US thanks Qatar for its co-operation

US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo expressed his country’s thanks to Qatar for its partnership and its role in the fight against terrorism during a meeting with the Emir of Qatar, Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad al-Thani, in Doha on Wednesday. He also expressed his country’s appreciation for Qatar’s significant support and contribution to the fight against terrorism in the region.

Josep Borrell, the EU’s foreign policy chief, said on Wednesday that the EU-US talks on Iran had been “constructive” in the face of the US’s decision to withdraw from the nuclear deal.

In a statement, Pompeo said that the US was “grateful to Qatar for its continued support and commitment to the fight against terrorism.” He added that the US was “committed to working closely with Qatar to address the challenges facing the region.”

Bahrain to build ‘energy efficient’ power plant

Bahrain will build a new power plant that will be “energy efficient” and will use “state-of-the-art” technology to help the country achieve its goal of becoming a green economy, the state-run Bahrain News Agency reported on Wednesday.

The project will be built by the Bahrain Electricity and Water Authority (BEWA) and will be the first in the region to use the latest technology to generate electricity. The plant will have a capacity of 700 megawatts and will be located near the coast.

The project is part of Bahrain’s efforts to diversify its energy mix and reduce its dependence on oil and gas.

Saudi Arabia will increase its production of crude oil

Saudi Arabia will increase its production of crude oil by 900,000 barrels per day to meet the growing demand for petrochemicals, the state-run Press TV reported on Wednesday.

The increase will bring the kingdom’s total production of crude oil to 10.8 million barrels per day, the report said.

Saudi Arabia is the world’s top producer of crude oil and the increase will help the kingdom to maintain its position as a major supplier of energy.

The kingdom has previously announced plans to diversify its economy and reduce its dependence on oil and gas.

Qatar's health sector to observe World Diabetes Day today

Qatar's health sector launched a multi-pronged campaign to observe World Diabetes Day, which falls on November 14 every year. Qatar Diabetes Association, the Primary Health Care Corporation, Hamad Medical Corporation, Sidra Medicine and the Qatar Diabetes Association will launch a series of initiatives under the World Diabetes Day campaign, which will run until November 27.

Qatar is one of the most prominent health challenges globally and locally as one of the most widespread non-communicable diseases in the world. The government in Qatar has taken the initiative to combat this disease at the preventive and curative level. Within the framework of the efforts of the Ministry of Public Health, and its partners to combat diabetes, a number of initiatives have been launched through the Qatar National Diabetes Strategy 2019-2025. Most notably, the implementation of guidelines for prevention and treatment and the identification of guidelines and clinical pathways through the Ministry of Public Health for the management of diabetes.

The Ministry of Public Health in co-operation with Hamad Medical Corporation, Primary Health Care Corporation, Sidra Medicine and the Qatar Diabetes Association, will launch a series of initiatives under the World Diabetes Day campaign, which will run until November 27. One of the key initiatives is the launch of the Qatar Diabetes Strategy 2023, which calls for effective steps to combat this disease at the preventive and curative level. The four-phase campaign aims to raise awareness about the need for early detection of diabetes and the importance of early intervention. The campaign will be carried out through the Qatar Healthline Hotlines, including nutrition, physical activity and awareness, and empowering patients to manage their health, conducting workshops for Type 2 Diabetes for diabetes patients over 20,000 healthcare professionals, including risk factors for cardiovascular disease within the national diabetes strategy, and implementing a research plan for diabetes.

Qatar's construction drive: The contractor's dilemma

The magnolia of the last day of the Global Tech Summit 2019 in Doha, Qatar, has been the launch of the 5G network for the first time in the Arab world. The launch, which took place at the Doha Exhibition & Convention Centre (DOHAEXCO), was a testament to Qatar's commitment to innovation and technology.

During the launch event, the Minister of State for Digital Affairs, Saleh bin进驻 Валлах, delivered a speech highlighting the importance of 5G in driving economic growth and enabling new industries to emerge.

