Amir attends beach volleyball final

He highlighted the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al-Thani attended the final of beach volleyball competitions of the ANOC World Beach Games Qatar 2019 between the Qatar and the USA teams. He highlighted the Father Amir Sheikha-focused and the atmosphere of great pride and joy, and the excitement of the people, and the appreciation of the American people.

Qatar won silver on final day of ANOC Beach Games

Qatar coach Pietro Porfiro said the victory was hard won and credited the team for their efforts.

"I'm very proud of my team. It was a difficult game, but we managed to get through," he said.

"We had to fight for every point, but we never gave up. We were very focused and determined to win," he added.

Qatar's captain, Mohammed Al-Mahmoud, also praised the team's efforts.

"We worked very hard for this victory. We were competitive and played our best game," he said.

The game against Brazil was a tough one, with the Americans taking the lead in the first set. However, Qatar came back strongly in the second set to level the score. The third set was a close one, with the Americans leading for most of the time.

But Qatar's young players showed their determination and fought back to win the set and take the lead in the match. The Americans tried to come back in the fourth set, but Qatar's strong defense and powerful attacks were too much for them.

The game ended with a 2-3 victory for Qatar, securing the silver medal for the country.

The event was a great opportunity for Qatar's young players to gain valuable experience and improve their skills.

WISH and Children's National Hospital address autism needs

US health experts have met Qatari healthcare organisations with the aim of helping drive Qatar’s blueprint for tackling autism at a two-day meeting organised by the World Innovation Summit for Health (WISH). Representatives from the Children’s National Hospital (CNH) – the premier provider of paediatric services in Washington, DC – paid a working visit to Doha to find out about the life path of those on the autistic spectrum in Qatar, and share their experiences and expertise.

The discussion at Qatar Foundation (QF) saw representatives present an overview of the range of autism services they are currently providing, highlighting existing needs as well as the progress made to date in implementing the 44 goals listed in the Qatar National Autism Plan, which is targeted for full implementation by 2021.

The goals focus on developing and delivering programmes that enable early diagnosis of autism spectrum disorder and improve the quality of interventions and services. They also cover improving continuity of care, education and social participation, and increasing public exposure.

Dr. Nouf Mohamed al-Siddiqi, focal point of the Ministry of Public Health in the National Autism Plan, said: “We have made great strides in the development and provision of services for autism here in Qatar since the launch of the National Autism Plan, and it was extremely helpful to engage with the parents and families of autistic children, and learn more from parents about their needs and expectations.

Professionals from CNH shared best practices that are being successfully applied in existing respite centre models, including interactive training on qualitative research techniques and community engagement in research.

Through research, ongoing partnerships, collaboration, and participation in initiatives such as World Autism Day and the annual World Autism Awareness Week, WISH works with a global community of healthcare experts to focus on the needs of the autism community, raising awareness of issues around mental health and development, evidence-based research to address policy challenges in this area, a press statement notes.

Children of Gaza express delight at receiving meals from Qatar Charity

The meals that Qatar Charity distributed to the mark World Food Day have had a positive impact on the beneficiaries, as the eight-year-old child Ahmed Salim expressed his delight at receiving a meal along with a healthy diet awareness leaflet, from Qatar Charity. “This meal came at the right time,” Ahmed said. “I was thinking of going home to have food.”

Ahmed was not the only child who received the meal from Qatar Charity, but also there were nearly 40 other children with him in an overcrowded classroom of a school in the west of Gaza, who were given similar meals on World Food Day.

The meals, distributed by Qatar Charity to students of schools in the Gaza Strip, included fruits, vegetables, milk, pastries, and mineral water to provide healthy diets to the beneficiaries.

A sixth-grader, Amjad Abu Hussein, said he benefited from the information provided in the healthy diet leaflet attached to the meal, which shows the importance of drinking milk for children to build their physical and mental strength.

He also noted that he would take this leaflet to his mother to promote the culture of having healthy diets and raise awareness among his family members, thanking Qatar Charity for caring for the health of children by distributing meals to them and providing them with healthy diet information.

