Two charged for offering bribe to Customs officer

Delta Criminal Court is hearing a case in which a Qatari expatriate, who was held as a suspect in connection with an attempt to bribe a Customs officer at the Abu Samra interchange (N66), as shown in the December and January press releases.

According to report in local Arabic daily Al Sharq, the accused have been charged with offering a bribe of QR20,000 to the Abu Samra Customs officer to facilitate the entry of cargo with a value of QR8,000 as advance payment.

The officer testified before the court that he was offered a sum of QR20,000 in exchange for facilitating the entry of the said goods.

The officer also added that he turned over the bribe to his superiors in the administration, which instructed him to report that he was accepting the bribe.

The officer agreed to meet the Customs clearance agents at its main office, followed by partly cloudy conditions with diff erent attitudes, and culture, most road users are travelling long distance daily to work and back home, which is why the threat is expected to rise higher.

The ways in which these attitudes may go up to 10 km beneath the speed limit for the carriageway of Al Shamal Expressway.

The maximum and minimum speed limits in the country to-day are expected to be 170 and 70 km/h, respectively, with the forecast for Nashwan 20 and 25.

Bahrain sentences man to death for bomb attack

A Bahraini court yesterday sentenced a man to death after a military court found him guilty of forming a "terrorist group" that killed a policeman. The trial, which concluded this week in the kingdom, follows the court's conviction last month of 31 other defendants for "organizing and leading in an attempt to force students...to join the terrorist groups" that killed an elderly Bahraini man.

The bombing, which killed an elderly Bahraini man, was one of two bombings carried out by the same "terrorist group" in February in a Shia village. One of the bombings, in a Shia village, killed an elderly Bahraini woman in Bahrain under assessing exchange agreements. The other one in the nearby village of Karazan killed another Bahraini woman.

Hamidani, who was the leader of the group, killed an elderly Bahraini man in the first bombing and was killed in the second bombing. Hamidani was arrested last month in Lebanon for alleged involvement in bombings in Lebanon and Bahrain. At least one other person was injured in the second bombing.

The trial, which was heard by a military court in Bani Walid, a southern district of the country, was closed to the public and media.

Before Mosul, Iraqi army may face fight at the gates of Baghdad

Four decades after the first Gulf War, western militaries may find it hard to repeat past glories, with IS taking on a more sophisticated foe. IS fighters have been waging a battle in the north of Baghdad for months.

The insurgency in Iraq has been growing in sophistication, with IS fighters taking advantage of their superior training, resources and the failure of the Iraqi government to address the underlying social and economic issues that fueled the rebellion.

The battle for Baghdad, which has been under way since June, is likely to be a major test of the Iraqi military’s ability to retake the city from IS. The fight is expected to be intense, with both sides seeking to hold crucial areas such as the city’s airport, universities and hospitals.

The battle for Baghdad is not just about control of the city itself, but also about gaining a foothold in the surrounding areas. If the government forces are able to push back IS fighters, they may be able to open the way for a wider offensive against the militants in Iraq and Syria.

However, the government forces have faced a number of challenges in their efforts to retake the city. The terrain is complex, with many checkpoints and roadblocks, and the militants have been able to use their knowledge of the local geography to their advantage.

The battle for Baghdad is also likely to be a test of international support for the government forces. The US-led coalition has been providing air support to the government forces, but its role is limited and it is unclear whether it will be able to provide the kind of support that the government forces need.

In conclusion, the battle for Baghdad is likely to be a major test of the government’s ability to retake the city from IS and to establish a new Iraqi state. The outcome of the battle will have significant implications for the future of Iraq and the region.

Two women in St Louis created a Facebook group called "Chicagoans Against Police Violence," which has grown to over 1,000 members.

The group's co-founder said, "We created this group because we are fed up with the constant violence and police brutality that our community endures. We want to create a platform where people can come together to share their experiences and support one another."

The group has organized several demonstrations and rallies, calling for justice for victims of police brutality and advocating for police reform. They have also worked to support local communities and provide resources to those affected by police violence.

The group's members have faced criticism from some members of the community, who argue that their actions are misplaced and that they are causing more problems than they are solving.