He said: “Qatar has always been at the forefront of innovation and technology. With the launch of 5G, we are taking a significant step towards becoming a technology hub in the region. This network will enable Qatar to compete on a global scale and attract investment in various sectors.”

The 5G network will provide users with download speeds of up to 20 gigabits per second and upload speeds of up to 7 gigabits per second. It will also support the development of new applications and services, such as autonomous vehicles and smart cities.

The Minister also added that the launch of 5G is part of Qatar's strategy to become a leader in the technology sector and a global hub for innovation.

The launch was attended by leading figures from the government, private sector, and the technology industry. The event also featured a keynote speech from a prominent figure in the tech industry.

The 5G network is expected to revolutionize various sectors, including healthcare, transportation, education, and entertainment. It will enable the development of new applications and services, such as virtual reality, augmented reality, and self-driving cars.

Vodafone Qatar has been at the forefront of this revolution, and has played a crucial role in driving the adoption of 5G technology in the region. The company has been working closely with the Qatari government, and has invested heavily in research and development to ensure that the network is ready for launch.

The launch of 5G in Qatar is a testament to the country's commitment to innovation and technology, and its dedication to staying at the forefront of the global tech landscape. It will undoubtedly open up new possibilities for businesses and individuals in the region, and will help drive the development of new industries and applications.
‘Doha Learning Days’ festival gets underway from today

Doha Learning Days, Qatar’s first experiential learning summit, will take place from today at Education City.

The six-day festival, which runs until November 24, has been organised by World Innovation Summit for Education (WISE), an initiative of Qatar Foundation and brings together more than 10 local entities. It is open to the whole community, free of charge.

The programme is in the lead up to the WISE Summit 2019, to be held from November 24-25. Victoria Basma, policy and partnerships officer, WISE, said: “We have a number of alumni who have worked on this summit and it’s an exciting element of Doha Learning Days.”

Doha Learning Days is intended to become an annual event. “We hope the next step for Doha Learning Days is to become a global event and it fits into the WISE agenda and our theme of better citizens, then building another on a one-to-one basis, and understanding how to be a global citizen, as well as a number of workshops that explore community development and local culture.

“Bringing those things together, and seeing what comes out of them, is the most exciting part of Doha Learning Days,” added Basma.

‘Mughal-E-Azam’ reloaded!
Stage set for epic movie’s musical premiere in Qatar

As the preparations for the musical Mughal-E-Azam, a tribute to epic Indian film of 1960, are on full swing in Qatar, the excitement and expectations are high among the local community.

More than six decades after its initial release, its story of eternal love still warms the hearts of all Indians, as well as the new generation of movie-goers, many of whom have had the chance of seeing the epic drama on real screen.

Dr. Tijjinder Singh, Business Leader in the Middle East for film distribution firm, said, "Mughal-E-Azam remains a significant cultural landmark. It is a timeless narrative that continues to resonate with audiences today.

Now, with the recreation of the movie in a traditional Qatari setting at Al Masasa Theatre for three consecutive days, it is highly anticipated as the ‘event of the season’ in the Qatari calendar.

Talking at his official press conference, Dr. Tijjinder Singh, described as the 'Master of ceremonies', said, "We are excited to bring this iconic film to Qatar. It is a great opportunity to showcase Indian cinema to the local audience and celebrate its rich heritage."

The movie, set in the Mughal era, features the lives of Emperor Akbar and his famous queen Jodhabai. The musical score, composed by Pyarelal, is considered one of the greatest achievements of Indian music.

‘The play, to be staged at Al Masasa theatre on December 19, 20, & 21, is going to be a fitting finale to India-Qatar Cultural Year 2019.

The story of Mughal-E-Azam revolves around the love story of Emperor Akbar and his beloved wife Jodhabai. The musical score, composed by Pyarelal, is considered one of the greatest achievements of Indian music.

What were the challenges that you encountered?
We at QMovies are planning for this event for around 9 months ago. It took a lot of organizational efforts in different levels. As the drama has already been a huge crowd puller in India and abroad, we had to make sure that it is aired on platforms that are trusted and respected. Also, the play's timing and协调 of different cultural aspects needed a process which was manufactured to handle it in a way that would not affect the original story of the film. It's a process that requires a lot of coordination to make such a drama. Luckily, everything has fallen in place and we are very happy with our preparation.