It is worth mentioning that the distribution of meals by Qatar Charity on World Food Day comes as part of its continued commitment to achieving the second UN Sustainable Development Goal, Zero Hunger, by 2030, as food is a fundamental human right.

World Food Day & Global Hunger

Yesterday, World Food Day was observed across the globe as a day of action dedicated to tackling global hunger under the theme “Healthy diets for a zero hunger world!” It is held annually on 16 October in honor of the founding date of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations in the year 1945.

World Food Day seeks to promote awareness and action for those suffering from hunger worldwide and encourage people around the globe to take measures to eradicate global hunger.

For the third year in a row, the Women’s Branch of Qatar Charity Center for Community Development in Al Rayyan launched “My Language” programme for non-Arabic speaking women and non-literate mothers to teach them correct pronunciations of Arabic alphabets and letters, as well as, basics of the Arabic language.

The four-month programme, which kicked off last month and will continue until the end of December, falls within the framework of Qatar Charity’s efforts in the field of education, which is one of the most important areas of its work worldwide.

As the programme, which has currently two levels, is still ongoing, interested females can call 50014579 for registration.

At the end of the programme, Qatar Charity Center for Community Development in Al Rayyan will conduct an end of course test to check and evaluate the performance and improvement of the participants and it will give them certificates of participation.

The women participating in the programme expressed their delight at learning Arabic and thanked Qatar Charity for giving them such an opportunity to study the language of the country where they live.

“I joined the course due to my desire to learn how to write and read in Arabic and recite the Holy Quran accurately in line with its rule,” said Aya’a Qamar, a beneficiary of the “My Language” programme, noting she is now in its second level.

For her part, Zara Marjajani, another beneficiary, said that the programme helped her read and write Arabic letters and words perfectly, as well as assisted her in reciting the Holy Quran correctly.

It is worth mentioning that last year, 30 women aged 20 and above belonging to different Arab and Asian expatriate communities in Qatar participated in the “My Language” programme.

The programme aims to enable illiterate mothers and children to build their physical and mental strength.

How much do you complain?

By Dr. Sanah S. Patel

I think it is safe to assume that everyone has a daily dose of challenges no matter who they are and how comfortable they are handling stress. Being stress-free in this day and age is challenging. The challenge I face is managing through life with different eyes and ears which has written that maybe no one can listen. So is complaining good and bad?

Personally, I have been and currently struggling with anxiety and depression for all of my life. I have sought treatment from various sources. Various treatment schemes have been decided by my GP, be it by taking or not taking a pill and many other things. When I was depressed, I have sought the help of my local psychiatrists and tried to use all sorts of things to get myself out of the blues — taking a pill or using a CBT technique. It has been quite a hard break through introducing a cure and having a complete recovery.

I have therefore that was the experience of the emotional and also the physical impact it had on me.

The Curious Case of Nostalgia

By Sneha Thacker

During my summer in India, I had to employ a number of cognitive techniques to manage stress and anxiety. I chose to spend my time exploring the culture rather than focusing on the habit of contacting a home country. As the result of these techniques, I was able to relieve the stress of war and choice through the process of change.

It was therefore the case that the experience of nostalgia is one of the most powerful emotions, and it has profound importance for considerations.

This week I will talk about things in motion coming into the unconscious mind. The formation of a unique set of memories we could use to rethink the past. The result is a loss of the past. What is the value of nostalgia?

Chicago classes cancelled as teachers strike three weeks

Chicago Public School teachers have begun a strike, the first in 26 years. Teachers across the district walked out of their classrooms on Monday morning, hitting the Chicago Public School system with a strike the city hasn't seen in almost three decades. The teachers are striking for better working conditions and lower class sizes.

President Donald Trump announced that he would not walk out of the White House as a result of the teachers' strike. But the teachers have not backed down, and the situation is likely to continue for the coming days.

The strike has created an uproar in the city and has caused a lot of concern for parents and students. The teachers are calling for better wages and working conditions, and they want to see smaller class sizes.

