Skin care tips during Covid-19

Washing hands and wearing face masks are key steps to preventing Covid-19. But they can dry out your skin and cause acne.

By Joel Streed

Most people are washing their hands more frequently these days. Many are also wearing face masks when in public or during work shifts, often for hours at a time. These measures are key to reducing the spread of the virus that causes coronavirus disease 2019 (Covid-19). But they can irritate and damage your skin. Making a few skin care changes for your hands and face can help counteract these effects.

Hand care

One of the most important things you can do to protect against Covid-19 is to keep your hands clean and free from germs. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that you wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, or use an alcohol-based hand sanitiser that contains at least 60% alcohol.

But lots of hand washing can strip your hands of their natural oils. To prevent dry, cracked skin:

1. Be gentle on your hands: Use cool or lukewarm water with soap to wash your hands. Hot water isn’t any more helpful against germs that can make you sick. And hot water can increase skin damage. Avoid antibacterial cleansers. They aren’t that useful for preventing infectious disease. And they contain chemicals such as fragrance that can irritate skin.

2. Wear gloves when cleaning to protect your skin: Disinfectants for cleaning surfaces are effective against germs, but some of the ingredients can be harsh on your hands.

3. Moisturise, moisturise: After washing your hands, gently rinse and pat them dry. Right after, apply plenty of moisturiser. If your hands still feel dry after a minute or so, apply more.

4. Combine moisturisers: A combination of moisturisers works best. Lightweight creams typically draw moisture to the skin’s outer layer. Look for ingredients such as urea, glycerin or hyaluronic acid. To seal the moisture in, follow with a heavier moisturiser that prevents water loss. Oil-based creams or petroleum jelly work well. Because heavier moisturisers can feel greasy, some people leave a thick layer on their hands covered with cotton gloves overnight.

5. Don’t ignore early skin protection: Even if your hands don’t feel dry or chapped, be sure to moisturise them regularly.

MOISTURISE: After washing your hands, gently rinse and pat them dry. Right after, apply plenty of moisturiser. If your hands still feel dry after a minute or so, apply more.

Preventing skin irritation from developing in the first place is more effective than trying to catch up later when skin is already broken and cracked.

Facial care

Many workers in places such as salons, restaurants, retail stores and in health care wear masks throughout their shifts during the Covid-19 pandemic. The CDC recommends wearing cloth masks in public to help reduce the spread of the coronavirus by people who have Covid-19 but don’t realise it. But as helpful as it is, mask use in public can lead to chafing of the skin on the bridge of your nose, chin, cheeks and even behind the ears.

Some people develop itchiness or a rash. Sweaty or damp conditions under the mask can lead to acne breakouts. To ease these complications of mask wearing during the Covid-19 pandemic:

1. Adopt a regular skin care routine: Cleanse and moisturise your face before and after using a mask. Choose products labelled “noncomedogenic,” which means they won’t clog skin pores. Don’t use products with petrolatum, though. Petrolatum is a common ingredient in “heavy-duty” creams and ointments, such as petroleum jelly. It can get in the way of the mask’s function, especially N95 masks used by some health care workers. If your skin tends to be on the oily side, go for a water-soluble moisturiser.

2. Use a barrier ointment or bandage: To prevent or relieve skin injuries caused by pressure or friction from masks, a thick layer of zinc oxide can soothe and protect skin. Zinc oxide is a skin protectant often used for diaper rash or severely chapped skin. Use it on the bridge of your nose or behind your ears. You can also try placing a bandage between the skin pressure points and the mask.

3. Ease blisters: If a blister forms, keep it clean and apply antibiotic ointment. Use a bandage to create a protective barrier between the blister and the mask.

4. Treat acne: If you develop acne, cleanse your skin regularly. Use a water-soluble moisturiser. Look for acne treatment products that contain retinoids, benzoyl peroxide and salicylic acid. Also, avoid popping or squeezing pimples, which can contribute to inflammation and infection of the area.

