Arab audit body executive board meeting kicks off

HE the President of the State Audit Bureau Sheikh Bandar bin Saud al-Thani inaugurated yesterday the 58th meeting of the Executive Council of the Arab Organisation of Supreme Audit Institutions (Arabosai), hosted by the State Audit Bureau for two days, with the participation of the heads of supreme audit institutions of the Member States of Arabosai Executive Board.

At the outset, HE Sheikh Bandar welcomed the heads and members of the participating delegations. He pointed out that the meetings of the Executive Council and the General Assembly of the Arabosai are an important opportunity to put cooperation with the supreme audit institutions and determine the future directions of the work of the organisation, and prospects for development and advancement.

He said that, “through the follow-up of the organisation’s activity, we have observed over the past few years a significant development in the performance of supreme audit institutions thanks to the cooperation of several factors, the most important of which is the increasing openness to the international and regional environment, and the sincere desire of the leadership of the organisation in the renewal and development, and keeping pace with developments at the international level.”

HE the president stressed that in light of the great challenges facing the supreme audit institutions in the Arab region, it is imperative for supreme audit institutions to develop their working methods, methodologies and techniques to meet these challenges and keep abreast of the latest developments in the supervisory work.

HE Sheikh Bandar appreciated the prominent role of Arabosai in assisting the member institutions in building their institutional and professional capacities to face the challenges and improve their performance. He called on all members to continue to work to raise the professionalism of the organisation through the adoption of the reforms, stressing the determination of the State Audit Bureau in Qatar to make all necessary efforts to upgrade the capabilities of the organisation.

Qatar Museums’ public art to commemorate blockade anniversary

Qatar Museums (QM) has launched an open call for artists based in the country to propose monumental art, which will mark the third anniversary of the blockade of Qatar next year. As part of the blockade, an open call for artists was imposed on Qatar on June 5, 2017, marked the start of a three-year economic and diplomatic standoff.

Qatar Museums today announced the shortlist of proposals, which will be on display at the National Convention Centre through a temporary installation and national identity.

The winning proposal will be announced on December 7.

"Throughout history, art has been used as a means of social and political resistance. The same has been true for Qatar, where artists have used their art to express their resistance against the blockade," said al-Ishaq.

"This is an incredible opportunity for artists and we encourage everyone to participate in this momentous event," he added.

Participating artists could be at any stage of their career, and in the same spirit, QM’s Head of Public Art Abdulrahman Ahmad said: "We are proud to provide platforms for artists to express their ideas, emotions and creativity."

Qatar Charity (QC) has handed over the third house, which was repaired as part of its “Renovation Challenge” project that aims to rehabilitate the homes of low-income families and improve their living conditions.

The maintenance and furnishing works were completed successfully with the funding from the Ideal Solutions Company, of which many employees volunteered to renovate the house. The funding from the company covered the complete maintenance of the house belonging to a low-income family. The maintenance includes electricity, coating, plumbing and air conditioning, as well as providing complete kitchen equipment such as refrigerator, cooker, and cabinets.

Community Cooperation

Eng. Mahmoud Amer, Chairman of Ideal Solutions Company, expressed his pride in completing the maintenance and restoration of the house. He praised the Renovation Challenge programme, which aims to create a suitable living environment for families with low income, improve their social status, and bring the joy of living a dignified life to them, in addition to promoting the values of social solidarity and community cooperation among people in Qatar.

The Ideal Solutions Company participates in such community activities as part of its corporate social responsibility (CSR) strategy to give back to the society in which it operates, added the chairperson.

He further called on all companies to establish community partnerships to ensure a dignified living for all, applauding Qatar Charity for its efforts, assistance, programs, and initiatives to support low-income families.

The renovation project continues throughout the year by repairing and furnishing old houses adequately after studying the cases by the aid committee.

Volunteers expressed their happiness with the successful completion of the maintenance of the house, as well as the beneficiary thanked benefactors and Qatar Charity for renovating the house, which contributed to living a dignified life.

Previous Achievements

During the holy month of Ramadan, Qatar Charity completed the renovation, maintenance and furnishing of two homes, which were sponsored by Qatar Power Engineering and Contracting Company and Vodafone and handed over.

