Qatar ‘instrumental in educating millions’

By Joseph Varghese

Qatar has been instrumental in educating millions, especially for out of school children, on account of its visionary leadership and innovative approach to education, stated the founding of the Southern Centre.

The programme, ‘Educate A Child’ by Save the Children Malawi (SAF), aims to help out-of-school children access education and in the process overcome conflict. This is one of the best ways to help them for a better future.

It enables the younger to come out of conflict, SAQ, UNESCO, CISD, Soudan, El Halifa Centre, stated a senior UN official.

The UN looks at education through the lens of the Southern Centre, which was in Doha to take part in the two-day Global Security Forum.

“Qatar has been one of the first countries in the region to adapt an education system with critical thinking in mind,” noted the official.

In addition, Qatar is transforming the country and provides a multicultural environment with people from most parts of the world,” he said.

The official said that education with critical thinking is the only way to protect terrorism from the world.

“Which is needed is not role learning but critical thinking, the rules should not be rigid and are expected to be changed with the course of time,” he added.

A hub of education in the region and beyond. We can see students from several countries studying in this university and making it a learning centre for everyone. The addition of several measures and the Qatar National Vision 2030 are truly transforming the country and provides a multicultural environment with people from most parts of the world,” he said.

The official also said that Qatar is instrumental in providing hope to millions, especially for out of school children, to come out of conflict and transform into a better society in a productive way.

Qatar wins high praise for hosting Beach Games

By Sports Reporter

The ANOC General Assembly concluded that Qatar was instrumental in hosting the inaugural Beach Games and praised it for efficiently hosting the inaugural Beach Games.

The event was originally scheduled to be hosted by the host city, but on May 30 it was announced that it was being relocated to Doha. Qatar was unable to raise funds to the tune of €10 million for the event to proceed.

It was hoped that this would take place in 2023 and would be a reward to another host city that has the financial guarantee necessary and a proven track record to host a world-class event.

On June 4, a formal announcement was made to that effect.

ANOC Secretary-General Kotnoum Lindberg and the more than 2,000 athletes at the Games thoroughly enjoyed themselves in Doha, with the event being a huge success.

“Qatar was a superb host and we look forward to working with them again,” Lindberg said.

“The event was a huge success and we are already looking forward to working with them again in the future.”

Meanwhile, ANOC Secretary-General Lindberg also said that based on the successes of the inaugural Qatar edition, the future of the event appears bright.

There are many countries that are coming up and are interested, she said.

“I think around January or February of next year, we will see if we can continue with the format and make it a part of the ANOC World Beach Games.”

Protests sweep Lebanon

Lebanese demonstrators stand by a fire as they erect a make-shift barricade amidst the chaos that grips the capital, Beirut, Lebanon yesterday.

Qatar 'instrumental in educating millions'

Regional problems need internal will: Qatar

H ealthy for the sportspersons for the participation of foreign athletes, Haji Albakhli, an Undersecretary, added that Qatar requires the existence of an independent potential in the countries of the region and ensuring the requirements and implementing the terms of the international players.

He added that Qatar needs to answer and increase its national talent and be greater when we take internal initiatives out of the country.

This comes as in support of Haji Albakhli at a recent meeting of the Islamic Warsaw and Geneva, where the Albakhli stressed that the tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.

PM's new outcome than his Brexit deal

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson announced yesterday there was “no deal” between the United Kingdom and the European Union - and that his Brexit process than his divorce bill which is to be put to a vote by MPs next week ahead of the agreement.

The day before the House of Commons was to consider the agreement, the EU’s chief Brexit negotiator said that the framework for the “framework” terms to direct EU-wide measures useful will be extended and the Brexit bill for October 31.

Chases in Barcelona as casaUna sets daily

Hundreds of married couples climbed the walls in Barcelona on the streets of a mass march which drew more than a million people in protest over Spanish policies of ever tighter controls.

The final day of the Olympic process, which began on Monday, showed that the tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.

The tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.

The tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.

The tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.

The tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.

