Thursday, Australia released a man who had been held in detention for more than 10 years. The man was among 248 asylum seekers who had been held in detention centres since 2001.

The man was released after a string of legal challenges, including a High Court ruling that the government had failed to adequately consider his claims.

In one case, a former child soldier from the Democratic Republic of the Congo who had been held in detention for more than a decade was released after the High Court ruled that his detention was unlawful.

The government has also released two orphans who had been held in detention for more than a decade, and has recommended that Australia immediately release the men and pay them “compensation and other benefits” for their treatment.

On the day of Liu Xiaobo’s death, his family refused to meet with well-wishers. The government has also said that it will continue to detain asylum seekers until it is satisfied that they have left Australia.

Govt not jumping to conclusions on novichok poisoning: Javid

Water warnings issued as heatwave to continue

Britain’s longest heatwave for years in to last for another week, with water companies appealing to people to save water sparingly.

Yesterday was another very hot and sunny day in much of the UK, with temperatures reaching a high of 33°C in London and 26°C in the north-west. High temperatures were forecast to last until Friday or Saturday, with both night-time and morning readings well above average for this time of year. Long overzealous, a heatwave is recorded if it will generally stay dry and up to 29°C, but in the south it will tend to be a bit lower than that if it will generally be quite sunny.

The spell of hot weather is the longer the UK has experienced in decades. In 1994, there were 19 consecutive days of 30°C or more. Yesterday, there had been 11 consecutive days of temperatures over 25°C. The heatwave on record was 1958, with 10 days in July and 1 day in June, in an average of 31°C up to 35°C.

According to the Met Office, the heatwave will continue through most of the week, with temperatures dropping to 23°C by the weekend.

Police ready to tackle election challenges

F rom serious concerns for its role in altering election narratives to major investigations, Facebook has claimed to have taken steps to ensure security and transparency in the upcoming general elections in Pakistan, including stricter emergency and criminal law enforcement measures to prevent and tackle lobbying, bribery and money laundering.

The measures shared by Aziz Ahmad, Facebook’s head of communication in Pakistan, include:

-加強 security measures at polling stations
- Monitoring the spread of false news
- Improving the integrity of election processes
- Conducting training for election officials

"Ensuring the integrity of elections is critical to the democratic process, and we are committed to supporting the Pakistani government in its efforts to maintain the sanctity of the process," Ahmad said.

Since the previous general elections in 2017, Facebook has invested more than $1 billion to ensure transparency and security in elections worldwide. In Pakistan, the company has worked closely with the Election Commission of Pakistan (ECP) to proactively take measures and prevent misinformation.

Panel says fund worth billions for Asian summit ‘unliquidated’

A budget of P15.4 billion was authorized for the Philippines’ hosting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) in 2017, but a report by the Commission on Audit (CoA) has revealed that the fund remains unliquidated. According to the CoA, the fund was meant for accommodative activities for 2016 and 2017 as part of the Philippines’ hosting of the ASEAN Summit. However, the CoA observed that the fund was not utilized due to the failure of the Philippine Economic Zone Authority (Peza) to liquidate the fund.

A trade war, which has a strong risk of roiling global financial markets, remains a grave threat to Washington and Beijing. The two sides are now making new of negotiations to ease tensions.

The tariffs that the United States and China slapped on each other’s exports on Friday intensified the trade war, chilling world confidence and seriously harming the global economy. Friday marked the start of the US tariffs that were promptly tit-for-tat imposed by Beijing, as Beijing announced the US tariffs of the “largest-scale trade war”.

After President Donald Trump followed through on his threat to apply 25% tariffs on $50bn of Chinese goods, the US trade war risks sinking American farm products and other foods. US tariffs on Chinese goods are due to go into effect in two weeks, Trump said recently.

The US administration has maintained this much further by stating that after the initial $50bn of goods have been targeted with tariffs, Washington could add another $200bn on $34bn of Chinese products, sparking a trade war. “The US administration has accused the United States of triggering the “largest-scale global economy.

End of Chinese goods will shave 0.2 percentage points off trade growth, Washington could add another American farm products and other foods.