Your views on Qatar as a potential market?
The best thing about Qatar is the climate of its people and a very supportive leadership. After all, when we talk about Qatar, we are talking about a country that is not only a tourist destination but also a place where people come to live and work. Qatar is not just a place to visit, but a place to call home.

The tour will allow fans to experience the magic of Mughal-E-Azam in a unique way. The show will be held at Al Masasa theatre in Doha, Qatar, on December 19, 20, & 21, 2019.

Lebanon slides deeper into turmoil, no sign of new government

Riots and protests in Beirut

Protests have continued in Beirut, with thousands of Lebanese students and teachers blocking roads and occupying government buildings. The protesters demand an end to corruption and the resignation of the Lebanese government. The situation has escalated, with reports of violence and clashes between protesters and security forces.

Air pollution shuts schools in Tehran

The Iranian capital, Tehran, has seen a significant increase in air pollution, leading to the closure of schools. The pollution levels have reached dangerous levels, prompting authorities to act. The situation highlights the ongoing environmental challenges facing the city. The students have expressed frustration and have organized protests against the government's slow response to the crisis.

Israel carries out military operation in Gaza

Israel has launched a military operation in Gaza, targeting Hamas fighters and their positions. The operation comes after a spate of rocket attacks from Gaza towards Israel. The Israeli military has stated that its goal is to neutralize the threat posed by Hamas and its allies. The situation remains tense, with both sides accusing each other of provoking the conflict.

Lebanon in crisis

Lebanon is facing a deep economic crisis, political impasse, and widespread protests against the government. The currency has suffered a significant devaluation, with the Lebanese pound losing value rapidly. The situation has led to widespread poverty and social unrest, with thousands of protests demanding political change and an end to corruption. The international community has called for urgent action to address the crisis and restore stability to the country.
Trump prioritised Biden probe ‘over Ukraine aid’

George Kent, the deputy assistant secretary of state for European and Eurasian affairs, and William Taylor, the US ambassador to Ukraine, became heroes yesterday during a House Intelligence Committee public hearing in the impeachment inquiry against US President Donald Trump on Capitol Hill in Washington.

Kent and Taylor both testified that Trump was “so extreme” a climber that he asked about those investigations and that was most alarming to them about Trump’s conduct when he asked about those in the Oval Office.

Kent said that he was not confident in Trump’s “defence” of his conduct and that he was not confident in Trump’s “defence” of his conduct.

Bombers die in attack outside police office in Indonesia

A 26-year-old university student who became the first person shot dead in this year's general election has blown himself up outside a police station in Indonesia's island of Sumatra.

Police confirmed the attack, which took place in the early hours of Sunday morning, had killed at least two people, one of them a police officer.

National police spokesman Dedi Prasetyo told a news conference that a youth using the name of Ansharut Daulah (JAD), which has carried out a series of attacks on President Joko Widodo's government, had targeted a police station in Medan.

Police said the bomber had attacked the police station at around 5am and died in the explosion, which was heard across the city.

The incident comes after a series of suicide bombings linked to the JAD group in recent weeks, including two last month during a US commando raid on the group's headquarters.

Prasetyo told a news conference, "We have been looking into the possibility of a series of attacks, to which JAD is responsible."

He said the bomber had strafed a driver jacket and had a bag strapped to him, which was checked before entering the police station.

"A police officer and a civilian were killed," Prasetyo said.

"We are trying to find out if this was an attack by another terrorist group," he added.

Regional police said they had cordoned off the area around the station and were investigating the attack.

The attack comes after a series of bombings in the country, including one in Surabaya in May that killed 18 people.

Security in Indonesia has been tightened since the attack, with increased patrols and checks on public transport and buildings.

In 2015, more than 20 people were killed in a suicide bombing at an Indonesian airport.

The Indonesian government has said it is working with the United States and other countries to combat terrorism.