Professional care

Don’t give up on washing hands and wearing masks, as these are critical prevention measures against Covid-19. In the meantime, taking the steps described above can help protect your skin.

If you develop cracked skin that starts to bleed, blisters turn into ulcers or become infected, or if you have a serious skin reaction, talk to your doctor promptly. Damaged skin can increase your risk of infection and may need more than home care. Treatment may include prescription medicines and skin therapies.

A rich tapestry

Olivia de Havilland’s death Sunday at age 104 has severed one of our last remaining ties to the classic studio system and the film industry’s much-vaunted Golden Age, writes Justin Chang.

Her films at Warner Bros. brought her great visibility and success, which began with the merry Michael Curtiz swashbuckler Captain Blood (1935) and ended in elegiac fashion with Raoul Walsh’s 1941 Western They Died With Their Boots On.

— Justin Chang, film critic
Havilland sued the network and Ryan Murphy became its own object of notoriety when de Havilland would go on to win herself — I still can’t believe it. The story told in To Each His Own, which earned de Havilland her first Oscar for lead actress. (The second came three years later, for The Heiress.) She followed that with her anguished turn in 1948’s The Snake Pit, a pioneering achievement in Hollywood’s subgenre of prison pictures about the specific horrors of mental institutions.

Those opportunities would wane in the 1950s and ’60s, though de Havilland still did memorable work in warmly acclaimed dramas such as Light in the Piazza (1962) as well as violent, headline-grabbing thrillers such as Lady in a Cage (1964) and Hush... Hush, Sweet Charlotte (1964). The latter film gave her the chance to star opposite her longtime friend Davis, stepping into a role that had originally been intended for Crawford (in an attempt to capitalise on the success of an earlier Davis-Crawford horror vehicle, What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?).

I’ve said deliberately little so far about Gone With the Wind, a movie whose recent streaming-era controversy has already generated no shortage of ink this year and a title that dominates the headlines announcing de Havilland’s death. To see the film is to understand why. In that deftly contested, defiantly beloved 1939 landmark, she took on the role of the strident Melanie Wilkes — a role so clearly destined for her that she managed to do it for David O. Selznick while still under contract at Warner Bros. — and made her that picture’s soulful conscience.

Defying the truism that you can’t make a virtue of a character interesting, de Havilland’s Melanie serves as both a welcome and a soulful conscience. AMUAAQ organises AMU Alumni International Mushaira 2020 via Zoom

Aligarh Muslim University Alumni Association Qatar (AMUAAQ), an associate organisation of ICBF under the aegis of the embassy of India and supported by Bazm-e-Sadaf International, recently organised AMU Alumni International Mushaira 2020 via Zoom. Professor Tarig Mansoor, Vice Chancellor of Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) was the chief guest on the occasion. Speaking on the occasion, he said that that poetic symposiums are cultural events with mannerism and decorum, which teach the language and craft of poetry to the younger generation. "The Covid-19 outbreak has disrupted regular gatherings and events but people have turned to the digital world to stay connected and these online events have become the new norm till the virus fades away," he added. He also thanked the alumni groups for generously supporting the development work in the University.

Professor M M Sufyan Beg, Chairman of AMU Alumni Affairs Committee, requested the alumni to give their details for the AMU Alumni Directory, while expressing happiness to be part of the event.

Professor Najmul Islam, Secretary of AMU Teachers Association, and Dr M Kalimullah, Joint Secretary, AMUTA, spoke on the mission of Sir Syed Ahmad Khan and on the importance of cultural activities.

Dr MS Bukhari, Chief Patron of AMUAAQ, requested all AMU alumni to work towards the benefit of their alma mater on the occasion.