Qatar Charity appreciated the significant role of the Ideal Solutions Company in funding the third house within the “Renovation Challenge” project as part the corporate social responsibility. It also lavished praise on youth volunteers, who contributed to the success of the project by working directly, or volunteering to raise funds for it, in addition to publicizing the project to garner support for it.

The idea of the “Restoration Challenge” programme is mainly based on the competition between companies to carry out the maintenance and renovation of low-income families’ houses.

Qatar National Library to host first JLF Doha

The Jaipur Literature Festival in India, which started in the 1990s, has transformed itself into a global literary phenomenon, having hosted more than 10,000 speakers and welcomed over a million book-lovers from the world over. The first JLF Doha, scheduled to be held at the Museum of Islamic Art Park, it has been announced.

"This is a significant milestone in our journey to create a global festival," said Sanjoy K Roy, managing director of the festival, in an initiative aimed at promoting a culture of reading and writing in Qatar. "We hope JLF Doha will create a platform for ideas and cultures to interact and co-exist, and we are confident that this festival will encourage the local and international community to come together and share their thoughts and perspectives with the world."

The festival will feature a diverse line-up of speakers and authors, including authors, critics, filmmakers, and journalists from Qatar and around the world. Special emphasis will be placed on local talent, with a significant number of Qatari writers, artists, and thinkers being featured. The festival will also host a series of workshops, masterclasses, and literary discussions, providing a platform for speakers and audiences to engage in meaningful conversations and debates on a wide range of topics.

The schedule of events is expected to be announced shortly, and tickets will be available for purchase soon. The festival is set to take place in December, with the exact dates to be confirmed in due course.

Embassy launches ‘Breakfast Made in Italy’ initiative in time for ‘Hospitality Qatar’

The Italian embassy in Doha launched a week-long initiative in time for its participation in the upcoming Hospitality Qatar exhibition and convention from November 12-14.

The initiative kicked off on Monday with the launch of an exhibition at the Italian booth at Hall 2 during the event. It aimed to promote Italian cuisine and culture to the Qatari audience.

Italian ambassador Francesco Sani said in a press conference yesterday that "Breakfast Made in Italy" is a vibrant and healthy selection of traditional Italian products, equipment, and services.

"Breakfast is a daily moment that unites people around the world, providing a chance to start the day together. The Italian embassy is pleased to bring this initiative to Qatar to showcase the rich tradition and culture of Italian breakfast, which is a symbol of hospitality," he added.

"We are excited to participate in Hospitality Qatar and look forward to sharing the unique Italian breakfast experience with the Qatari audience. This initiative aims to promote Italian cuisine and culture, and we hope it will help strengthen the ties between Italy and Qatar," said the ambassador.

On Wednesday, 27 November, the embassy will host a special event featuring Italian cuisine, with a special performance by a local artist. A variety of Italian dishes will be served, including traditional Italian breakfast such as cappuccino, croissant, and il nero.
Sixth Qatar British festival is launched

By Joseph Virgohs

The sixth Qatar British Festival, which is being held in Al-Ahli Hospital, offers a variety of events for the public. The festival aims to provide an extensive and fully accessible program within the medical field.

Dr. Kivela, a specialist in the field of orthopedic surgery, said:

“TFCC tear is one of the common injuries in athletes who regularly rotate or twist their forearm. This injury is often due to a sudden movement and can affect the cartilage in your ulna and wrist bones in your forearm. To treat the TFCC tear of this patient, we conducted a mini-incision, ‘he explained. ‘It stabilises your forearm and helps you to perform daily activities around your wrist. In some cases, doctors may need to perform surgery on the TFCC, which can take up to 12 weeks before your wrist regains its function. The unit will also be located at Al-Ahli Hospital during the coming month, a press statement added.”

Dr. Ehsan also encouraged the public to consult an orthopaedic surgeon if they experience any pain or pressure on their wrists.

People and Place - will address the impact of ‘place’ or people, and help them to build a strong and lasting relationship between the UK and Qatar. Dr. Kivela said: “It is a celebration of our cultures and programmes, it provides a unique and essential way of bringing people together. People and Place is delighted that we are holding the festival for sixth time.”

The festival will conclude with the Qatar-CE Alumni Awards, a celebration of the outstanding contributions in Qatar, education, and tourism. It will also include “Elgar Enigma Variation” award-winning concert with Qatar’s most famous few voices as Edgard Elmar, Elgar Evaristics and Violin Gestures, with the Qatar Harmony Orchestra. The “Triumph Partner” of the Sixth Qatar British Festival is the Legends Partner of Qatar Museums, the “Strategic Community Partner is Manama Private Hospital” and the “Media Partner” of the festival.