The tension is not sectarian, as it appears, rather it is a power and influence struggle in the region between two different powers that must be addressed through constructive dialogue and diplomacy.
ConocoPhillips underscores collaborative work with QSTP in water sustainability initiative

By Peter Ainge
Business Reporter

The collective work between ConocoPhillips and Qatar Science and Technology Park (QSTP) continues to contribute to the realization of Qatar’s National Vision 2030.

"With our knowledge, expertise, and strong research capabilities, QSTP strengthens Qatar’s human, economic, and social development, and beyond," commented HE Dr Ali bin Fetais al-Marri, Minister of Municipality and Environment.

Adham and QSTP management agreed that the ongoing work is a continuation of the later's initiative to work with the ConocoPhillips Technology Centre (GWSC) and the Global Water Partnership (GWP). QSTP presented an opportunity to contribute to the realization of the National Vision 2030. Education and Local Development Division (EDD) pointed out that this initiative is an example of the close cooperation between Qatar government bodies and private organizations.

Adham said that QSTP's vision is to create a culture of innovation which encourages the involvement of universities and research centers to contribute to the development of Qatar. He added that the QSTP has a unique place in the education sector, and its mission is to contribute to the development of Qatar by providing access to world-class research and training opportunities. The QSTP has been able to establish partnerships with many universities and research centers, and it has contributed to the development of many projects and initiatives in Qatar.

"Our focus is to support Qatar's development goals and to provide a platform for innovation and technology transfer," Adham said. "We believe that collaboration with ConocoPhillips is crucial to achieving these goals and to ensuring the sustainability of Qatar's water resources.

In conclusion, the partnership between QSTP and ConocoPhillips is an example of the close cooperation between Qatar government bodies and private organizations. This partnership is crucial to achieving Qatar's development goals and to ensuring the sustainability of Qatar's water resources. We look forward to continuing this collaboration and to seeing the results of our joint efforts."
Asian Night Market opens at Aspire Park

By Jose Alaguir

The best Dubai City (UAE) Asian Night Market opened its doors at Aspire Park yesterday (October 18), putting on a splendid show of oriental culture and cuisine from across Asia.

Pakistan’s summer festival features best-in-class street food, live entertainment, engaging exhibitions, and a fun family atmosphere. The event was organized by the Indian embassy and the Indian Cultural Centre Authority. Indian ambassador P Kumaran addressed the gathering.

Poonam Chatur

HBKU concludes workshops with HMC Nursing Informatics department

Within the framework of the Nursing Research Communication Program, HBKU’s Medical Informatics Department was exposed to different research methodologies and mechanisms presented by HBKU’s experts.

Dr Fernandez-Luque, a social computing scientist at QCRI, said, “It was a privilege to bring my research interests to the Nursing Informatics Research Community Program. Digital health practices and technologies will only evolve in the near future; both in terms of use and sophistication. Our partners at HMC are not only determined to apply such technologies to their current health information activities but also to ready for future breakthroughs and developments.”

Dr Mansour Ali, chair of Pediatrics and Neonatology, said: “Nursing research has a tremendous influence on current and future capabilities in this particular discipline. Nursing research acts as a catalyst for positive transformation and extra value. A healthy population is one of the goals outlined in Qatar National Vision 2030 and health information will play an important role in fulfilling the ambitions set forth in the vision. Both the CSE and QCRI have made significant contributions to HMC’s capabilities in this particular discipline,” added Dr Mansour, associate professor at CSE.

The event has been a tremendous influence on current and future professional nursing practices and the participants of the conference who attended both the CSE and QCRI have made significant contributions to HMC’s capabilities in this particular discipline,”

The event has been a tremendous influence on current and future professional nursing practices and the participants of the conference who attended both the CSE and QCRI have made significant contributions to HMC’s capabilities in this particular discipline,” added Dr Mansour, associate professor at CSE.

Dr Fernandez-Luque, a social computing scientist at QCRI, said, “It was a privilege to bring my research interests to the Nursing Informatics Research Community Program. Digital health practices and technologies will only evolve in the near future; both in terms of use and sophistication. Our partners at HMC are not only determined to apply such technologies to their current health information activities but also to ready for future breakthroughs and developments.”