Speaking on the occasion, Basir Sultan Kazmi, famous Urdu poet and writer and President of the symposium along with Shahabuddin Ahmad, Chairman of Bazme-Sadaf International, pointed out that the online event has managed to maintain the ambience of classical mushaira gatherings. The event was anchored by Dr Nadeem Zafar Jilani, AMU alumnus. He also recited his own poetry at the event. The event kicked off with the recitation of the Holy Qur'an by Mohammed Farman Khan. General Secretary of AMUAAQ, which was followed by Covid-19 awareness precautionary measures briefed by Dr Ashna Nusrat, Chief co-ordinator of AMUAAQ.

At the event, along with Shahabuddin Ahmad, the Chairman of Bazm-e-Sadaf International, the AMU alumni Association President, Professor Javaid Zaidi, from Qatar University, Dr Sanjiv Agha, from Vertex, UAE, Irfan Mohamed Khan, President of AMU Alumni, Western UP; Khalid Rizvi, President of AMA-UK; Zyaldra Pathak, Mohamed Sultan, S A M Basheer, President of KMCC - Qatar; Professor. Javed Ahmad, President of AMU Alumni, Riyadh; Pushkiri Asha, from Vertex, UAE, Irfan Mohamed Khan, President of AMU Alumni, Kuwait; Sarosh Karim, from USA; Professort Shahin Usmani, Adviser of International AMU Alumni Affairs Committee, New York; Mohamed Nasir, faculty member at AMU; Aftab Pathan, President of AMU Alumni, Delhi; Muhammad Farman Khan, Dr Asma Nusrat S, Syed Mohamed Zaki Ullah, Mamnoon Ahmad Bangash, Dr Zainab Malik, Owais Qamar, Danish Ali Khan, Abu Rowan, Omar Kafeel Ahmad, Ahmad Ashfaq, Ahmad Imtiaz, Irfan Ansari, Moazzam Malik, Mohd Ifanullah, Alamgir Alam, Mohammed Naim, Jarnil Sahab, and Mohamed Haroon. Mohamed Faisal Naseem, Vice-President of AMUAAQ, proposed a vote of thanks.

DPS-MIS organises webinar on ‘Stress Management and Performance Enhancement’

DPS-Modern Indian School (DPS-MIS) recently organised a webinar on ‘Stress Management and Performance Enhancement’ conducted by Dr Sanjiv Sahni, Principal Director of Jindal Institute of Behavioural Sciences, O P Jindal Global University. Teachers along with the students and their parents attended the webinar.

Topics, including changing learning goals, developing protocol and guidelines for students, addressing student’s emotional health, ensure balance with the digital and screen-free environment, and availability of parents to support their children were explored in the webinar.

The webinar also highlighted building a positive relationship with students during this pandemic. Dr Sanjiv emphasised on the importance of parents-teachers involvement. While giving few tips to the teachers and parents to enhance students’ performance under stress, he said, “Teaching practices should not only focus on enhancing academic growth, but also encourage emotional growth and social responsibility among students.” He lent an insight on retention levels in children, and said that one should inculcate more moral and activity-based learning for primary children. He also gave a brief insight on how to manage this crucial skill using 14 behaviour patterns.

In conclusion, he stressed on staying positive, developing gratitude and relationship bank, correct sitting posture, good sleep, physical fitness, being active, staying hydrated, and recalling positive memories. The session was attended by over 500 participants, including Asna Nates, Principal of DPS-MIS, Soma Bhattacharjee and Hyacinth Mary Cruz, Vice Principals, and Sini Menon, Headmistress.

Travel tips: 10 of the UK’s

From Scotland’s most easterly Munro mountain to a remote ‘Greek’ beach in Devon, readers nobly share their knowledge of lovely, but little-visited spots.