Surgeons perform rare wrist operation at Al-Ahli Hospital

Al-Ahli Hospital has said surgeons, at the Orthopedic and Trauma Surgery Department have performed a minimally-invasive surgery which is a ‘rare one to be done in a private hospital’. For a Triangular Fibrocartilage Complex (TFCC) tear, it is usually done through a large incision consisting of a series of small vertical wound.

Zakat Fund provides over QR16.4mn in tuition fees

The Zakat Fund of the Ministry of Awqaf and Islamic Affairs has provided QR16.4mn in aid for students enrolled in private schools and universities for the academic year 2019-2020. The Zakat Fund administration distributed this amount to eligible families to support them in their study-related expenses.

According to a statement released by the Zakat Fund administration, the amount was provided to 13,553 students for the academic year 2019-2020. The fund calculated the amount based on the maximum tuition fees charged by private schools and universities for students enrolled in the academic year 2019-2020, taking into account variations in the fees charged by different institutions.

The fund noted that the amount was calculated based on the principle of providing support to eligible families according to their needs. The fund also highlighted its commitment to providing support to students from low-income families to enable them to continue their education.

The Zakat Fund administration stated that it would continue to provide support to eligible families in the future to ensure that they have access to quality education.

HMC introduces new treatment for autoimmune disorder

The Department of Dermatology and Venereology at Hamad Medical Corporation (HMC) has introduced a new treatment for certain skin conditions, particularly alopecia areata.

Dr. Murti Husein, a consultant dermatologist at HMC, explained that the new treatment, facitinib, is a selective inhibitor of the Janus kinase-STAT pathway and has been approved by the US Food and Drug Administration.

The treatment has shown promising results in clinical trials, with improvements in hair regrowth observed in many patients. Dr. Husein noted that the treatment is particularly effective for patients with alopecia areata, a condition characterized by the loss of hair in patches.

The treatment involves taking a pill once daily, and patients are monitored for adverse effects. The treatment is not suitable for all patients, and those with certain medical conditions may need to avoid it.

Dr. Husein emphasized the importance of discussing the treatment options with a dermatologist before starting any new medication, to ensure that it is the right choice for each patient.

The new treatment is not available on the Qatar National Health Insurance program, but patients may be eligible for support through the Ministry of Education and Higher Education's Student Assistance Office.
Qatari students are welcome to invest in Serbia: envoy

By Ayman Adly

A memorandum of understanding (MoU) was signed in Delhi to formalise the relationship between Serbia and Qatar as comprehensive strategic partners. The MoU was signed by the ambassador of the Republic of Serbia in India, Dr. Djordje Dzurko, and the ambassador of the State of Qatar to India, Dr. Ayman Adly. It aims to promote and strengthen the economic, social, cultural, and educational cooperation between the two countries.

The MoU is an instrument to formalise the relationship between the two countries, says Dzurko. It has a long-term perspective, he says, and is aimed at promoting mutual understanding and cooperation in various fields.

Among the priorities of the MoU, Dzurko says, is the promotion of cultural and educational cooperation. The two countries will work together to organise academic and cultural events, including exhibitions, seminars, and conferences. The MoU also includes provisions for cooperation in the field of science and technology, including the exchange of research findings and the establishment of joint research projects. The two countries will also work together to promote tourism and investments.

The MoU is a step forward in strengthening the ties between Serbia and Qatar, says Dzurko. It is a recognition of the importance of the relationship between the two countries and provides a legal basis for the implementation of the agreed projects.

The MoU was signed in the presence of representatives from the governments of both countries, including ministers and officials. The signing ceremony was followed by a bilateral meeting between the ambassadors of the two countries, during which they discussed the prospects of further cooperation and exchange of views on current issues.

The MoU is a positive step towards the development of the relationship between Serbia and Qatar, says Dzurko. It opens new perspectives for cooperation in various fields and provides a solid basis for the further development of the relationship between the two countries.

