Deutsche Bank merger talks with Commerzbank collapse

Germany hopes of creating a national banking champion able to challenge global competitors were dashed Monday when Deutsche Bank and Commerzbank called off talks due to the failure of finding a deal, restructuring costs and capital demands.

Germany’s two largest banks announced that nearly six weeks of high-level negotiations about a merger had ended in failure, following an earlier Reuters report that a deal was in sight.

Both CEOs said a deal would not have created sufficient benefits for the parents and for the markets, which have been waiting for a resolution of the Frankfurt-based duopoly.

The decision to ditch the talks followed a final evening meeting between Deutsche Bank chief Christian Sewing and his Commerzbank counterpart Martin Zielke, two sources熟悉.

Both CEOs said a deal would not have created sufficient benefits for the banks and the markets, which have been waiting for a resolution of the Frankfurt-based duopoly.

The decision to ditch the talks followed a final evening meeting between Deutsche Bank chief Christian Sewing and his Commerzbank counterpart Martin Zielke, two sources familiar.

Both CEOs said a deal would not have created sufficient benefits for the parents and for the markets, which have been waiting for a resolution of the Frankfurt-based duopoly.

The decision to ditch the talks followed a final evening meeting between Deutsche Bank chief Christian Sewing and his Commerzbank counterpart Martin Zielke, two sources familiar.

Both CEOs said a deal would not have created sufficient benefits for the parents and for the markets, which have been waiting for a resolution of the Frankfurt-based duopoly.

The decision to ditch the talks followed a final evening meeting between Deutsche Bank chief Christian Sewing and his Commerzbank counterpart Martin Zielke, two sources familiar.

Both CEOs said a deal would not have created sufficient benefits for the parents and for the markets, which have been waiting for a resolution of the Frankfurt-based duopoly.
I Bloomberg

2030, says IEA

The real estate, industrial and consumer goods contracts witnessed higher-than-average selling pressure as the 20-stock Qatar index fell 0.06% lower at 10,853.2 points. There was also increased selling pressure from domestic institutions in the market, whose average index was 1.98% lower today. Market capitalization was down QR464m or 0.38%, to QR25bn, mainly owing to the uncertainty surrounding the outcome of upcoming elections.

Market悲观情绪 even deeper than the mood index in the market, where Gulf institutions turned net buyers.

Trade turnover decreased amidst higher volumes in the bourse, where the leading sector stance accounted for about 42% of the total volumes. The Totalbank Index was down 0.06%, to 19,226.3 points, while all nine sectors posted an increase with the consumer goods sector (+0.66%) losing momentum against the metals sector (+0.87%).

The realty index declined 1.53%, the consumer goods (-0.38%) and telecom (-0.08%) sectors, while financial services (+0.18%) and insurance (+0.17%) were upbeat.

More than 50% of the traded contracts were in the real estate, with major players including Ancora Real Estate, Al Ansadi Real Estate and Al Ghanim Real Estate.

Local retail investors’ net profit booking declined significantly to QR7m compared with QR33m in the previous day. Non-Gulf institutions’ net selling appears to remain intact as QR3m equities, value by 2% to QR1m and shares by 2% to QR1m.

The consumer goods sector reported a QR1.2mn surge in trade volumes to 34,000 stocks. 2% in value to QR1.6m and QR6.4m in the consumer goods and insurance sectors, while value declined 22% to QR17m in the real estate sector.

The banking and financial services sector’s trade volumes fell 23% to QR17m, while the consumer goods and insurance sectors reported QR17m in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17m.

The Industrial sector reported a QR5m surge in trade volumes to 24,000 stocks, 2% in value to QR10m and QR7.2m in the industrial and banking sectors, while value declined 22% to QR10m in the consumer goods and insurance sectors.

The textiles sector’s trade volumes fell 22% to QR17m, while the banking and industrial sectors reported QR17m in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17m.

The oil and gas sector reported QR17m in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17m.

The industrial sector reported a QR1mn surge in trade volumes to 5,000 stocks, 2% in value to QR1mn and QR7.2m in the industrial sector, while value declined 22% to QR17mn in the consumer goods and insurance sectors.

The textiles sector’s trade volumes fell 22% to QR17mn, while the banking and industrial sectors reported QR17mn in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17mn.

The oil and gas sector reported QR17mn in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17mn.

The industrial sector reported a QR1mn surge in trade volumes to 5,000 stocks, 2% in value to QR1mn and QR7.2m in the industrial sector, while value declined 22% to QR17mn in the consumer goods and insurance sectors.

The textiles sector’s trade volumes fell 22% to QR17mn, while the banking and industrial sectors reported QR17mn in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17mn.

The oil and gas sector reported QR17mn in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17mn.

The industrial sector reported a QR1mn surge in trade volumes to 5,000 stocks, 2% in value to QR1mn and QR7.2m in the industrial sector, while value declined 22% to QR17mn in the consumer goods and insurance sectors.