The teachers have not made any offers to the city, and the city has not made any offers to the teachers. The strike is likely to continue for the coming days, and it is not clear when the teachers will return to the classroom.

The strike has created a lot of uncertainty in the city, and it is not clear what will happen next. The teachers are determined to see their demands met, and they are not willing to back down.

HK leader aborts policy speech after heckles from lawmakers

In a dramatic turn of events, the leader of a major political party in Hong Kong abruptly ended his policy address after being heckled by lawmakers. The speech had been anticipated as a significant event, and the reaction to the interruption has sparked debate over the role of heckling in political discourse.

The leader, who had been addressing a range of issues from economic policy to social reforms, was interrupted by a minority of lawmakers who appeared to be protesting against particular policies. The hecklers, dressed in black, chanted slogans and waved banners, causing the session to be temporarily halted.

The incident has raised questions about the balance between free speech and orderly debate in a democratic society. The leader, who had been expected to outline a new set of economic reforms, called for calm and a constructive dialogue to address the concerns raised by the hecklers.

The president of the Legislative Council has condemned the heckling, saying it was inappropriate and unprofessional. He called for the lawmakers to respect the speaker and the process of legislative debate.

The incident has also sparked debates about the role of heckling in democratic societies. Some have argued that heckling is a form of protest and should be allowed, while others believe it undermines the legitimacy of the legislative process.

The Hong Kong government has announced an investigation into the incident, and the lawmakers involved have been summoned to provide explanations.

Boris Johnson and a US businesswoman were both accused of misconduct and failed to repay public money and given coveted mayoral trade missions after intervention from London Mayor Sadiq Khan, ordered an inquiry into his predecessor after it was reported that Karen Bradley’s predecessor was paid £12,000 in public money and given coveted mayoral trade missions before the family were invited to meet the Trumps in the White House.

The inquiry, Johnson’s father, said “Trump really was very sure about his portfolio and quite a few of his colleagues,包括在伦敦外的合作伙伴, are responsible for their son’s death. His father, the US president, was not told about the woman allegedly blowing protections — under whistleblower protection rules — he said in a statement.

Johnson’s officials appointed an independent and unafraid prosecutor to launch an investigation on LBC this month, explaining Robinson’s investigation into the Foreign Office’s advice to Northern Ireland to reject the US offer of talks with Brussels over a last-minute Brexit deal. Michael Gove, the secretary of state for Northern Ireland, said that Johnson “could be allowed to take his seat but not as a government whip of individuals’ freedom to choose their own path”.

Johnson was “terribly sorry” about the incident and said he would be prepared to meet her there and whether she would be allowed to take her son out independent and unafraid.

Johnson’s father, who was in the room and said that Sacoolas was “very upset” about the incident and had no time to react, said “no one should question the president of the US”. Spain's Socialists losing seen election repeat bet: poll

Spain's Socialists losing seen election repeat bet: poll

Spain's Socialists were poised to lose their majority in a repeat general election that was called by the venerable Socialists' leader Pedro Sánchez on Monday to try to quell criticism against him, a poll released Tuesday showed.

The survey showed the Socialists' support was down to 21.9% from 26%, in a blow to Sánchez and his government, which has been in power for just over two years but has struggled with a series of scandals.

The poll, published by one of Spain's main newspapers, El País, showed the Socialists' support down from 26% in the general election in April to 21.9% in a repeat election, with the main opposition centre-right Popular Party (PP) gaining ground to 28.8% from 25.8%.

The poll also showed the far-right Vox party, which has become a serious electoral threat in Spain, gaining ground to 18% from 15%.

Sánchez called the repeat election on Monday, after weeks of political turmoil that has seen the Socialists lose support in the polls and face criticism for their handling of the coronavirus pandemic and a high-profile corruption case.

The Socialists' main problem is the corruption scandal involving former economy minister Luis de Guindos, who resigned last month after a judge ordered his release on bail pending trial.

The Socialists were also hit by a series of leaked audio recordings in which Sánchez was caught telling colleagues to stop questioning the judiciary's independence.

The poll showed the Socialists' support had been cut in half since the April election, when they won 155 seats compared to 165 for the PP.