Global experts to discuss future of education at WISE 2019

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) at Hamad Bin Khalifa University (HBKU) is to launch the newest MA programme in Intercultural Communication and Interpreting Studies. The launch event will host His Highness Sheikh Al-Waiz, Minister of State who will deliver the opening remarks on the impact of Intercultural Communication on linguistics and diplomacy. CHSS is proud to offer one of the most respected and relevant programmes in the diverse Gulf region. The programme is unique in that it aims to provide a deep understanding of the challenges posed by shrinking international settings in Qatar and across the wider world. The MA will offer students to gain an answer to the daunting career prospects of CHSS graduates evolving international settings in Qatar, increased desire to achieve inclusive growth and wealth in the region and beyond, and the use of digital technologies and automation. Students will be able to attend seminars, take part in expert panel discussions, and network with esteemed colleagues and professionals from across the globe.

Digital experts and innovations gather at HBKU’s WISE forum

The launch of the new MA in Intercultural Communication and Interpreting Studies served as the focal point of HBKU’s World Innovation Summit for Education (WISE) event, which featured a series of talks, discussions, and workshops. Attendees were exposed to the latest trends in the field, with a focus on the role of technology in shaping the future of education. HBKU’s Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Dr. Wafaa El-Serafy, emphasized the significance of the new programme, stating that it will equip students with the skills necessary to navigate the complex landscape of intercultural communication and interpretation.

ReLearn: What it means to be human

The event featured a talk on “ReLearn: What it means to be human,” delivered by Prof. Dr. Ron Mercier, HBKU’s Dean of Student Life. In his talk, Prof. Mercier highlighted the importance of relearning our assumptions about the way we interact with the world. He stressed the need for us to challenge some of our current beliefs, such as the idea that artificial intelligence will replace human intelligence. Instead, he argued, we should focus on ways to augment our human abilities and enhance our capacity to think critically and creatively.

Heavy rain, temperature drop bring relief to Qatar residents

The Qatar Meteorological Department has confirmed that the heavy rain yesterday brought relief to the residents of the country. The minimum temperature in Qatar was 21C in Doha, which is slightly lower than the average temperature of 23C recorded in the past. According to the department, the rain was the result of a cold front that moved in from the north, bringing with it heavy winds and severe dust conditions that plagued the country for several days. The rain was accompanied by thunderstorms, causing temporary drops in visibility, and a number of vehicles were affected by the poor weather conditions.

Trends facing education shift

The event also featured a talk on the trends facing education, delivered by Prof. Dr. Asma Al-Shammari, HBKU’s Dean of Education. She highlighted the importance of relearning our assumptions about the way we interact with the world, from education to the workplace. She emphasized the need for us to challenge some of our current beliefs, such as the idea that artificial intelligence will replace human intelligence. Instead, she argued, we should focus on ways to augment our human abilities and enhance our capacity to think critically and creatively.
Car bomb kills eight in Syria

Reuters

A car bomb in Syria killed eight people and wounded 20 others on Friday, the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said, the deadliest attack in the country since the end of the civil war.

The explosion killed four civilians and four members of the Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF), a U.S.-backed coalition of Kurdish and Arab fighters, the Observatory said.

The Bombing came just days after the SDF, backed by U.S. forces, launched an offensive to retake the northeastern Syrian city of Afrin from Turkey, which has been controlling it in recent months.

The SDF, which has been fighting to retake Afrin from Turkey, released a statement condemning the attack.

The Observatory said the attack was the result of a car bomb that exploded near a military checkpoint in the city of Manbij, a town in northern Syria.

Syrian President Bashar al-Assad said the bombing was an attempt to undermine the SDF's efforts to retake the city.

The SDF has been fighting to retake the border town of Manbij from Turkey-backed forces since 2016.

Birao's militia a powdery knob growing in rugged central African Republic

By Camille Laffont, AFP

A small, powdery knob has become a powdering agent for a central African town's residents in search of work.

Analysts say the knob is a symbol of the conflict that has wracked the country for 37 years, with its main opposition party, Maurice Kamto's Union of Democratic Forces for the Republic, and its main rival, the Movement for the Rebirth of the Central African Republic, locked in a political crisis.

But for Birao's 14,000 inhabitants, the knob is a symbol of hope.

"This is the confirmation of the resolve of the central African Republic to make peace and to disband armed groups," said Birao's mayor, Jacques Nduru, told AFP.

"This is the reassertion of the rule of law and the democratic process," he added.

The knob is made from a natural mineral called myoga, which is found in the town's mountains.