Lanka steps up security for final election rallies

Police stepped up security outside Sri Lanka's police headquarters in Colombo on Sunday, where the former Tamil Tiger separatist rebels have threatened to launch进一步 attacks.

Sri Lanka is heading into a final weekend of campaigning for presidential elections, with the security services on high alert on the eve of the vote.

The police stepped up security at the police headquarters in Colombo after a series of bombs were detonated in the city last month, including one that killed at least 83 people.

The attack was claimed by the Islamic State group, which has been active in the region.

Police said they were working with the intelligence services to prevent further attacks.

"We are taking all necessary precautions to ensure the safety of the public," a police spokesperson said.

The election is due to take place on November 13 and is a key test for President Gotabaya Rajapaksa, who came to power after a military victory against the Tamil Tigers in 2009.

The election is seen as a test of whether Rajapaksa can turn around the economy, which has been hit by a severe drought and inflation.

Confusion, anguish in Vietnam as families await UK truck dead

Families of the victims, most of whom had left rural parts of Vietnam in search of work in the capital, were waiting for the bodies of the dead to return from Britain.

The bodies have not yet been released.

The victims, all men aged between 16 and 30, had died in a lorry that was being transported from Britain to Vietnam.

Their families told Reuters they had not heard from the police about the bodies of their loved ones.

The police said they were working with the British authorities to release the bodies.

"We are waiting for the British police to provide us with information about the bodies," one victim's relative said.

"We are waiting for the bodies to be returned to Vietnam," another relative said.

The victims were among 39 people found dead in a lorry in southeastern England on October 23.

The incident has sparked a debate about the conditions under which Vietnamese workers travel to Britain.

The Vietnamese government has vowed to toughen up its regulations on the labor market.

The victims died in the back of a truck during a long journey from Britain to Vietnam.

Several cases of similar deaths have occurred in recent years, including in 2015 and 2017.

Vietnamese families have expressed anger and grief over the deaths.

"We are waiting for the bodies to be returned to Vietnam," one family member said.

"We are waiting for the British police to provide us with information about the bodies," another relative said.

The victims had left Vietnam to seek work in Britain, but were not in possession of the necessary visas.

The Vietnamese government has been criticized for not doing enough to prevent such incidents from happening.

NHS rescue package will be funded by the wealthy: Labour

Labour's NHS 'rescue package' will be funded by the wealthiest 5% of the country, a report by the party will reveal today. The report, which is the first since Labour was last in power, is expected to announce that the £20.5bn the Conservatives promise to spend on the NHS in the next five years will be paid for by increasing tax on the £80,000 a year and 50p for those earning £150,000 a year and above.

Johnson pledges to beat Brexit out of Britain

Boris Johnson has pledged to take Britain out of the European Union before the end of the year, and then to renegotiate membership of the single market.

The Prime Minister made the promise in a speech to the American Chamber of Commerce in London, where he said: "I want to make sure the NHS gets a huge boost."

The Prime Minister also promised to block strike action by postal workers in Britain during the busy pre-Christmas shopping period next month. The union demanded the setting of an "outage" and said it wanted to "be heard" by the company. The company announced the legal action last week to prevent the planned walkout by these staff members.

The British Prime Minister also announced the introduction of a £80,000 a year and reintroduce the VAT will not increase for 95% of the people. The tax rise will be funded by tax cuts for the wealthiest 5% of the people, as outlined Labour's promises to the 2017 election.

Hackers have demanded $5mn from Penex, an oil industry software company, according to an employee who spoke to Threatpost, a news website affiliated with "Cyb Collab" that breaks news relating to ransomware.

Penex is a company that provides software for oil and gas companies, according to its website. The employee said the hackers demanded $5mn via a Bitcoin payment system, which is a cryptocurrency that is often used in ransomware attacks.

When Threatpost asked for comment, the employee said the hackers had not made a demand for the money to date. The employee said the hackers had not made a demand for the money to date.

But they said Penex still had not been able to recover their lost Bitcoin demand and would not comment further while the new deadline was pending.

Penex did not immediately respond to a message for comment.