Anglesey’s far corner

Penmon is a quiet village on the south-east tip of Anglesey, on the coastal footpath and cycling routes, near a wide sandy beach. Penmon Priory with its 400-year-old domed dovecote and St Seiriol’s Well are on the way to the point. Here there is a lighthouse and café and beautiful views of Puffin Island and the Snowdonia mountains across the strait. A woodland walk leads to a hidden castle. This hidden gem is just four miles from Beaumaris with its castle, shops, cafes, restaurants and boat trips. — Susanna

Walk, run, test your eyesight in Teesdale

The Teesdale Way is one of England’s quieter long-distance paths. Largely following the banks of the River Tees, it starts from the remote moorlands of Cumbria and runs down past forests and waterfalls in Durham to the industrial landscapes of Teeside and the North Yorkshire coast. I recently ran a 10km section of the trail and saw only two other souls, along with fantastic views and wild deer. There are lots of options for camping, glamping and B&Bs along the way, including pleasant towns and villages such Yarm, Middleton in Teesdale and the now-infamous Barnard Castle. — Michael L

Coast, canal, forest – and beavers: Argyll

While everyone else going to Scotland aims for the North Coast 500 route, I’ll turn left at Loch Lomond heading west for a small area of Argyll where the Crinan Canal cuts through the top of the Kintyre peninsula. My favourite section is that nearing its western end at Crinan itself, a small village with a tea shop/gallery and hotel. You can walk or cycle along the towpath (experiencing the weirdness of a canal running above sea level), watch yachts coming through the locks, head up into the forests and maybe see the reintroduced beavers at Loch Barnloisgan, or just relax and enjoy the views out towards Jura and Mull. It’s a special place, where taking things slowly comes easily. — Mary

A better Glen Esk walk, Cairngorms

Hikers intent on climbing Scotland’s most easterly munro, Mount Keen, above Glen Esk, all miss out on a far quieter beauty spot nearby. A circuitous route around Loch Lee and the smaller summit of Cairn Lick is a far more rewarding walk. The walk takes in the length of the loch, climbs up an impressive descent you get views of Loch Barnloisgan from level and, looking out to sea, the views of Loch Lee still glisten. An invigorating plop down dip on a hot day and rarely anyone else there. — Debbie

Caribbean Scott

Erraid, Inner Hebrides

David Balfour’s breathtaking sandy turquoise waters and golden sands in a stunning setting on the Atlantic Coast. On can imagine you are transported to the Caribbean, and rarely anyone else there. An invigorating! — Pet

Another lost garden

Dewstow Garden were only rediscovered being buried in tons of topsoil after the Second World War and opened to the public in 2007. — Pet best hidden destinations

Remoter Snowdonia
The Rhinog hills east of Harlech are wild, heather- and wood-covered beauties that, from the north, offer stunning views across Cardigan bay, and fabulous walking. They feel remote in that you might only meet feral goats on your path, but within minutes you can drop down to the coast, for example, to the morfa (marsh) and beach at Harlech or Shell Island, or to the pretty stone-hewn Ty-Mawr pub/hotel in Llanbedr.

We stayed in the Laundry Cottage in Dyffryn Ardudwy close to the Cwm Nantcol campsite. — Ruth

Cove to yourself, Falmouth
Don't go to the castle in Falmouth, lovely as it is. Instead, park in the Pendennis Head car park (no charge), then follow the footpath down to the east and eventually you'll access the hidden coves reached off the coast path. With a bit of luck you'll have a cove to yourself, although you might have to share with a grey seal or two. Then the scene is set for sunbathing, swimming, rockpooling and snorkelling. Remember to check the tide times, and keep on eye on the incoming water ...