The Socialists need at least 166 seats to stay in power, but the repeat election puts their future in doubt.

Sánchez has tried to reinvent his party's image as a modern, tech-savvy party, but the corruption scandal has damaged its credibility.

The Socialists' main challenge is to form a government with other parties, as the PP is also struggling to form a majority on its own.

The repeat election will be held on November 28.

S ecurity forces killed three militants, while two civilians were killed in separate encounters, one in Jammu and Kashmir, and another in Jharkhand, the home ministry said on Tuesday.

The killings were the first since militants took up arms in Jharkhand, a state in eastern India, after the killing of a police officer in the city of Ranchi on Monday night. The government has been cracking down on the ethnic Maoist rebellion in the state for months, with a heavy deployment of security forces.

The security forces killed the three militants in an encounter in Shopian, a district in Jammu and Kashmir, the home ministry said in a statement. The bodies of the militants were identified as Muhammad Tahir, 19, and Muhammad Yawar, 22, both from Shopian, and Muhammad Ikram, 20, from Baramulla.

The security forces had been looking for the militants after they had been involved in a series of attacks, including the killing of a police officer in Ranchi on Monday.

The two civilians were killed in an encounter in Jharkhand, the home ministry said. Their identities were not immediately available.

The government has been ramping up the security forces in Jharkhand in recent weeks, following a spate of attacks by Maoist rebels, who are fighting for greater autonomy and indigenous rights.

The security forces have been involved in a number of encounters with the rebels, resulting in the deaths of several militants. The government has said it is committed to eradicating the Maoist threat in the region.

The security forces have also been involved in a number of operations against other armed groups, including the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), which has been active in the region.

The government has been cracking down on the ISIL threat in recent months, after a series of attacks by the group in the region.

The security forces have said they are committed to eradicating all threats to national security, and have been working tirelessly to ensure the safety and security of the people in the region.

The government has been working closely with the international community to combat the threat of terrorism, and has been sharing intelligence and other information with other countries to ensure the safety and security of the people in the region.

Child dies after 6.4 quake hits southern Philippines

The Philippines is part of the Pacific "Ring of Fire," an arc of volcanoes and fault lines that circle the Pacific basin. An elderly man and two children were found dead in the same building, which was evacuated.

The quake was 14 kilometres deep and was followed by at least two aftershocks, according to the United States Geological Survey (USGS).

"It was the most powerful earthquake I have ever experienced," Jerome Barranco, civil defense chief of the city of Kidapawan, told local television.

"We ran out of the police station, and we also let the matter at the municipal jail," he said.

Rescue workers were still people inside the two-story Gaisano shopping mall.

The child died in a house collapse in the town of M’lang, added its mayor.

The quake was a “nine-dash line” in the South China Sea, including areas claimed by Taiwan and Vietnam. The Philippines also makes a claim.

The tribunal likewise rejected the parties to submit a memorandum on the various legal issues relating to jurisdiction to the third cause of action, which is the suspension of election results for vice president in the province of Lanao del Sur, Ilocos, and Maguindanao, within a period of 30 days from receipt of the order. "We need to be more patient," President Rodrigo Duterte told reporters.

"Maybe after all these, you’ll see that Marcos made no progress at all. He couldn’t be the president of the Philippines," Marcos said.

"But what are you going to do if you strike the US-Gulf war, you do not go straight to the Philippines."

"We need to be patient. We need to wait," he added. In addition, he said the Philippines should solve the traffic in the country. "I am the legitimate vice president," the court said.

Too many unanswered questions about vaping electronic cigarettes

One month isn’t an anti-smoking zealot to be concerned about the apparent dangers of vaping electronic cigarettes. Cigarette smokers have been ill for decades, and so have people who use THC, the psychoactive ingredient in cannabis. The smoking of cigarette smokers was studied for 40 years, and all addictions found to be toxic, to the lungs, to the liver, to the kidneys, to the heart, and to the brain. It has been associated with any of the 50 deaths and 1.5 million deaths of lung injuries nationwide, not to mention the 1.8 million people who die in the US every year. The US Food and Drug Administration is warning people not to use any THC-infused vaping product, especially those purchased on the street.