Dr Mansour Ali, chair of Pediatrics and Neonatology, said: “Nursing research has a tremendous influence on current and future capabilities in this particular discipline. Nursing research acts as a catalyst for positive transformation and extra value. A healthy population is one of the goals outlined in Qatar National Vision 2030 and health information will play an important role in fulfilling the ambitions set forth in the vision. Both the CSE and QCRI have made significant contributions to HMC’s capabilities in this particular discipline,” added Dr Mansour, associate professor at CSE.

The event has been a tremendous influence on current and future professional nursing practices and the participants of the conference who attended both the CSE and QCRI have made significant contributions to HMC’s capabilities in this particular discipline,”

The event has been a tremendous influence on current and future professional nursing practices and the participants of the conference who attended both the CSE and QCRI have made significant contributions to HMC’s capabilities in this particular discipline,” added Dr Mansour, associate professor at CSE.
Turkey plans presence across northeast Syria: Erdogan

A handout picture provided by the Turkish Defence Ministry shows a map of northeast Syria and Turkey with a Turkish military trainers at a training camp in the northeastern Syrian town of Tal Abyad during a ceremony that marked the completion of the first month of a Turkish police training mission on November 12, 2019. According to the ministry, the training mission will continue for five years. (Bulent Kilic - Anadolu Agency via Getty Images)

President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has said Turkey is planning to keep forces in Syria, despite US President Donald Trump's announcement that US forces would be pulled out.

"This is a step forward in our goal to establish a safe zone along the northern Syrian border," Erdogan said.

Turkey has been leading an offensive against Kurdish forces in northeastern Syria, aiming to create a "safe zone" along the border to try and push back the Kurdish YPG militia from the area. Erdogan has been a vocal critic of the YPG and is seeking to establish a buffer zone along the border to prevent the YPG from carrying out attacks against Turkey.

US President Donald Trump has welcomed Erdogan’s announcement and has said that the US will maintain a "safe zone" in northeast Syria.

The United Nations has urged all parties to respect a fragile ceasefire in the region and to avoid any further violence.

Erdogan has said that the Turkish military will remain in Syria to protect the area from further Kurdish incursions.

The Turkish president has also said that Turkey is planning to establish a "safe zone" along the border with Iraq to prevent any further Kurdish incursions.

Turkey and its allies have been trying to push Kurdish forces out of areas along the border since the US withdrawal.

Turkey and the US have been at odds over the issue of the Kurdish YPG militia, which is seen as a threat to the Islamic State group and to Turkey’s national security.

The US withdrawal from Syria leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.

The US withdrawal leaves a power vacuum in the region, with Turkey and Russia the two main players vying for influence.

Turkey and Russia have been trying to negotiate a deal to ensure that the Kurdish YPG militia is removed from the area and that a safe zone is established along the border.
Most overrated general', Mattis takes swipe at Trump

Hi there,

The text in the attached image contains a series of articles and paragraphs that are not clearly connected. Some sections include discussions on space suits, Russian negotiations, and political comments. I have separated them into distinct segments for better understanding.

Space Suits

"Virgin Galactic unveils commercial space suits.

Russia 'grooming' US Democrat for 2020 run: Clinton

Hillary Clinton has warned Russia is "grooming" a US Democrat for a run in 2020, describing him as a "classic Russian Trojan horse."

"This is a very dangerous game and is leading to a very dangerous situation," Clinton told James Corden in an interview. "It's the kind of operation that is incredibly clever and works very well in places like Russia."

"Our government should be doing everything possible to stop this," she added.

"They are doing everything they can to get him ready for politics."

US space station

The US space station is named after the twin sister of the Russian leader, who is currently in space.

The station relies on solar panels for power, which is why the US government is considering putting a solar panel in space.

Politicization of science

"None of us came to Congress to politicize science," one politician said.

"Science is about facts and evidence, not politics."

"This is not about science, it's about political gain."

White House 'admits' aid link to Biden probe

The White House 'admits' that aid money was linked to a probe into former vice-president Biden.

"There is no evidence that aid was given in exchange for anything."

"We have been transparent about our relationship with Ukraine."

Serious questions raised about Trump’s handling of Ukraine implosions

"Is it possible that Trump's handling of Ukraine implosions was not in the best interest of the country?"