Otherwise this is the perfect spot for relaxation. — Jane

Cycling in south Cumbria
The Furness peninsula in south Cumbria is a great place to bring a bike. Loads of quiet lanes and close enough to the Lake District to take a ride out there. But there are some amazing sights in the immediate area. Furness Abbey (pictured, free but book a timed ticket in advance) is an impressive ruin and there are some great beaches – try Roanhead. There are fantastic views of the Cumbrian Fells from the local moons: the area at the top of Kirkby Slate Road at sunset has amazing views and a sense of solitude. — David Smith

Greek island in north Devon
Known as Devon's Greek beach, Broadsands beach in Ilfracombe is a pretty cove reached down over 300 steep steps that help keep the crowds away even on a warm summer weekend. The hidden beach is backed by cliffs and is best at low tide, with great views towards Combe Martin Bay. To get there, find the coast path behind the Sandy Cove hotel and look out for a wooden signpost among the trees to your right. For a good view of the beach, stay on the coast path a little further until you reach a caravan park and a well-positioned bench with a stunning view from above. — Sidra Nawaz

Being human takes guts, but a sense of bold confidence doesn’t come easily for everyone, and often requires you to start from the inside. You may need to overcome mental roadblocks and build you through personal physical barriers that have held you back.

Now is the perfect time to break free of those internal boundaries and challenge yourself to live boldly and bravely. Here are some ideas to unlock your potential from the inside out, allowing you to live gutsier at any age:

Start with a gut check
To be your best self and have the guts to tackle whatever lies ahead, get your gut in check and reap the glory.

According to a recent survey, three out of four women (72 percent) report that they’ve experienced occasional digestive issues in the past 12 months, such as bloating, constipation and diarrhea. Not only may these all be signs your gut is in need of replenishment and balance, but they’re enough of a reason to sit on the side-line rather than experience a new adventure.

Try something new
When you try something you’ve never done before, it stimulates the body and mind. Don’t worry about failure – just keep an open mind and have fun. No matter the outcome, you’ll create lifelong memories. For example, even if you aren’t crafty, sign up for a pottery class. Always wondered about yoga? Take an intro session. Want to make new friends? Attend that community function.

When you get outside your comfort zone, you may be surprised just how much fun you have.

Eat new foods
Expand your nutritional palate with healthy items that aren’t staples on your daily menu – mix them with dishes you know and try them a couple of times. Training your brain to recognise new flavours and smells requires multiple exposures, and proximity to familiar favourites helps make things safe by association. You never know what might become your next favourite dish.

Reflect on and be a role model
Who do you admire for their guts? Is someone famous or someone close to you? Think about what they do that inspires you. If you can, tell them why. For example, write your mom a letter about how she’s impacted your life. It’s sure to make her day.

Challenge yourself
Need extra motivation for living gutsier? Join a fun challenge that can both guide you plus provide a sense of community and support. – IANS

Veteran actress Kumkum passes away at 86

Veteran Bollywood actress Kumkum, who worked in around 115 films, passed away yesterday at her residence in Bandra, Mumbai. She was 86.

Television director and late comedian Jagdeep’s son Naved Jaffrey tweeted to confirm the news. “We have lost another gem. I have known her since I was a kid and she was a superb artist and a fantastic human being. Rest in peace Kumkum aunty.” Naved wrote on Twitter.

Remembering “Kumkum aunty”; Naved also posted a few pictures of the late actress.

Several social media users paid condolences to the late actress.

A user wrote: “May her soul rest in peace.”

“Loved her performances. She was a good actress,” wrote another user.

The cause of her death is yet to be officially announced.

Kumkum was born Zulfiquarsiya on April 22, 1934, in Hussainabad, Bihar. Her father was Nabab of Hussainabad.

She was spotted by Guru Dutt, who was looking for a good dancer to picturise the immortal song Kabhi aur kabhi paar for his 1954 film, Aar Paar. Dutt finalised Kumkum and the song went on to become a huge hit. Dutt then gave her a role in his 1957 classic, Pyaasa. Kumkum worked with Shammi Kapoor in Mem Saheb (1956) and had a lead role opposite the actor in Char Dil Char Raahein (1959).