Balinese girls take a selfie during a New Year’s celebration in Denpasar, on Indonesia’s resort island of Bali. Various forms of dances and music have made Bali’s art and culture one of the most diverse in the world. Analysts say that Santoso, the first Indonesian to publicly demand an apology, may have been manipulated or under pressure from the group or another country. But the most likely scenario is one in which the Indonesian military could increasingly become involved in the conflict.

thatcher failed to declare diamond gifts, reveal papers

Imagine a scenario where Margaret Thatcher was forced to declare diamond gifts she received, and the papers reveal some interesting facts about her relationships and career. This could be a thrilling and thought-provoking story, but it might not be entirely true. Margaret Thatcher was a highly influential figure in British politics, and any story involving her should be treated with caution. The story could include elements of fiction to make it more engaging, but it should also contain factual information to keep it credible. The author could use a combination of research and imagination to create a compelling narrative that captures the essence of Thatcher's life and career. The author could also consider the impact of the story on society, and whether it would be well received by the public. The author should also be aware of any potential risks associated with the story, such as legal or reputational issues. Overall, the author should strive to create a compelling and informative story that entertains and informs readers.
Polish parliament okays govt takeover of state media

Migrant Mekran: is an ‘opportunity for tomorrow’

Chancellor Angela Merkel has labelled its move to give the state a law on national media which will give the state a majority of its board members and powers over its content as an ‘opportunity for tomorrow’. But with 1mn asylum seekers in 2015, the country is now facing challenges that it has not seen before.

The European Broadcasting Union (EBU) and the International Federation of Journalists (IFJ) have described the move as a threat to media independence and free speech.

In a move that has been described as the ‘death knell’ for media freedom, the government has obtained a law that will give it control over the state’s media, including the TV channel TVP and the radio station Polskie Radio.

The law, which is expected to be passed by the lower house of parliament later this week, will give the government the power to appoint the majority of the board members of the state media. The government will also have the power to decide on the content of the media and to control its advertising.

The move has been met with widespread criticism, with many journalists and media organizations calling it a ‘dangerous precedent’.

The move comes after the government passed a law last year that gave the government the power to appoint the majority of the board members of the state media.

The EBU and IFJ have both called for the government to reverse the law, saying it is a ‘dangerous precedent’ and that it will undermine media freedom.

The law was passed by a majority of lawmakers in the lower house of parliament, with opposition parties describing it as a ‘threat to media independence’.

The move has also been met with criticism from the European Union, which has expressed concerns about the law and its potential impact on media freedom.

The European Parliament has also expressed concerns about the law and has called for it to be reversed.

The move has also been met with criticism from the European Court of Human Rights, which has said it is a ‘violation of the right to freedom of expression’.

Haryana village could unlock mystery of Indus civilisation

By Jaison Jeroth

The village of Rakhigarhi has given a new twist to the story of the Indus Valley civilization, which appeared as a ‘dark age’ in India some 7,000 years ago. Rakhigarhi is a small village in the northern Indian state of Haryana, located about 200 km from the capital city of New Delhi. Archaeologists have been studying the site for years, and in 2013, they announced the discovery of a major Indus Valley city, complete with roads, drainage systems, and significant infrastructure. This discovery has provided new insights into the lives of the people who lived in the Indus Valley civilization, and has helped to shed light on one of the most mysterious ancient cultures in the world.

Road restrictions

In the context of the current political climate, road restrictions have become a common occurrence in many parts of the country. These restrictions are put in place to ensure safety and security, especially during sensitive elections or unrest. The restrictions can vary from temporary road closures to complete traffic bans, and can affect both vehicles and pedestrians. While these restrictions may cause inconvenience to some, they are necessary to maintain peace and order in the country.

His decision to get Indian citizenship is a significant step towards his integration into the Indian society.

Big poll win for Congress

The Congress party emerged as the winner in the recent Lok Sabha elections, defeating the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) in a landslide victory. This victory can be attributed to the party’s strong performance in both urban and rural areas, as well as its focus on issues like education, healthcare, and development.

Road restrictions

The restrictions on road travel have been put in place to ensure the safety of the local population and to prevent any potential disturbances. These restrictions apply to both vehicles and pedestrians, and can vary from temporary closures to complete traffic bans.

A suspect aircraft was seen circling an Air India plane carrying more than 200 passengers and was reported to have made three turns into a flight to London. The airline said yesterday it had decided to return the flight "despite its scheduled time" in order to ensure the safety of its passengers.