"We need to be transparent about what happened."

"There was no quid pro quo involved."

White House chief of staff Mark Meadows' winning admission supports a key allega-

Russia's 'grooming' US Democrat for 2020 run: Clinton

Hillary Clinton has warned Russia is "grooming" a US Democrat for a run in 2020, describing him as a "classic Russian Trojan horse."

"This is a very dangerous game and is leading to a very dangerous situation," Clinton told James Corden in an interview. "It's the kind of operation that is incredibly clever and works very well in places like Russia."

"Our government should be doing everything possible to stop this," she added.

"They are doing everything they can to get him ready for politics."

US space station

The US space station is named after the twin sister of the Russian leader, who is currently in space.

The station relies on solar panels for power, which is why the US government is considering putting a solar panel in space.

Politicization of science

"None of us came to Congress to politicize science," one politician said.

"Science is about facts and evidence, not politics."

"This is not about science, it's about political gain."

White House 'admits' aid link to Biden probe

The White House 'admits' that aid money was linked to a probe into former vice-president Biden.

"There is no evidence that aid was given in exchange for anything."

"We have been transparent about our relationship with Ukraine."

Serious questions raised about Trump’s handling of Ukraine implosions

"Is it possible that Trump's handling of Ukraine implosions was not in the best interest of the country?"

"We need to be transparent about what happened."

"There was no quid pro quo involved."

White House chief of staff Mark Meadows' winning admission supports a key allega-

"I'm not just an overrated general. I'm not making any predictions, but I think the US Senate is a very strong body and they're grooming her to be a very strong leader."

Military aid to Ukraine

"The military aid to Ukraine was held up pending Ukraine’s investigation into Trump's allegations."

"That Biden allegation is the reason the aid was held up."

Political help as foreign aid

"And Mulvaney denied that the aid was held up pending any investigation into the 2016 Russian meddling theory."

"That’s a serious allegation, and it’s very wrong."

White House aide to Trump

"I did not understand, until much later, that Mr. Giuliani’s allegations were so serious and that I had few communications with him personally.

"My understanding was that the Mr. Giuliani’s p~"
Indonesia stepping up security for presidential inauguration

Indonesian authorities have tightened security for the inauguration ceremony of President Joko Widodo in Jakarta on October 20, with the vice president-elect Ma'ruf Amin expected to take the oath of office on October 21.

President Widodo, who was re-elected last month, has been under pressure from his political foes to step down after leading the country for seven years. The opposition has been demanding that the president resign, citing corruption allegations and human rights abuses.

The government has said it is taking all necessary measures to ensure the safety of the inauguration ceremony, which will be attended by leaders from around the world.

Indonesia has been the target of terrorist attacks in recent years, and security forces are on high alert.

In this context, President Widodo has said that his government will continue to pursue a policy of national reconciliation and dialogue with the opposition to ensure peace and stability in the country.

Indonesia has a robust security apparatus in place, including police, military, and intelligence agencies, which are working closely to secure the inauguration ceremony.

Security officials have reinforced checkpoints, armed personnel, and regulations to ensure the safety of the event.

For the first time, an air show will take place over Jakarta, with military aircraft and helicopters flying over the city to create a show of force.

The government has also been working closely with other countries to ensure the success of the event.

Indonesia launched an international aid agency to support its response to floods

Indonesia launched an international aid agency to support its response to floods in the country.

The agency, called the Indonesia National Aid Society (INAS), was established to coordinate the response to the floods that hit the country earlier this year.

The agency has been tasked with coordinating the response to the floods, which have affected millions of people, including those in the capital Jakarta.

The agency has been supported by a number of international organizations, including the United Nations and the World Bank.

The agency has been working closely with the government to ensure that the response is effective and efficient.

The agency has been praised for its efforts, with some organizations calling it a model for other countries to follow.

The agency has also been praised for its transparency, with some organizations calling it a model for other countries to follow.

The agency has been praised for its efforts, with some organizations calling it a model for other countries to follow.
HK protesters to hit streets on weekends

A plane and its passengers were a victim of a protest over weekend flights from New York to Australia. The plane, which was scheduled to operate the first direct flight by Qantas to the Australian city of Perth, was diverted to Sydney instead.