A fine Kathak dancer, she trained under Pandit Shambhu Maharaj. Kumkum’s notable films include Mr. X In Bombay, Mother India, Son Of India, Kohinoor, Ujala, Naya Daur, Shreenam Puntoo, Roja Aur Runk, Lalkaar, and Geet. She started opposite Ashim Kumar in the first Bhojpuri film, Ganga Maiyyo Tohe Pipari Chadhaibo (1963). – IANS

Ayushmann mourns death of action director Parvez Khan

Actor Ayushmann Khurrana has mourned the death of action director Parvez Khan, who passed away at the age of 55, on Tuesday evening. “Case filed from an unverified account on Twitter. K.K. Singh has registered an FIR against Rhea and her family in the final take! He said I could do it and he trusted me.”

The actor, whose career is on a high after eight back-to-back hits, added that he was excited but also apprehensive, and Khan was a genius who put him at ease.

“His skill set was so strong that he taught me every possible step to land perfectly, and I did!” Ayushmann said.

Parvez Khan contributed to stunt work in films such as Andhadhun, Dil Bechara.

Sushant’s father files FIR against Rhea for abetment to suicide

Late Bollywood actor Sushant Singh Rajput’s suicide case took a new turn after it emerged on Tuesday that his father K.K. Singh has filed an FIR in the Rajiv Nagar police station here accusing six people, including actress Rhea Chakraborty, for abetment to suicide.

Chakraborty has admitted to being the late actor’s girlfriend in an open letter to Union Home Minister Amit Shah pleading for a CBI probe in the matter.

Rajiv Nagar police station in-charge Yogendra Ravidas on Tuesday said Sushant Singh Rajput’s father K.K. Singh has accused six people, including Chakraborty for abetment to suicide in his complaint (FIR number 241/20). The police is investigating the case.

According to sources a four-member police team from Patna has left for Mumbai to investigate the claims made in the FIR.

Chakraborty had earlier disclosed that she received threats on social media over the actor’s death and added that she “only wanted to understand what prompted him to take the step”.

Sushant Singh Rajput allegedly committed suicide on June 14 in his flat in Bandra. While Mumbai Police is already investigating the case and even several people have been interrogated.

Several organisations have been demanding CBI probe into the matter as the death of the actor has literally opened a can of worms with nepotism charges, groupism and lobbying in Bollywood coming to the fore with many people coming out of closets with their claims of being sidelined by a selected group.

So far, around 40 people have already recorded their statements, including director-producer Sanjay Leela Bhansali, filmmaker Aditya Chopra, director Mukesh Chhabra, filmmaker Shekhar Kapoor, film critic Rajeev Masand, director Mahesh Bhatt among others.

Chakraborty’s statement was recorded at Bandra Police Station on June 18, four days after Sushant’s demise.

*Sushant Singh Rajput’s father, #KKSingh has registered an FIR against Actress #RheaChakraborty in #Patna. He has alleged that Rhea took money from Sushant and instigated him to commit suicide. Sushant and Rhea dated for a while before the actor died by suicide on June 14, trade analyst Ramesh Bala tweeted from his verified account on Tuesday evening.

Bollywood actor Shekhar Suman, who has been actively voicing his demand for a Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) probe into Sushant’s death, tweeted from an unverified account on Tuesday evening: “Case filed against Rhea and her family under section 306 for abetment to suicide...also section 340 and 341 #CBIcan’tBeDeniedForSSR #justiceforsushanthforum,” Suman mentioned in a separate tweet.

Sushant Singh Rajput made his Bollywood debut in 2013 with the movie – Kai Pa Che. He was appreciated for his performance in 2015 movie Detective Byomkesh Bakshy!, MS Dhoni: The Untold Story, Sonchiriya and Chhichhore.

Sophie Turner, Joe Jonas welcome first child

Hollywood couple Sophie Turner and Joe Jonas have become proud parents of a girl. They have named their child Willa Widow. “Sophie Turner and Joe Jonas are delighted to announce the birth of their baby,” said a representative for the couple as saying.