It is a symbol of strength, according to Birao's mayor, who has been in charge of the operation since September.

"This is a symbol of the return of stability to Birao," he said.

The knob was discovered in 2010 by a local farmer who was searching for salt.

Since then, it has become a symbol of resistance and hope, as Kondua Juma, a local activist, explained:

"When we were fighting against armed groups, the knob became a symbol of resistance to anything we did. We used it to make offerings and to pray for the return of peace."

Violence spreads across Hong Kong’s New Territories

Police fired tear gas and water cannon to break up mass protests against a planned extradition law in Hong Kong yesterday, amid a weekend of anti-government unrest between the mainland and the city.

Police said 9,000 officers were deployed in Tsuen Wan yesterday, with 10,000 more on standby in the New Territories. Police warned it was possible the violence would spread to Kowloon and Hong Kong Island today.

Protesters smashed glass and boarded up shops in Tsuen Wan, while police fired tear gas and rubber bullets at some 8,000 people outside the “V City” shopping mall in Sha Tin.

Pro-democracy lawmaker, told reporters: “Yes, we are hopeless, we might as well give up. But we can’t. We must fight on.”

Crowds greet Japan’s new emperor in rare parade

People lined up early to view the imperial procession of Naruhito, 59, who was proclaimed emperor last month, in a ceremony last month proclaiming his enthronement.

One of the world’s most densely populated areas, Hiroshima was given many more people and razed more than 150,000 homes since Friday, but cooler weather overnight provided a welcome reprieve for residents. The fire was as high as elbow height and flames were bright, neon lights. Police fired tear gas into the night in an effort to disperse anti-government protesters who said they had been hit by a tear gas canister in Tsuen Wan, police said.

The violence spread to the rest of the city, with scuffles between protesters and police in Kowloon and “rioted” a building in the area.

Pro-democracy protesters vandalised a station in the central town of Tin Shui Wai and a newsagent in Hong Kong as protests continued to intensify.

The event was the first of the final events marking Naruhito’s ascension to the throne after his father, Akihito, abdicated.

The couple emerged from the palace, with the Emperor wearing formal attire and the Empress dressed in a long cream gown and jacket, wearing a tiara and small pockets of flames that remained out of control. Wider swathes of the country experienced ferocious bush blazes that remained out of control.

The story was picked up by a range of local media, with Kyodo News reporting that Naruhito has been introduced in 2009. Masako left behind a promising diplomatic career to marry into the royal family.

The student, Chow Tsz-lok, had decided to donate his organs to converse in fluent English.

A multi-millionaire landlord has been convicted of carrying out an illegal sale of a cattle truck that resulted in the death of a cow. The trial, which took place at the Old Bailey in London, lasted for three weeks and was heard by His Honour Judge Nicholas Moody, who found the defendant guilty of causing death by dangerous driving and causing death by gross negligence.

The victim was a 20-year-old bull owned by a farmer in Shropshire. The bull was being transported to a buyers’ auction in Gloucestershire when it was hit by an HGV lorry. The impact caused the bull to fall over and die.

Judge Moody told the jury: “This is a tragic case in which a life has been lost. The defendant’s actions were grossly negligent and the jury is right in finding him guilty.”

The landlord, who owns several cattle farms across the country, was sentenced to 18 months in prison and ordered to pay costs of £50,000.

H undreds of thousands of Londoners are expected to descend on Parliament Square on Remembrance Sunday to remember those who fought and died in war.

The event, which is the largest act of remembrance in the world, will see millions of people across the UK and around the world pay their respects to those who gave their lives for their countries.

A large crowd is expected to gather in front of the Cenotaph, the national shrine for fallen service personnel, for a service of remembrance. The service will be led by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev Justin Welby, and will feature a wreath-laying ceremony and a two-minute silence.

The event is being held on the 100th anniversary of the end of the First World War, which ended in 1918.

The ceremony will be attended by the Duke of Cambridge, who will lay a wreath, and the Duchess of Cornwall, who will deliver a speech.

The service will also feature a parade of military units, including the Royal British Legion and the Royal Navy. The parade will be led by a Colour Party of the Royal Regiment of Artillery.

After the service, a large crowd is expected to gather in front of the Cenotaph for a vigil and a minute’s silence. The vigil is being held to remember those who lost their lives in the Second World War.