The escalating fight between the world’s two biggest economies will be an important event in China- Arab relations, following President Xi’s participations in the sixth CASCF Ministerial in 2016 and visits to Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and the Arab League headquarters in 2018. At the meeting, China and Arab states are expected to issue a joint statement on trade and investment, industrial cooperation, and non-governmental cooperation (BRI) and strengthen economic growth in 2018 of 0.1-0.3 percentage points, and a somewhat lower effect on US growth.

China and Arab states: Natural partners in Belt and Road Initiative

The massive scale of Trump’s suggested new US tariffs on the initial $50bn - would blow any such modest predictions out of the water, analysts warn.

The escalating fight between the world’s two biggest economies meant that it could “take economic and political pain to get to the back of the bargaining table”, Scott Kennedy, head of China studies at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington told Reuters.

While US companies and economists in China agree with Trump’s complaint about Chinese intellectual property practices, they also said they do not see China pushing business into submission.

China’s commitment to the Belt and Road Initiative was forced to retaliate, making US imports including cars, soybeans, and lobsters also face tariffs. Meanwhile, China has lodged a case with the World Trade Organization (WTO) against the United States, aiming to retaliate, meaning imported US goods including cars, soybeans, and lobsters also face tariffs.

China and Arab countries have a long tradition of friendship and mutual cooperation, and its conversation on the BRI has further upgraded China-Arab relations, by adding a new dimension in the region’s economic relations and has thus accelerated the growth of China-Arab co-operation.

As President Xi put it, China and Arab countries, who are natural partners in Belt and Road co-operation, need to seize the new round of China-US and China-European co-operation opportunities, strengthen relations and co-operation, and focus on co-operation in the four areas of infrastructure and trade and investment, green development and the environment, people-to-people engagement, and peace and security.

The two sides have made multiple commitments to develop the co-operation in the four areas.

Over the past four years, we have witnessed a fruitful exchange of views, establishment of new opportunities, and the development of the four areas.

America’s second Sputnik moment?

By Timothy Huizing

T he基本情况 war between the United States and China over trade and technology is reminiscent of the Cold War. The US government has refused to modify its policies that are putting China in a position of economic and technological competition. This is the second Sputnik moment for America, with China poised to become the dominant global power in the coming decades. The US must respond to this challenge by investing in American companies and technology, rather than stopping Chinese firms from investing in China's technology. The US government has approved funding for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), which was created in 1957, to develop new technologies and boost innovation in the private sector.

A ccording to a recent study, people who live near wind turbines are more likely to be dissatisfied with their quality of life than those who live far away. The study, conducted by researchers from the University of Southern Denmark, found that residents within 600 metres (1,969 feet) of wind turbines were more likely to experience sleep problems, high noise levels, and environmental concerns compared to those who lived further away. The results of the study were published in the journal Environmental Health Perspectives.

Rambled Environ US Corporation, an engineering company that helps plan and construct wind farms, agreed with the study's findings. The company stated that exposure to wind turbines impacts human health and well-being. The study found that residents living within 600 metres of wind turbines were more likely to experience sleep problems, high noise levels, and environmental concerns compared to those who lived further away. The results of the study were published in the journal Environmental Health Perspectives.

Art for Culture Pass members to go on display at HIA on July 24

Culture Pass (CP) members in Qatar will have a chance to see Qatar Museums (QM) public art pieces both ‘landside’ and ‘airside’ at Hamad International Airport (HIA) on July 24.

QM and HIA had earlier announced that a new public art piece was installed at the award-winning airport created by internationally acclaimed contemporary French artist Jean-Michel Othoniel. Named Cosmos, the new installation is the latest addition to Qatar’s extensive public art programme, which aims to connect audiences living and visiting the country with inspiring works of art.

The public art programme represents a colossal collaborative effort to transform the trajectory of transport for the world’s fastest-growing airports into an innovative space beyond the walls of a gallery. The QM and HIA have set a goal to install 10 new public art pieces over the next few years, with plans to continue this initiative for future installations.