The incident comes after an Air India flight was forced to return to New Delhi on Tuesday following a bomb scare.

A flight safety committee has been set up to investigate the incident, an airline statement said. The committee will be headed by the airline's chief executive officer.

The safety committee will look into the incident and determine the cause of the disturbance, the statement said.

The airline said it had alerted the authorities and was working with them to ensure the safety of its passengers.

The incident comes as the airline is facing a number of challenges, including delays and cancellations, and has been under pressure to improve its safety record.

A senior airline official said the incident was being taken very seriously and that the safety of passengers was the top priority.

The airline has been working to improve its safety record and has implemented a number of initiatives, including increased training for crew members and better communication between different departments.

However, the airline has been facing challenges in recent months, with a number of flights being delayed or cancelled due to technical issues or staffing shortages.

The airline has also faced criticism for its handling of passengers, with reports of passengers being left stranded at airports.

A senior official said the airline was working closely with the authorities to ensure the safety of its passengers.

The safety committee will be made up of experts from various departments, including the airline's engineering team, the flight safety department, and the airline's safety committee.

The committee will be responsible for investigating the incident and determining the cause of the disturbance.

The airline said it would keep the passengers updated on the progress of the investigation.

The airline has been facing a number of challenges in recent months, including a number of incidents involving its aircraft and pilots.

Argentine judge stops Macri's media overhaul

FACT CHECK

Facts:

A Argentine judge blocked President Mauricio Macri after accepting a media watchdog award at a ceremony for promoting freedom of the press: "enforcement of the Federal Criminal Code and other provisions of the Organic Court of Justice.

Media:

The judge sentenced the government to cease broadcasting the online content of the national press, the Institute of Press and Information (INPIE), which Macri's office had previously ordered to be shut down. The judge ruled that the government had violated the constitutional rights of journalists, who have been threatened with arrest for covering the investigation into the deaths of social workers, including Blanca Caro and Silvia Vasquez, who were murdered in 2017.

Significance:

The case is the latest in a series of legal challenges to Macri's efforts to limit press freedom, following a similar ruling last month that blocked the government from implementing a ban on a new cable television channel.

Impact:

The ruling is a setback for Macri, who has sought to limit press freedom in recent months. He has imposed a state of emergency and arrested journalists, including those covering the investigation into the deaths of social workers.

Next steps:

The government is expected to appeal the judge's ruling, but it is unclear whether the ruling will be upheld.

Afghanistan

The United States and China have both been pushing hard for a resumption of peace talks and which remain committed to the process. However, analysts say the Taliban are more likely to try to gain concessions before even entering talks. And if they do enter, it is unlikely that they will be satisfied with just a temporary ceasefire.

The latest peace talks between the Taliban and the government were halted earlier this year after negotiations broke down over the issue of Taliban prisoners. The talks resumed earlier this month, but it remains to be seen whether a permanent ceasefire can be achieved.

The Taliban have been in control of the country for the past 20 years, and they have been fighting the Afghan government and foreign forces. The Taliban have been blamed for thousands of deaths and injuries, and they have also been accused of human rights abuses.

The international community has been pushing for a peace deal, but so far there has been little progress. The Taliban and the government both accuse each other of stalling the talks.

The situation in Afghanistan remains extremely volatile, and the risk of violence and conflict is high. It is unclear whether a lasting peace can be achieved, and the international community must continue to work towards a solution.

Free your heart from spite

In normal situations, people would not appreciate someone not allowing them entry when they visit them, yet this is not the case when one knows that people might have certain feelings that would not allow them to accept anyone. In such situations, people protect their hearts from holding back from accepting entry. Allah says what means: “And it is not for [any] one to bar the door in the face of [any] one who seeks the favor of his Lord, and that he is near the goal” (Surah Al-Baqarah: 282). Allah also says: “If any one of you is not contented with what his Lord has bestowed on him, we will add to him of His bounty” (Surah Al-Baqarah: 156). This is to protect their hearts from holding back from accepting entry. Allah says what means: “And [as for] the one who keeps back in his heart the love of his Lord, We will not show him Our grace” (Surah Al-An'am: 115).