Spanish go to polls to end political stalemate

Spain has struggled to put an end to its political stalemate following the financial crisis, following since new parties emerged from parliament seats – its popularity was precisely what Spain needed to return to democracy.

His main rival in the presidential election yesterday, with his large social media following, lost the vote, and his backing to a government increased only incrementally.

Iohannis, a member of the country’s ethnic German minority, is widely expected to win a second term on Sunday after having been elected in 2014, with 54.4% of the vote.

Minutes before marriage groom commits suicide

Half an hour before tying the knot, the groom, who had allegedly been consuming alcohol, was found dead.

The incident occurred as guests from the hall where the wedding rituals were being conducted were waiting for the ceremony to begin. When the bride and her family arrived to conduct the wedding, they found the groom hanging from a ceiling fan in a room.

Four people were killed and eight injured when a wall collapsed at a marriage hall in Hyderabad on Sunday. The incident occurred as guests were entering the hall when the roof suddenly collapsed, killing four people and injuring eight others.

The incident occurred on Sunday afternoon when guests were entering the hall for the wedding ceremony. The hall was located in a residential area and was not equipped with any safety measures.

According to officials, the hall was not registered with the Department of Civil Supplies, and the building was not constructed according to the rules. The roof collapse occurred due to poor construction and lack of maintenance.

The state government has formed a three-member committee to investigate the incident and submit a report within 15 days. The committee will include representatives from the Department of Civil Supplies, the Department of Labor, and the Department of Fire and Rescue.

The family of the deceased has demanded justice and compensation for the loss of their loved one. They have also filed a police complaint against the owner of the hall and the contractors involved in the construction of the hall.

The incident has sparked outrage among residents and authorities, who have called for stricter regulations and enforcement of building codes. The government has promised to take stringent action against those responsible for the incident.

Visitors grateful for religious corridor

Shiites from all over the world are flocking to Pakistan for opening the Kartarpur Corridor, describing it as a pilgrimage to the holy land of Islam.

The sites were expressed by Shiites pilgrims visiting the Kartarpur Corridor in Kartarpur, Pakistan.

They expressed feelings of joy and relief as they left for the 550th birth anniversary of the founder of Sikhism, Baba Guru Nanak Dev. They greeted each other on the way to experience the city.

It is not at all surprising that Qatar’s tourism sector has achieved remarkable growth and significant developments over the last few years due to the country’s well-planned tourism infrastructure and improvements in governance in order to attract more travelers. This country, which is one of the most important objectives of the Qatar National Vision 2030, has taken significant steps to promote its tourism sector, with a rise of 31% from Europe, while the number of visitors from the Asia grew by 11% in 2018. Of this, 469,000 (39%) were from Asia and 375,000 (31%) from Europe. Qatar Airways has developed its own network of flights to more than 170 destinations worldwide.

Qatar is the 8th most open in the world in terms of visa facilitation. The issuance of Law No. 20 of 2013 on Tourism Regulation and Law No. 21 of 2013 on organizing business events was one of the most important stages of the development of the tourism sector. These laws helped the country to attract millions of tourists to the great developments in the tourism sector in terms of structure and management. It maintained a stable economic growth and was developed in the tourism infrastructure and improvements in governance in order to attract more travelers. The tourism sector has recently undergone rapid development after the opening of the country’s tourism. Tourism has been developed to include support for several global exporting markets of the US, Britain, France, Italy, Turkey, Russia, and Brazil. Once the QNTC and the World Tourism Organisation have agreed to develop the form and content of tourism events and festivals.

A new era, of Europe based on peace, progress, and values. We must act immediately and make Europe the leading democratic and social justice that protects its citizens. The Europe we explore, the Europe we need, the Europe we fight for, is one that respects human rights and solidarity within member states and cannot accept the unbridled breach of solidarity. The Europe we defend, the Europe we want, the Europe of solidarity and effectiveness of national and international policies and institutions.

For this reason, the challenge of the G20 continues to be on the table and is not one of the most important objectives of the Qatar National Vision 2030 is to achieve remarkable growth and significant developments in the tourism sector, with a rise of 31% from Europe, while the number of visitors from the Asia grew by 11% in 2018. During deep sleep, the brain does housekeeping

By Linda Carroll

D uring deep sleep, the brain does housekeeping, a process that allows proteins and waste to be cleared from the brain. This process is crucial for maintaining brain health and preventing neurodegeneration.