Back in February, it was revealed that 24-year-old Game Of Thrones actress Turner and pop star Jonas tied the knot. The two are quite private about their personal lives, and preferred not to comment on her pregnancy at the time, nor have they spoken publicly about the arrival of the baby.

Turner and Jonas got married in Las Vegas in May 2019, and had a second, bigger ceremony in France later that year.

Recently, Jonas shared the reason behind his spontaneous wedding with Turner in Las Vegas. Making an appearance on GQ’s Actually Me series, Jonas answered a string of questions about himself, and shared that the pair went ahead with the first ceremony as they “had to get legally married in the States”.

“So we thought it would be really fun to get all of our friends, invite them out to (Vegas), and do an impromptu wedding,” he explained. “And we actually had some people that I didn’t even know that well there.”

“Some people (in attendance) I am now closer with! Khalid was there! That was cool. And Diplo decided to livestream the whole thing.”

Jonas said he and Turner had to face consequences when his parents found out about their impromptu decision. “My parents called me the next morning and they were like ‘Did you just get married?’ And I realized that I told everybody, but forgot to tell my parents. So, kids, make sure you tell your parents when you’re getting legally married!” – IANS

The 10 greatest shows we wish we could binge

By Neal Justin

While Hollywood production remains at a virtual halt, more and more viewers are binging TV classics. But the library has some missing shelves.

For a variety of different reasons, most of which have to do with licensing rights, some of the greatest shows ever made can’t be found in syndication or on any streaming services. In many cases, the best you can hope for is shelling out big bucks for DVD sets or searching for illegal copies on the internet.

Executives should take advantage of this downtime to slice through the red tape and free up these 10 must-see series:

The Paper Chase (1976; 1983–86)

The 1973 movie that won John Houseman a best-supporting actor Oscar can easily be purchased on several streaming services. The equally strong TV version is much more elusive, despite the fact that Houseman reprised his role as a no-nonsense law professor.

Late Night With David Letterman (1982–93)

The most influential comedy show of its generation may have revolved in bits like Stupid Pet Tricks, but there was something superhuman about the way the host was able to both honour and skewer the late-night talkers that came before it.

Police Squad! (1982)

The jokes flew fast and furious in this short-lived gem that set the stage for the Naked Gun films. Minnesota Put Prof provided some of the sitcom’s most memorable one-liners.

Moonlighting (1985–89)

Bruce Willis put his smirk to good use in this dramedy about private investigators engaged in a never-ending battle of witty lines. The series fell apart when the partners finally jumped into bed together; the foreplay remains irresistible.

At its best, this was the lawyerly version of Hill Street Blues. At its worst, it was a prime-time soap opera. Still, there’s plenty of appeal here, both in and out of the courtroom.

thirtysomething (1987–91)

ABC has given up on its plans to reboot this Emmy-winning series. But that shouldn’t stop the network from helping make the original available, if only to remind us that all yuppies weren’t insufferable.

I’ll Fly Away (1991–93)

Think of this overlooked tear-jerker as the small-screen version of To Kill A Mockingbird with Sam Waterston in the Atticus Finch role. Network TV has traditionally been wary of capturing the Deep South during the civil rights movement. This was a rare, glorious exception.

Homicide: Life on the Street (1993–99)

The detectives in this Baltimore precinct rarely fired their weapons, but the suspense remained on high alert thanks to a superb roster of actors and writers, including David Simon, whose book served as the drama’s main inspiration.

Once and Again (1999–2002)

Marshall Herskovitz and Ed Zwick, the duo behind thirtysomething, struck gold again with this drama about single parents stepping back into the dating pool. Future Westworld star Evan Rachel Wood is one of the angst-ridden kids.

Ed (2000–04)

Before joining the cast of Modern Family, Julie Bowen played the seemingly unattainable love interest in this adorable rom-com for grown-ups. Fans of How I Met Your Mother will be enticed.