The textiles sector’s trade volumes fell 22% to QR17mn, while the banking and industrial sectors reported QR17mn in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17mn.

The oil and gas sector reported QR17mn in trade volumes, 21% lower than QR17mn.
King Dollar defies doubts as US provides investors ‘oasis’

This dollar is defying predictions it would lose its currency crown in 2019. A gauge of the greenback is headed toward the highest level this year, with robust major currencies footing lost ground against it.

“The rally, which was supposed to strengthen in 2019, is struggling as the region’s economy talks to certain signs of a recovery, while Australia’s dollar is ebbing on expectations the country’s central bank will continue to ease monetary policy,” said Jonathan Gibbs, a foreign-exchange analyst at UBS Group AG in London. “The dollar is good enough but we don’t think it offers a particularly compelling bullish case on its own.”

A sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.

The yen strengthened to a seven-year high of 104.87 in moves exacerbating those that were seen in a flash crash. The yen’s surge is “ruining the ability to earn money from dollar-yen trades,” Nishida said. The yen risks keeping the sense of anxiety is gripping local traders as Japan’s holidays approach the much-talked-about extended Golden Week holidays. With mentions of January’s flash crash still in investors’ minds, they are watching their portfolios from one point to another, according to the product solution manager at DKB International in Tokyo. “The yen will appreciate during the holiday period,” said Tomohiro Nishida, FX dealer at Tokai Tokyo branch.
Stock markets mostly down amid mixed US earnings results

AP Photo

Stock markets mostly fell on Wednesday as traders digested one of the busiest days of the quarter results season, while oil prices edged back after surging with six-month highs.

Asian markets were mixed, with Japan’s Nikkei 225 sliding 0.3% at 29,549.80, while Paris’s CAC 40 lost 0.3% at 6,851.13. London’s FTSE 100 was up 0.1% at 7,013.93.

The price of Brent crude oil, which soared above $75 a barrel for the first time this year on the back of tighter sanctions on Iran, was gaining in New York before trading on Wall Street.

In the US, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 0.1% to 27,454.35 after falling over 0.1% the day before due to rising crude oil prices and fears of a US-China trade war.

European markets also took a hit, with shares in Deutsche Bank falling 2.5% and two-year bond yields that are even lower than Japan’s, “said Kit Juckes, a strategist at BNP Paribas.

However, European markets closed slightly higher, with shares in Deutsche Bank rising 1.0% after Spain’s two biggest bank stocks posted losses.

British supermodel James Matthews’ membership of the US Powerball draw has been canceled after he lost his previous one.

Asian markets also slipped slightly, with shares in DeBank by 1.0% after Spain’s two biggest bank stocks posted losses.

In foreign exchange news, the euro dropped to $1.1244, its lowest level against the dollar since June 2017, before rebounding slightly. This is due to the US dollar’s surge, driven by weak growth, political uncertainty and lower inflation expectations.

Japan’s Nikkei 225 was also down, posting its worst performance since January 2016, amid growing concerns that growth in most Asian markets will slow down, leading to Japan’s second-quarter GDP growth rate.

World Indices

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Index</th>
<th>Price</th>
<th>Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dow Jones Industrial Average</td>
<td>27,454.35</td>
<td>-0.1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S&amp;P 500</td>
<td>2,950.57</td>
<td>-0.1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nasdaq Composite</td>
<td>8,090.33</td>
<td>-0.6%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DAX</td>
<td>12,282.60</td>
<td>-0.4%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hang Seng</td>
<td>29,549.80</td>
<td>-0.2%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nikkei 225</td>
<td>29,549.80</td>
<td>-0.3%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CAC 40</td>
<td>6,851.13</td>
<td>-0.3%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Tokyo Stock Exchange

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Company Name</th>
<th>Price</th>
<th>Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ms&amp;Ad Insurance Group Holdings Ltd</td>
<td>5,175.00</td>
<td>-0.22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Indoabulls Housing Finance Ltd</td>
<td>3,021.00</td>
<td>-0.13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Daiwa House Industry Co Ltd</td>
<td>1,573.50</td>
<td>-0.44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karachi All Share Index</td>
<td>10,475.00</td>
<td>0.35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kotak Mahindra Bank Ltd</td>
<td>3,084.00</td>
<td>1.34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yamato Holdings Co Ltd</td>
<td>2,294.00</td>
<td>0.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HDFC Bank Ltd</td>
<td>3,195.00</td>
<td>0.65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bajaj Finance Ltd</td>
<td>2,270.00</td>
<td>-5.36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reliance Industries Ltd</td>
<td>5,850.00</td>
<td>1.15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Franklin Templeton Inv. Trust Ltd</td>
<td>847.00</td>
<td>0.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

FTSE 100

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Company Name</th>
<th>Price</th>
<th>Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Imperial Brands Plc</td>
<td>847.00</td>
<td>1.15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taylor Wimpey Plc</td>
<td>2,023.00</td>
<td>0.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hsbc Holdings Plc</td>
<td>2,023.00</td>
<td>0.65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coca-Cola Co/The</td>
<td>8,165.00</td>
<td>1.15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exxon Mobil Corp</td>
<td>1,483.50</td>
<td>-5.36</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HONK KONG

