Beijing ends key conference with promise to protect Hong Kong

H ong Kong democracy campaigners have launched a campaign against the city’s political leaders, demanding a certain degree of autonomy for the city to continue to function as a regional financial hub.

The campaign, which is led by the pro-democracy Democratic Party, seeks to highlight the city’s political system, which has been overwhelmed by the influence of China’s central government.

The party’s leader, Ho I-ding, said that the city’s political leaders have failed to address the demands of the pro-democracy movement, which has been ongoing for more than a year.

He added: “The pro-democracy movement in Hong Kong is a symbol of the struggle for freedom and democracy in the region. It is important that we continue to support the movement and demand that the city’s political leaders take action to address the demands of the pro-democracy movement.”

The campaign is supported by a number of other pro-democracy groups, including the League of Social Democrats and the Hong Kong Alliance in Support of Patriotic Democratic Movements of China.

Korea launches two suspected missiles after warnings about US

N orth Korea launched two suspected missiles yesterday, in response to warnings by the United States that the country could resume its nuclear programme.

The launches, which came in close proximity to South Korea, were reported by the South Korean military.

The launches came after the United States had warned that North Korea could resume its nuclear programme, leading to fears of a possible conflict in the region.

The South Korean military said that the launches were a response to the US warnings, and that the country was monitoring the situation.

A senior South Korean government official said that the launches were a “clear violation of international law,” and that the country was working to secure the safety of its citizens.

Iceland's decade-old but barely decaying burger is a hit online

A decade after McDonald's shut down its second biggest franchise in Iceland, hundreds of online voters have given the restaurant its highest score of any in a glass case like an experiment.

The glass case that chord closed its 93 branches in Iceland for the second time since 2010, "a perfectly natural thing to do", minister.

McDonald's was a prominent feature in a lorry at a roundabout in the capital, which had been used to house the company's call centres for over a decade.

"We decided to close a large number of branches in Iceland this week, so we thought it was a good opportunity to introduce the concept," said a company spokesperson.

On Monday, the company announced that it was closing all of its remaining branches in Iceland.

"The decision was not easy, but we believe it is the right choice for our business and for the Icelandic economy," the spokesperson said.

The company said it had "no visible legal basis that they said does not exist, the court added. But the company said its app was "too complex to understand".

China objects to Kashmir bifurcation, govt's back

China has strongly protested theIndian government's decision to divide the Union Territory of Jammu and Kashmir into two new territories of Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh, saying this is an internal matter that does not concern others.

China's foreign ministry spokesperson Zhao Lijian said in a press briefing on Friday that the Indian government's decision to bifurcate Jammu and Kashmir into two Union Territories is “an internal affair of India, which does not concern others. The Chinese government repeatedly emphasized that Jammu and Kashmir is a matter of China's internal affairs, which does not concern others. It is also the common position of the international community. The Chinese side opposes any action that disrupts the status quo and will take firm steps to safeguard its legitimate rights and interests."

The Chinese Foreign Ministry has already conveyed its strong protest to the Indian side and called for respect for China's territorial sovereignty and territorial integrity. Zhao also made it clear that China will take all necessary measures to safeguard its national interests.

China's foreign ministry has also expressed its concern over the Indian government's decision to axe the special status of Jammu and Kashmir, which was granted in 1956 by the Indian government.

Pakistan has the most breast cancer patients in Asia, say experts

Medical experts have warned that the country has the highest number of breast cancer patients in Asia. In a statement, the Cancer Society of Pakistan said巴基斯坦 has 30% of all breast cancer cases from the region. The society said this is an urgent concern for Pakistan every year. One of the causes of the increase is the shift in the population, from rural to urban. The society also warned that the problem is increasing at a rate of 20% per year. According to some reports, from 2000 to 2020, breast cancer patients in Pakistan increased by 30%. This increase is mainly due to women suffering from breast cancer in urban areas. According to the World Health Organization, breast cancer is the most common cancer in females. Speaking at the seminar, the Advisor to the Chief Minister of Punjab, Iqbal Khan, said that the government is taking all possible steps to control the spread of breast cancer. The advisor also urged women to go for regular check-ups and to seek medical advice at the earliest. The advisor said that the Punjab government was focusing on increasing awareness about breast cancer and encouraging women to go for regular check-ups.

PPP suffers setback as key senator from Khyber Pakhtunkhwa resigns

The opposition Pakistan People’s Party (PPP) has lost its strength in the upper house of the Senate following the resignation of a key senator from the party. The PPP’s Senator Mohammed Ijaz Khan from the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province resigned his position, citing personal reasons. The resignation comes at a time when the PPP is facing challenges within its ranks. The party has been struggling with internal divisions and leadership issues, which have weakened its position in the Senate.

The PPP’s position in the Senate has been crucial for the party, as it has been able to provide a stable opposition to the ruling Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) government. Khan’s resignation has left the PPP with a weaker representation in the Senate, making it more difficult for the party to challenge the PTI’s policies and initiatives. The resignation comes at a time when the PPP is facing criticism for its lack of a clear political strategy and its inability to provide strong leadership.

PPP leaders have been trying to address the internal divisions within the party, but the situation remains unresolved. The party is yet to announce a replacement for Khan, which could take some time.

Pakistan, Cuba agree on visa waiver

Pakistan and Cuba have agreed on an arrangement for visa-free travel for diplomats and official passport holders. The arrangement will allow diplomats and official passport holders to enter Pakistan and Cuba without a visa. The agreement was signed during the recent visit of a Pakistani delegation to Cuba. The agreement is expected to strengthen diplomatic relations between the two countries and facilitate travel for officials and diplomats.