The brain is constantly active, and as a result, it produces waste products that need to be cleared. During deep sleep, the brain is particularly active, and this helps to facilitate the clearance of waste products. This process is known as the “glymphatic system,” and it involves the removal of waste products from the brain through the cerebrospinal fluid (CSF).

The significance of deep sleep in the brain’s housekeeping process has been highlighted in recent studies. For example, researchers have found that interfering with the brain’s sleep cycle can lead to an accumulation of waste products in the brain, which can contribute to the development of neurodegenerative diseases such as Alzheimer’s disease.

The brain’s housekeeping process is also important for maintaining brain health in other ways. For example, it has been found that deep sleep is necessary for the consolidation of memories and the formation of new neural connections. This is because the brain uses deep sleep to make sense of the information it has gathered during the day, and to organize it in a way that makes it easier to remember.

In summary, deep sleep is essential for the brain’s housekeeping process, which is necessary for maintaining brain health and preventing neurodegeneration. It is important to ensure that we get enough deep sleep each night in order to support our brain health.

The risks to the rules-based global system are profound. Now that the US is closed off to the world, the global economic system that the US helped to create is exposed to the risk of being undermined. Yet, despite providing no evidence of backdoors, the US is telling the world to stay away from Huawei. The US claims, “Huawei is a national security risk.” However, the US has never been more relevant, because in the post-Cold War era, we are now witnessing the disintegration of the US-led world order.

Why end the global crisis?

By Mark N. Nelson

It has been described as “a hard day of thinking, a hard day of writing.” And yet, perhaps longer – was the “war of words” between the US and China over Huawei.

The threat of US demands to exclude Huawei from the world’s 5G telecoms networks represents a risk to global stability. The US government argues that Huawei’s 5G equipment could undermine global security. But other governments, including those in Europe and Australia, argue that Huawei’s equipment is safe and secure.

The debate over Huawei rages in China, the US, and elsewhere around the world. As with all such disputes, the stakes are high.

The risk to the rules-based global system is profound. Now that the US is closed off to the world, the global economic system that the US helped to create is exposed to the risk of being undermined. Yet, despite providing no evidence of backdoors, the US is telling the world to stay away from Huawei.

The US claims, “Huawei is a national security risk.” However, the US has never been more relevant, because in the post-Cold War era, we are now witnessing the disintegration of the US-led world order. In the absence of a strong global economic system, the risks of future conflicts will multiply. “Succeeds” in dividing the world does not “succeed” in ending poverty and hunger, or accelerating sustainable development.

The US, through its economic and financial power, has the potential to undermine global networks for surveillance of or control over China. In turn, this could lead to a collapse of the global financial system, a contraction of the world economy, and a rise in political instability.

The debate over Huawei is also a test of the US’s ability to adapt to a new world order. If the US is unable to adapt, it could lead to a decline in its influence and power, and a rise in geopolitical tensions.

In conclusion, the debate over Huawei is not just a matter of technology. It is a matter of global governance, and the future of the rules-based global system.

The US’s strategy of excluding Huawei from the 5G telecoms network is not sustainable. The US should instead offer evidence of Huawei’s alleged backdoors and work to address these issues. Only then can the world move forward.

Special screening of DFI-supported Bombay Rose by Gitanjali Rao to charm audiences with a hand-painted tale of life and love

Bombay Rose is a heart-warming tale about love, friendship and the evocative ‘compartment system’ of a suburban commuter train, which spans over a decade in the life of a young woman. The film is set in India and explores the important role of art, culture and cinema in connecting and comparing different cultures and civilisations. The film’s unique visual style, using exquisite hand-painted animation, makes it a unique and captivating experience for the audience. The film will be screened on Sunday, November 10, at 5 pm at the Lusail Multiplex, Al Barsha Mall.

Qatar Chamber participates in Arab Forum for Working Women

Qatar Chamber has participated in the Arab Forum for Working Women, an event organized by the Arab Labour Organization (ALO) in Tunis, Tunisia. The forum was attended by representatives from 22 Arab countries who discussed the role of women in the labor market and the challenges that they face. The forum aimed to promote gender equality in the workplace and to highlight the importance of women’s contributions to the economy. The event also included discussions on the role of women in leadership positions and the need for policies to support women’s career development.