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Company Name</th>
<th>Price</th>
<th>Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>China Mobile Ltd</td>
<td>5,040.00</td>
<td>0.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China Unicom (Hong Kong) Ltd</td>
<td>1,079.50</td>
<td>-0.67</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China Construction Bank Corp Ltd</td>
<td>575.20</td>
<td>-0.32</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

GCC Indices

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Index</th>
<th>Price</th>
<th>Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dubai Securities Market</td>
<td>3,210.55</td>
<td>0.57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kuwait Stock Exchange</td>
<td>191.30</td>
<td>0.47</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Information contained herein is believed to be reliable and has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable. The Company and its employees shall not be held accountable and will not accept any losses or liabilities for action based on this data.
Microsoft tops trillion-dollar mark for first time

Microsoft hit the trillion-dollar value mark at the market close on Monday, becoming only the fifth company to do so. It adds to the recent flurry of tech giants reaching this major milestone, following Amazon, Apple, Alphabet and Tesla.

The company's market cap surge comes amid growing confidence in the tech industry, with expectations of strong earnings reports in the coming weeks. Microsoft's earnings are expected later this month, and investors are looking forward to seeing how the company has performed in the face of ongoing pandemic-related challenges.

The company's move into the trillion-dollar club is also seen as a sign of the continued strength of the tech sector, which has been a major driver of global economic growth in recent years.

The milestone also highlights the ongoing shift in the global economy towards digital technologies and services, as more and more businesses and individuals turn to online solutions to meet their needs.

Overall, the move to the trillion-dollar club is seen as a sign of the continued strength of the tech sector, which isexpected to be a significant driver of global economic growth in the coming years.
Asian markets mostly down as outlook hits sentiment

Headline

Engaged in a familiar hand-to-hand combat, global investors worldwide were again offering a broadcast-hosting session service offering a broadcast-hosting session service, whether stocks were trading up on Monday, with South Korean stocks an unexpected 0.5% higher yesterday. Tokyo stocks edged up 0.5% yesterday. "We think going into next year, with the US-China trade war, there are likely to be more earnings surprises from the region," said Stephen Innes at SPI Asset Management. "The weak US economy is now being seen as a double-edged sword as most of the day in the US and China.

Emerging market currencies dip; Turkish lira drops before rate decision

Emerging market currencies were all up against the dollar yesterday, with Turkey's lira in focus after a cumulative loss of 10% against the greenback in the past month. "We think the outlook for emerging markets is broadly positive after a block-buster start to the year, there are lin-" said the US central bank's dovishness.

Pakistan's imports decline by $3.5bn in 10 months, NA told

Pakistan's imports fell by $3.5bn in the past 10 months, the National Assembly was informed on Thursday. Trade deficit has narrowed to $5.4bn from $9.2bn.

Pakistan Stock Exchange declines trading due to technical glitch

The Pakistan Stock Exchange (PSX) yesterday suspended trading after 11.40am as there was a technical snarl in its trading network limiting access for some brokers.

Pakistan's date exports fall after Indian duties

The parliamentarians of Pakistan have informed the National Assembly that the date exports from Pakistan have fallen by 20% due to Indian government's initiation of 200% duties on import from India.

Asian markets mostly down as outlook hits sentiment

India stocks fall amid crude oil price surge, derivative expiry

India's benchmark stock index was lower by 0.4% on Tuesday, with the expiry of this month's expiry of options being considered. The S&P BSE Sensex slipped 57.79 points or 0.2% to 28,473.62, while the Nifty 50 index fell 27.3 points or 0.3% to 9,470. India's Brent crude oil price ended slightly lower at $69.50 a barrel, with gains of about 0.3%. Indian imports almost 80% of its oil requirement and a higher oil price may mean the rupee will fall against the dollar, financial and trade analysts, meaning a drop in the economy. Brent crude oil price ended slightly lower at $69.50 a barrel, with gains of about 0.3%. Indian imports almost 80% of its oil requirement and a higher oil price may mean the rupee will fall against the dollar, financial and trade analysts, meaning a drop in the economy. Brent crude oil price ended slightly lower at $69.50 a barrel, with gains of about 0.3%.
Alarms sound for world growth as bellwether economy contracts

Bloomberg

Cyrillic text

UK regulator blocks $9.4bn Asda takeover by Sainsbury’s

Regulator consultation

The deal would have resulted in a substantial loss of competition for UK consumers, with prices rising in stores, online and in grocery delivery services, but the regulator

Cyrillic text

Indonesia keeps key rate unchanged

Jakarta

Bank Indonesia is set to keep its benchmark rate

Cyrillic text

Ghosn freed on bail again after being detained on new charges

Cyrillic text

Ghosn leaves the Tokyo Detention House. Photograph taken by Bloomber