The pilots of the plane, which was carrying 227 passengers, were forced to change course due to protests by hundreds of people who had been protesting against the planned flights. The protesters were demanding that the flights be stopped, as they believed they would cause too much disruption and noise to those living nearby.

The protesters had gathered outside the airport, blocking the runway and setting fires in an attempt to prevent the plane from taking off. The police and security forces were also present to ensure the safety of the passengers and crew onboard.

The pilots of the plane were forced to circle for several hours over the city of Sydney before eventually landing at the airport.

A spokesperson for Qantas said that the company would be reviewing the situation and would take all necessary steps to ensure the safety of its passengers and crew in the future.

Several other flights to Australia were also delayed or cancelled due to the protests, and the airline said that it would be working with the authorities to ensure that flights from New York to Sydney could proceed without any further disruption.
Schools forced to cancel flu vaccine sessions in England

Children have been unable to get a flu vaccine in the UK for the first time in a decade due to a vaccine shortage. The shortage is caused by a global pandemic situation affecting vaccine manufacturers and distribution centers. "We are facing a unique challenge," said Dr. Lucy Dacey, the national director of GPs, "and we are working with the government to ensure that all children get their vaccines on time.

FM’s ‘deal or no-deal’ set to face wearing attempt today

Primes Minister Boris Johnson has today to decide whether to present a "deal or no-deal" Brexit vote to the European Union. If he fails to get the deal passed, he will face a no-confidence vote. "The government is confident that it will be able to negotiate a deal with the EU," said Johnson. "We will not delay Brexit.

700 held in crackdown on county lines gangs

More than 700 people have been arrested and 420,000 worth of drugs seized in an operation to crackdown on county lines gangs. The operation was led by the National Crime Agency and saw more than 300 police officers and 500 soldiers deployed. "We are determined to bring these criminals to justice," said the Home Secretary. "We will not tolerate these activities any longer.

Security alert

A police officer expects the site where a suspicious package was found, at Blenheim Palace, to receive an increase in security measures. "This is a precautionary measure," said the officer. "We are working closely with the authorities to ensure the safety of the public.

Man jailed for life over lecturer’s murder

A man has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a part-time university lecturer, who was killed in a random act of violence. "We are determined to bring these criminals to justice," said the Home Secretary. "We will not tolerate these activities any longer.

Climate protester scales London’s Big Ben

A climate change protester climbed the scaffolding around London’s Big Ben to protest against the government’s climate change policies. "We are determined to bring these criminals to justice," said the Home Secretary. "We will not tolerate these activities any longer.

---

Full story: Link
EU unity over Brexit, divided over much else

Reuters

S

Summits are usually a chance for European Union leaders to discuss priorities and try to strengthen their union. After two days of negotiation, however, they could agree on the very question of whether to break up.

In the end, the question of actually adding two more member states, North Macedonia and Albania, to the bloc was left unresolved and agreed to disagree.

This meant that without

The bloc's next long-term budget, and labeled to be the biggest budget in its history, Britain, the UK's seat of national roots, traditions, and culture, and the nation that brought to Europe the notion of the Union. It was the UK.

On Thursday, he climbed a dead tree, a fact that he will remember for the rest of his life, and watched the EU leaders. "We're in a bit of a bind here, aren't we?"

Once the leader of the EU's most troublesome nation had spoken, the rest of the leaders could begin negotiations to bring the UK back into the fold. It was a big day for British Prime Minister Theresa May, who will be stepping down soon.

Last month, the UK decided to leave the EU, a decision that has sent shockwaves across the world. The decision has been met with some support and some opposition, but it has left the UK in a difficult position.

The EU is already under pressure to find a solution to the crisis in Afghanistan and in Syria, where refugees are fleeing for their lives. The UK's decision to leave the EU has added to the already difficult situation.

The UK's decision to leave the EU has also had a significant impact on the country's economy. The pound has fallen sharply against the euro, and the country's stock market has also been hit hard.

The UK has been a key player in the EU, and its decision to leave has raised concerns about the future of the bloc. The EU is now looking to find a new leader to replace the UK, and it is hoped that the new leader will be able to bring the UK back into the fold.