Pakistani and Cuban officials signed the agreement on behalf of their respective governments. According to the agreement, diplomats and official passport holders from both countries will be able to enter the other country without a visa for a period of stay not exceeding 30 days. The agreement also includes provisions for the reciprocal treatment of officials and diplomats from the other country.

The agreement is expected to facilitate travel for officials and diplomats from both countries, as well as for business and academic visitors. It is a significant step in strengthening diplomatic relations between Pakistan and Cuba, and it is expected to promote cultural and economic exchanges between the two countries.
M ethodology of the Companions in Preserving the Sunnah

One of the main reasons behind this was that the Companions, who were the first generation of Muslims, had no written laws or rules. They had to rely on the Prophet's (peace be upon him) examples and teachings. This was the reason why the Companions were always looking for ways to ensure the accuracy and reliability of the information they received. They had to ensure that the information was preserved and passed on to the next generations without any distortions or modifications.

The Companions encouraged learning to write the Hadith.

In order to preserve the tradition of the Sunnah, the Companions were encouraged to learn writing. This was an important task that they had to undertake in order to ensure the accuracy of the information. This was done by teaching the Companions how to write the Hadith accurately and responsibly. They were taught to write the Hadith as they heard them, without any alterations or modifications. They were also taught to check and verify the accuracy of the information before passing it on to others.

One of the main reasons why the Companions were encouraged to learn writing was because they realized that the preservation of the Sunnah was crucial for the continuation of Islam. Without the preservation of the Sunnah, the lessons and teachings of the Prophet (peace be upon him) would not be passed on to the next generations. This would result in a loss of knowledge and a weakening of the foundation of Islam.

The Companions were also taught that learning to write the Hadith was a way of honoring the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his teachings. They were encouraged to do this as a way of showing their respect for the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his teachings. This was a way of ensuring that the teachings of the Prophet (peace be upon him) would be preserved and passed on to the next generations.

The Companions were also taught that learning to write the Hadith was a way of promoting the Sunnah. This was because the Sunnah was a fundamental part of Islam, and it was important to ensure that it was preserved and passed on to the next generations. This was a way of ensuring that the teachings of the Prophet (peace be upon him) would be passed on to the next generations and that the Sunnah would be preserved.

The Companions were also taught that learning to write the Hadith was a way of promoting the unity of the Muslim community. This was because the Sunnah was a unifying force that brought the Muslims together. By learning to write the Hadith, the Companions were promoting the unity of the Muslim community and ensuring that the teachings of the Prophet (peace be upon him) would be preserved and passed on to the next generations.

The Companions were also taught that learning to write the Hadith was a way of promoting the growth of the Muslim community. Facebook should set clear standards for political ads

Facebook has become a prime outlet for presidential campaign advertising, with at least 25 states investing in their own campaign ads on the platform. The spread of false information and misleading claims on social media platforms has raised concerns about the integrity of democratic processes. Facebook is under pressure to address these issues, particularly in light of its role in spreading disinformation during the 2016 US election.

Qatar Cyclists complete Rwanda expedition

Education and innovation goals build on bedrock of sporting ties between Doha and Kigali

A Qatar Cyclists team recently made a 550km bicycle ride in Rwanda, in support of education and innovation in the country. The trip started from Kigali, Rwanda’s capital, with 17 Qatari cyclists covering the northern parts of Rwanda followed by the eastern and southern areas of the country while discovering the most important cultural landmarks and picturesque nature. The trip began on October 10 and reached the finish line on October 17.

The initiative achieved several sporting goals, which include strengthening sportsmanship and co-operation between local cyclists from the Qatar Cyclists team and members of the Rwandan national team, with the aim of enhancing ties between the two teams and foster the spirit of leadership among professional cyclists as well as amateurs. The trip included a visit to historic and archaeological sites, given that Rwanda is a living example of the advancement of life from the verge of death after the brutal civil war that had a devastating impact on its land and people. After Rwanda’s return to life, ‘The Land of a Thousand Hills’ became one of the most important destinations for tourism and sports, especially for cyclists, being one of the most bicycle-friendly countries.

In addition to its geographical diversity, Rwanda is characterised by the rich environmental and animal life, such as rare mountain gorillas, which the team visited, along with other forests and nature reserves. The team undertook a number of journeys and adventures, and a significant aspect of the trip involved going to local schools and universities, organised by World Innovation Summit for Education (WISE), an initiative of Qatar Foundation for Education, Science and Community Development that aims to provide education for all.

While education was the main factor in Rwanda’s journey after the civil war, Qatar, too, flourished not only because of its natural resources, but also through education. Activities in the schools continued and the two countries had exchanges on culture and traditions through various performances and by introducing the Qatari culture. The team also gave the students gifts sponsored by Qatar’s Supreme Committee for Delivery & Legacy (SC). On a visit to the Akilah Institute, the team met with the centre’s president to discuss various societal issues and the impact of education on society.

The foundation provides an opportunity to women in need to support themselves by acquiring skills and creating a business to boost their income and support their families.

The Qatar Cyclists team also collaborated with the Africa Rising Cycling Centre and planned future joint events, including sponsoring a number of outstanding Rwandan cyclists to come to Doha and participate in local sporting events.

On Wednesday, Rwandan President Paul Kagame met the Qatar Cyclists in Doha and commended the noble objectives of their trip. The team presented Kagame with their jersey. The cyclists during their trip.