Last month, US President Donald Trump called for banning commercially flavoured vaping cartridges and other merchandise on September 24, after which other states followed. Massachusetts imposed a four-month ban on all vaping products and Massachusetts imposed a four-month ban on all vaping products on September 24, after which other states followed. Massachusetts imposed a four-month ban on all vaping products and another state Assemblyman Herbert Conaway, a physician, hopes to “recommend a ban on flavoured products to point-of-sale restrictions.”

Experts explore ways to counter fake news impact

By Joseph Varghese

Disinformation or fake news can have far-reaching consequences, said HE Sheikh Saif, Executive Director, Qatar Executive, at the Global Security Forum that concluded earlier this year. The event was attended by the delegation accompanying the QCB.

Sheikh Saif was speaking at a workshop during the Global Security Forum that concluded at the St Regis Doha. The two-day forum highlighted the importance of the information - and urged for measures to counter fake news.

Speaking at a workshop on Countering Disinformation, HE Sheikh Saif said, "A War of Words, Disinformation, Manipulation."

"We need to look at the context and the consequences leading to the Gulf dispute and fake news."

"Now, fake news is collectively seen as one of the most important issues in the region. This is not just a cyber issue but an economic and diplomatic one. We need strategic dialogue between global stakeholders, working in co-operation with the Interrelated with the Village. Also with global union federations. We need a new form of migrant worker protection." he added.

"We are looking at the situation in Syria and the recent Turkish moves. We shouldn't be trying to hold many people in the Middle East and the community is very important to Qatar."

"We have the most high-tech features in Qatar. Ourmou with a memento comes in the form of a solution to the crisis, we want to help solve the crisis, the very soon one. The crisis that is facing will be treated first, and then afterwards deal with the effects."

Qatar News Agency earlier this year launched 3G network, GigaBusiness, 5G, providing businesses, whether they are big or small, with a more relevant, faster, and safer way to interact with Vodafone Qatar’s customers.

Vodafone Qatar is delivering 5G to facilitate business innovation

By Mansudha Subba-al-Mukhtar

E xpecting to change the way businesses interact, Vodafone Qatar has launched its 5G network to 15 business customers this year. A high-powered 5G network VolgaDita Cloud based on Vodafone’s Liberty Global-sharing technology now connects 5G businesses to telecommunication services.

"We are very excited about the launch of our 5G network, and we are now looking at how we can best use this technology to benefit our customers," said Mansudha Subba-al-Mukhtar, Head of Sales and Marketing, Vodafone Qatar.

The 5G network is only available to businesses, and it is the first 5G network to be launched in Qatar. The network is expected to bring faster speeds and lower latency, which will allow businesses to use the technology for a variety of purposes, including data-intensive applications, such as video streaming and virtual reality.

The Qatar team had only two weeks of preparations before the event, and de la Puente’s regular partner on the World Beach Tour, Ahmad Tijan, also had to sit out the competition as he was recovering from a knee injury. “We need to switch. Nothing ever goes right,” the manager said. “We had a pretty good start and we were on track to win the second game of the day, but it was hurting in the final. We did not know which beach strengths we had in our lineup. We won some matches and lost some. It is hard to play against the Aussie players. We have to be more patient and keep the ball in play.”

The winning streak continued in the men’s volleyball, where the Americans won the gold medal. “We’re the number one team in the world right now, so we’re catching challenges, all around the world,” USA’s Casey Patterson said. “We’re the number one team in the world, so we’re catching challenges, all around the world,” USA’s Casey Patterson said. “We’re the number one team in the world, so we’re catching challenges, all around the world.”

The men’s bronze was claimed by Indonesia, who secured a 21-18, 13-21, 15-11 win over Brazil.

This is Indonesia’s first medal of the Games. We only have three bronze here and they are not enough for our fans, said Indonesian star player Ahmad Tijan. Earlier in the day, the women’s volleyball, which included both national teams, was won by Brazil, who defeated Argentina.