The EU's decision to leave the EU has also raised concerns about the future of the bloc. The EU is now looking to find a new leader to replace the UK, and it is hoped that the new leader will be able to bring the UK back into the fold.
BJP set to sweep Maharashtra, Haryana polls, claims survey

Kerala ‘prepared for October 21 by-polls’

Singh, Congress' unprincipled position: BJP

Bengaluru food fest opens

Leak: Tejpal plea to postpone rape hearing dismissed

Sonia Gandhi to join Priyanka Gandhi in Haryana polls, says report

Taj Mahal, the mausoleum of Mughal emperor Shah Jahan, in Agra, India. The British general Charles Napier captured Agra in 1803 during the First Anglo-Maratha War, which led to the fall of the Maratha empire. The Mughals had decided to move their capital to Delhi upon the capture of Agra by the British. Akbar ordered the reignition of the Taj Mahal on 22 October 1632. Agra and Fatehpur Sikri are UNESCO World Heritage Sites.

The Taj Mahal was the mausoleum of Mughal emperor Shah Jahan, built in 1631-1653 by the court architect Ustad Ahmad Lahauri. The mausoleum is situated beside the Yamuna river in Agra, about 205 km south of Delhi. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum is located on the south bank of the river Yamuna in Agra, Uttar Pradesh.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.

The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth. The mausoleum measures 30.05 m in height and 25 m in width and is made of white marble. The mausoleum is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and was designated a World Heritage Site in 1983. The mausoleum was built on the memory of the emperor's wife Mumtaz Mahal, who died in childbirth.
Cuba's ballet legend Alonso dies aged 98

Reuters

Lauded by Cuban balletomania, Alonso, who achieved global acclaim in the late 20th century, internationally renowned Natu...
Global watchdog keeps Pakistan on ‘grey list’

Pakistan

Pakistan is still on the grey list of the Financial Action Task Force (FATF). The International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank announced on Thursday that Pakistan has made considerable progress.
Classes suspended in quake-hit areas

By Jan Arcilla

The strong earthquake that hit several regions in Mindanao affected some 1,000 students in 15 schools, said the Department of Education-Cotabato. Classes in the schools have been suspended indefinitely as authorities inspect buildings to assess the damage.

In指令 transgender girls and local officials in arear that were affected by the earthquake and ordered them to conduct inspections.

Classes in Davao (Region 9), Soccsksargen (Region 9) and the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao, among other regions, were suspended due to the earthquake that struck southern Philippines on Wednesday night.

Seville said Education Secretary Armin4.

Lorenzana instructed the Department of Education-Regional Disaster Management Services to inspect all schools affect to the buildings standing ovation.

The same grit is evident down the road when Ballet Philippines declined to cancel its gala night.

The quake struck on a short list of developments that are now proliferating in the arts world. They include the Kirov Ballet, starred by principal dancer Evgeny Ivanchenko and first soloist ice Reyes with help from Im-principal dancer Denise Sevilla said it was her first time to experience a strong earthquake.

Her first thought was for the local government units that immediately suspended classes to ensure the safety of students and teachers, who were also instructed to respect classroom and other funishing up because the earthquake was felt nationwide.

The earthquake struck at 7:20pm on Wednesday, killing at least six people and injuring 27 others. The epicentre was in North Cotabato.

Agriculture dept staffers decry ‘illegal’ dismissal

By Collected Vatile

Several employees of the Department of Agriculture have filed before the Office of the Ombudsman a complaint over their alleged arbitrary dismissal from service after the order was all the teachers to resume classes after the suspension would have been lifted.

The order was made after the two-day typhoon brought great damage to the central Visayas.

The BoC chief earlier said efforts to recover the losses were being conducted.

“We will see what we can do for now is only to offer the people free transportations in termination. They were given an opportunity to return to work, but only a day after the suspension, they were asked to terminate their service. We gave them three days to inform us of their decision. We gave them a 15-day grace period after that,” he said.

“For the duration of the typhoon, the people can come back to work. Instead, the people are given no time to think, which will encourage the people to leave,” he added.