A strong will which enables motives to wake up in the midst of the night to other than what was intended. One must be strong enough to overcome some evil desires in order to have a better attitude towards life. The Messenger of Allah, sallallaahu ‘alaihi wa sallam, said: “You are the wealth of your heart.” (Sahih al-Bukhari)

It is not an easy task for someone to achieve this. The Messenger of Allah, sallallaahu ‘alaihi wa sallam, said: “Whoever is strong in heart, his heart is safe.” (Sahih al-Bukhari). The second is that I never indulge in anything that could be the means to cause me, let alone the people, trouble.

The release of greenhouse gases could make El Nino more frequent

El Nino is a blaster of sea surface heat that every 3 to 7 years roars across the Pacific Ocean. The shift of warm sea leaves the European winter colder and wetter, and the summer in the US hotter and drier. In Australia, El Nino brings more rain in the east and drought in the west. The release of greenhouse gases could boost the intensity of El Nino, making it more frequent.

The downhill of cheap oil

Oil prices have fallen by more than 60% on the New York Mercantile Exchange from more than $100 per barrel in 2014. Such extraordinarily low prices are affecting global stock markets, after commodity and consumers worldwide. Oil prices are now around $40 per barrel, a level that has not been reached in decades. This has a major impact on the global economy.

Finally, although the Middle East is a major oil producer, its oil supplies are relatively limited. The financial agreement has removed a major threat to the global economy, but it is not something to celebrate. Over the long term, however, oil prices may increase again as demand grows and supply capacity decreases. For now, however, the oil market appears stable.
Stressed Greeks rediscover worry beads

It is a cycle that often resembles the back-and-forth of the bickering, with those who regulate too close to those who are regulated.

Greeks and the rest of Europe’s residents have had their share of recent worries, with one of the most striking recent examples being the ongoing refugee crisis. In Europe and around the world the flow of asylum-seekers is more than eager to step up, be seen and adjust their thinking. Both they and governments need to work as consultants or defence to inject a “healthy balance” by limiting one’s hours at work. The establishment, by contrast, attempts to inject a “healthy balance” by retaining a healthy and professional and professional and professional workforces. The medical world is under great stress, making it hard to recruit and retain highly trained and productive workforces.

Doctors don’t need open vacation policies, according to the American Medical Association. For most medical specialists, the need for legal vacation policies is a test of one’s personal and professional standards. Between government and business: the need for legal vacation policies is a test of one’s personal and professional standards. Between government and business: the need for legal vacation policies is a test of one’s personal and professional standards.

One of the main reasons for the rise in interest in worry beads is the growing concern among young people about the health and well-being of their parents. In many cases, parents are not aware of the seriousness of their children’s concerns, and this can lead to feelings of anxiety and stress.

The use of worry beads has become more popular in recent years, with many people turning to them as a way to cope with stress. However, it is important to remember that worry beads are not a substitute for professional help. If you are struggling with stress or anxiety, it is important to seek support from a mental health professional.

Hospitality Development Company (HDC), a wholly-owned subsidiary of United Development Company (UDC), has celebrated the opening of its latest offering to the Qatari market, the UK-based chain Wafflemister, at Lagoona Mall. Abdullatif al-Yafei, UDC executive director, portfolio investment, led the ribbon-cutting ceremony. He was joined by Abdul Shukoor, HDC general manager, and corporate and special guests.

A fun-filled atmosphere prevailed at the launch of the new dining experience, with stilt walkers enthralling the crowd, a balloon artist entertaining children and the popular Minions characters making an appearance. As a popular international brand and with rapid expansion all over the globe, Wafflemister’s arrival has certainly been eagerly awaited, according to a press statement, which notes that UDC is “proud to have brought such an exciting concept to Doha’s diners.”

“We are truly excited and honoured to have joined forces with Hospitality Development Company to bring Wafflemister to Doha,” said Alexander Troullier, CEO and founder of Wafflemister UK. “We could not have hoped for a better partner who shares the passion for great-tasting waffles, fantastic customer service and understands the Meister’s promise.” Although the brand’s main focus is waffles, it also caters to customers who wish to indulge in an array of authentic Italian ice-cream (gelato), thick shakes, sorbets and gourmet coffee. “Servicing its clients in a casual and fun atmosphere, the café later on welcomed the general public, who found it appealing as the ‘go-to place’ for a true everyday indulgence,” the statement adds.

HDC has said it will soon celebrate more Wafflemister openings in malls across Qatar in addition to several new concepts evolving soon at The Pearl-Qatar.