A person who works in Penex's production and exploitation unit said that the ransomware attack had affected less than 5% of its computer systems.

It was not immediately clear if the attack had affected the company's internal e-mail systems.

Robredo to adopt new approach in drug war

By Glee Jalea

Vice President Maria Robredo, new strategies

President Rodrigo Duterte recently signed the official document for the relaunch of the Philippines’ anti-corruption campaign against illegal drugs, her spokesperson said yesterday.

“His excellency has expressed his full support,” she said during a press conference at the Malacanang press briefing room.

Raffy Tulang had earlier said, as part of the government’s rebranded campaign against illegal drugs, his spokesperson said yesterday, until recently, the order was expected to be scrapped.

“None of this will stand under the new anti-drug campaign, there would be no more mindanao killings,” she added.

“Has the president talked about changing the perception of the public that this only in- volved killings?” she asked.

Robredo yesterday led law enforcement agencies involved in a recent drug operation that led to the death of 17 alleged drug pushers, and also called on Manila, Cebu City and Davao City.

“This was done with no suf- ficient investigation. I hope that we can continue to fight against illegal drugs.”

She had invited the Inter-Agency Committee on Anti-Illegal Drugs (ICAD) to put an end to extrajudicial killings and human rights.

She met with United States Acting Special Envoy for the Philippines Daniel Russell last week.

In a statement, the US Embas- sador to the Philippines said that the Philippines government had stopped using extrajudicial killings during the campaign.

Robredo said that they had discussed the need to come up with a clear plan on how to address the anti-drug problems.

She added that they would intensify the anti-corruption campaign and that the government would work with the international community to discuss the current state of US-Philippine counter-narcotics co-operation and the potential improvements.

The discussions also addressed the need to come up with a clear plan on how to address the anti-drug problems.

B ut if the US really does change, as initialised November 9, 2019, with a dawn in the history of the revolution not only as a solution but also as a turning point. The US electorate was, in an all-conquering flight of imagination.

The day, closer to home in Upper Darby, the last resting place of Baba Guru Nanak Dev, the founder of Sikhism, was also a turning point, Pakistan’s biggest and how to most celebrated peace process in the last century.

The party of the Pakistan Muslim League-led government in Pakistan, headed by Imran Khan, which also signed the peace initiative with India, that paved the way for his disciples to cross over into Pakistan.

The elevation in the popular and non-political elements of the “Kartarpur model” had the potential to have made history and nobody can deny the heartwarming story of reunion or simply being reunited.

For the uninitiated, Kartarpur marks the last resting place of Baba Guru Nanak Dev, the founder of Sikhism, who arrived in Upper Darby, Pennsylvania, on November 9, 2019, to mark the 550th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak Dev. Nanak Dev established the Sikh religion from the foundation of a new faith. Nanak Dev was the first teacher of Sikhism and the author of the Guru Granth Sahib, which marks the site of his birth and final resting place.

Kartarpur,Winning hearts and minds

M ost discussions of trade nowadays mention environmental impact. There is discussion of oil spills, but little talk about the carbon footprint. Indeed, shipping has a relatively small carbon footprint compared to other industries. But it matters, and the shipping industry is ahead of other industries in tackling this challenge.

At any rate, the industry is leading the way in reducing its carbon footprint. This is a good sign, because the shipping industry is responsible for about 4% of global CO2 emissions. It also has the potential to be a leader in innovation, because it can test new technologies on a large scale.

One of the main challenges facing the shipping industry is how to power its vessels. There are many promising new technologies, such as hydrogen and ammonia. These technologies could help reduce the environmental impact of shipping, which means that early action by the industry is critical.

The international shipping industry is governed by the International Maritime Organization (IMO), which sets rules and regulations for shipping. The IMO is currently considering a new set of regulations that could help reduce the environmental impact of shipping.

The shipping industry has a strong emphasis on sustainability, and it is working to reduce its carbon footprint. This is a positive sign, because the shipping industry is a major contributor to greenhouse gas emissions. If the shipping industry can lead the way in reducing its carbon footprint, other industries will be more likely to follow.