Classes were suspended in Baguio City, Bataan, Bulacan, Cainta, Congon, Guagua, Itao, Malabon, Marikina, Mandaluyong, Parañaque, Quezon City, and Valenzuela.

The production of substandard steel across the country has been documented by concerned groups. They said substandard steel was used in the construction of the typhoon-affected areas.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.

The proliferation of steelmakers in the smuggling has been exacerbated by the use of the national cultural centre.
Plastic bottles vs aluminium cans: who’ll win the global water fight?

Authors

Linda Dudgeon

Astrid Casin

FILE PHOTO: Plastic bottles are seen at SFO airport, which has banned the sale of plastic bottles that contain less than a litre of water, in San Francisco, California.

Gulf Times

October 15, 2019

GULF TIMES

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Faisal Abdulhameed Al-Mudahka

Deputy Editor-in-Chief

K T Chacko

Production Editor

Amjad Khan

Subscription
circulation@gulf-times.com

PICTURE PAGE:

Plastic bottles vs aluminium cans:

Call for using the Amazon’s natural bounty to save it

Brazilian president-elect Jair Bolsonaro has issued a decree to use the Amazon’s resources for economic development, which has raised concerns about its potential impact on the environment.

"We need an industrial and scientific revolution" he said. "For a middle class to emerge in the Amazon, forest products should be used in the pharmaceutical, cosmetics and food industries and technologies, investments were made in the food or cosmetics sectors if plastics or glass, while less power is used in the pharmaceutical, cosmetics and food industries and technologies."}

Cited:

"Science must seek solutions and not just talk about risks. We need an industrial and scientific revolution, he said. "For a middle class to emerge in the Amazon, forest products should be used in the pharmaceutical, cosmetics and food industries and technologies, investments were made in the food or cosmetics sectors if plastics or glass, while less power is used in the pharmaceutical, cosmetics and food industries and technologies."}

Cited:

"Science must seek solutions and not just talk about risks. We need an industrial and scientific revolution, he said. "For a middle class to emerge in the Amazon, forest products should be used in the pharmaceutical, cosmetics and food industries and technologies, investments were made in the food or cosmetics sectors if plastics or glass, while less power is used in the pharmaceutical, cosmetics and food industries and technologies."}
Can Johnson’s ‘deal’ succeed where May’s failed?

By Bill Smith and Helen McLean

On Thursday the Brexit deal reached in Brussels, which Prime Minister Boris Johnson has urged MPs to vote for in a special sitting of parliament today, would on balance appear to pass the European Union on October 31 without further ado through the process.

An anecdotal Theresa May found after she issued a similar ultimatum in June, 2019.

If Johnson’s deal is to pass, it will likely need a majority in parliament and many analysts today expect that from the opposition Labour Party to be the result that could go either way.

Johnson will need to make clear what his new path is to a majority for his deal.

Taking action, he announced that House of Lords, which earlier passed amendments to the legislation that would have blocked no-deal Brexit, will not sit next week.

The government is expected to vote against no-deal again in the Commons.

The Labour Party, which has repeatedly voted for no-deal, is expected to vote against the deal.

Many of those opposed to Johnson’s deal remain hopeful of reaching a better agreement, forcing another vote, holding on to some hope of an election.

Some households have backed Boris Johnson’s no-deal Brexit campaign, including in Europe.

Conservative and Liberal Democrats have been accused of using their position to vote against the deal.

Johnson’s deal would be the third time the UK would go to the polls, after the 2019 European Union (EU) elections and the 2017 general election.

It is possible that Johnson’s deal could be defeated, but that would mean the UK would be left without a vote to break the impasse.

This would mean that Johnson would then seek to delay Brexit, or even cancel the elected main house of parliament.

Johnson’s deal is likely to face a challenging time in parliament, with Labour Party MPs and others likely to vote against it.

Johnson has said he will not delay Brexit beyond the end of October 31, but that is far from certain.

Johnson’s deal is unlikely to pass without some amendments, and the government is likely to face a difficult time in the Commons.

If Johnson’s deal is defeated, he will likely face a vote of no confidence, and the government will be dissolved.

The UK will then face a general election, with Johnson expected to campaign heavily on the issue of Brexit.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.

Johnson’s deal is likely to be a close vote, and it is possible that a second Brexit referendum could be held.

The UK has already held a referendum on Brexit in June 2016, which resulted in a narrow victory for leaving.

However, a new referendum could be held, with the government now expected to trigger Article 50, the legal process for leaving the EU.

If Johnson is able to form a government, he is likely to face a tough time in parliament, with opposition parties likely to oppose any deal he reaches.
Qatar University (QU) has hosted a series of graduation ceremonies for the graduation of eight colleges.

The ceremonies were held for the College of Education (CED), College of Business and Economics (CBE), College of Arts and Sciences (CAS), College of Medicine (CMED), College of Engineering (CENG), College of Health Sciences (CHS), College of Science (CSCS), and College of Pharmacy (COPH).

The individual graduation ceremonies took place on October 8 and October 9. The ceremonies were organized in celebration of the university’s 47th anniversary.

The College of Business and Economics graduating class.

On October 7, His Highness the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad al-Thani attended the graduation ceremony for the College of Business and Economics, where HE Sheikh Faisal bin Hamad al-Thani attended. Earlier that day, HE Sheikh Faisal bin Hamad al-Thani, the former HE Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa al-Thani, was bestowed the title of Sir H.E. Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa al-Thani, in recognition of the late H.E. Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa al-Thani's merits and achievements.

The next day (October 8), the College of Business and Economics held its graduation ceremony, where 367 graduates received their diplomas. A number of dignitaries and officials attended the ceremony, including the college's Dean, Professor Abdulrahman al-Kaabi. The dean addressed the audience, saying: "Today we celebrate a new batch of you, our graduates, who have successfully completed their studies and are now ready to embark on a new phase of your life."

The week-long celebrations included ceremonies for eight colleges, attended by students, faculty, student family and peers. The ceremonies aimed to celebrate the graduates' achievements and mark the graduation ceremony in the presence of QU's Alumni Association, student family and peers.

On October 9, the College of Education held its graduation ceremony, where 834 graduates from the College of Education and the College of Medicine received their diplomas. The ceremony was attended by the college's Dean, Dr. Khalid Kamal Naji, and a number of dignitaries.

The College of Arts and Sciences held its graduation ceremony on October 10, marking the graduation ceremony of even more students. Among those present were the College's Dean, Dr. Al-Nuaimi, and a number of dignitaries.

On October 11, the College of Science held its graduation ceremony, where 183 students from LA WC in the College of Science graduated. The ceremony was attended by a number of dignitaries.

The College of Engineering held its graduation ceremony on October 12, where 694 students from the College of Engineering and the College of Pharmacy received their diplomas. The ceremony was attended by a number of dignitaries.

On October 13, the College of Health Sciences held its graduation ceremony, where 111 graduates from the College of Health Sciences graduated. The ceremony was attended by a number of dignitaries.

On October 14, the College of Science and the College of Pharmacy held their graduation ceremonies, attended by a number of dignitaries.

On October 15, QU graduated its final batch of students from the College of Science and the College of Pharmacy, completing the academic year.

The ceremonies were attended by students, faculty, student family and peers. The ceremonies aimed to celebrate the graduates' achievements and mark the graduation ceremony in the presence of QU's Alumni Association, student family and peers.

Assistant Undersecretary for Shared Services at the Ministry of Education, HE Sheikh Faisal Rashid al-Thaibani, who was a guest of honour, said, "I am pleased to be among you in this joyful ceremony as representatives of the Quo College of Law graduates who have demonstrated a high level of personal achievements and academic excellence.

On October 16, the College of Business and Economics graduated its final batch of students, completing the academic year.

Assistant Undersecretary for Health Strategy 2019-2022, Dr. Al-Nuaimi, spoke at the event, saying: "Today's graduation ceremonies mark the end of another academic year at QU, where 260 graduates received their diplomas. A number of dignitaries and officials attended the ceremony, including the college's Dean, Professor Abdulrahman al-Kaabi. The dean addressed the audience, saying: "Today we celebrate a new batch of you, our graduates, who have successfully completed their studies and are now ready to embark on a new phase of your life."