Qatar’s Sports Press Committee slams UAE ‘lies’

By Aasim Awan

The UAE’s hostile attitude towards the Arab Gulf-Jewish dialogue aimed at averting the Arab Cup was a “violation” of their human and professional rights, Qatari’s Sports Press Committee chairman, Jassim Al-Marzooqi, said.

Jassim Al-Marzooqi, the Sports Press Committee chairman, yesterday said that it had documented proof that was the “lies” of the Emiratis.

The director of the Local Organising Committee of the Asian Cup, Abdul Al-Majed, had claimed in a statement to the AFP news agency that the four tournaments were held back. “Qatar is responsible for the failure of our Asian Cup because we did not have ‘special’ visa mandate for the journalists.” Al-Marzooqi’s ‘special’ visa claim also falls short of exposing who are the members of the media delegation. Is the national Arab-Jewish Normalisation Committee, which sponsored the Asian Cup, really saying that they cannot participate in the Asian Cup because they had failed to provide their journalists with the ‘special’ mandate?

Two journalists of a six-member delegation from Qatar were denied entry to the UAE last week despite having valid accreditation from the Asian Football Federation and having their visa issued by the Emirati authorities.

Nojoom has registered a “record-breaking” 4,000 participants for the full marathon and for all the other race categories of the ‘Ooredoo Doha Marathon 2019’, slated on January 11 at the Museum of Islamic Art.

In a press conference yesterday, Ooredoo COO Yousuf Abdulla Al-Kubaisi said: “We’ve always been proud to host the Ooredoo Doha Marathon and we’re very glad to see it go from strength to strength each year.

“This year, we’re delighted to confirm it’s a record year on all fronts – we’ve got more participants than ever, more sponsors than ever, and more prizes than ever. We hope to see all the runners at the starting line on Friday, and wish them all the very best of luck in their races.”

This year, the first place winner in the male and female Open Category will receive QR45,000 each.

There will also be generous cash prizes for winners and runners-up in the marathon as well as other races.

To encourage participation in the marathon, Ooredoo has a raffle draw for its customers to win up to 125,000 Nojoom points (third prize); and Hadji Raytos, 50,000 points (second prize); and Al-Qahtani, 75,000 points (second prize); and Al-Kubaisi also joins the sponsors of this year’s ‘Ooredoo Doha Marathon 2019’.

In a press statement issued yesterday in Doha, Skyline Automotive, Hyundai’s distribution partner in Qatar, unveiled a video featuring electric vehicle wireless charging system concept and the automated valet parking system.

The system enables smoother EV charging experience with autonomous features.

When the vehicle is fully charged, it will navigate to another parking space using ANN, allowing other vehicles to charge at the same spot. When the driver calls for the vehicle, it will then autonomously return to the location of the driver.

The overall process is performed by charging management software of charging stations, while the charging system updates the charging status of the vehicle in real-time.

Hyundai also exhibited a video featuring electric vehicle wireless charging system concept and the automated valet parking system.

Hyundai Motor Group unveiled a video feature of the vehicle wireless charging system concept and the automated valet parking system (AVPS). In Qatar, Hyundai vehicles are deployed in a joint venture with Skyline Automotive, a leading Group company and official distribution partner of the Hyundai Motor Company in the country. In a press statement issued yesterday in Doha, Hyundai’s President in Qatar, Al-Khater has said the support of the Ministry reflects strong commitment to the health sector which is regarded as the pivot of social development.

He also expressed the hope that the QMED will help to create a networking platform which will mobilise the players with a wide range of opportunities, including prominent leaders in the development and provision of medical equipment, hospitals and medical laboratories.

He stressed that the developments over the past years in various sectors in Qatar, especially in the health sector, was the catalyst for holding this important event, once Qatar is one of the most advanced providers of health services in the Gulf region, and also the trend of development of the health sector, including medical equipment industry, educational and research sectors.

Hyundai Motor Group is a leading Group company and official distribution partner of the Hyundai Motor Company in the country.

The event is being organized by Sogha Exhibitions and Conferences from March 24 to 26 at the Qatar National Convention Centre, with an expected participation of over 100 local and international companies.

The Ministry of Public Health has announced its official sponsorship of the second edition of the Qatar International Medical Devices & Healthcare Exhibition and Conference (QMED 2020), to be held from March 24 to 26 at the Qatar National Convention Centre, with an expected participation of over 100 local and international companies.

The exhibition will include 10 key sections including prominent leaders in the development and provision of medical equipment, hospitals and medical laboratories.

Al-Khater has said the support of the Ministry reflects strong commitment to the health sector which is regarded as the pivot of social development.

The QMED display area is around 5,000sq m, with participation of more than 100 local and international companies and institutions, including prominent leaders in the development and provision of medical equipment, hospitals and medical laboratories.

Democrats warn Trump against diverting funds for border wall

Amid the ongoing government shutdown, House Democrats have warned President Donald Trump against diverting funds designated for border wall construction to other purposes.

Democratic领袖s have expressed concern that Trump’s efforts to secure funds for a wall are thwarting efforts to end the shutdown and may lead to further negotiations breakdowns. The House of Representatives is scheduled to vote on a resolution that would dismantle the border wall funding bill proposed by the executive, and a bipartisan coalition of senators has introduced a competing bill that would restore funding to the original border wall project.

Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer said: “The Democrats’ offer is a fair one, and we hope the president will support it. If not, we will consider other options to end the shutdown.”

The border wall has been a contentious issue in recent years, with both Republicans and Democrats arguing over its necessity and effectiveness. The Democrats have consistently opposed the wall, arguing that it would be too expensive and ineffective, while Republicans have defended it as necessary for national security.

Trump has repeatedly promised to build a wall along the US-Mexico border, citing it as a symbol of his administration’s tough stance on immigration. The wall has faced significant opposition from both sides of the aisle, with many lawmakers expressing concerns over its cost and effectiveness.

The ongoing government shutdown has slowed progress on many fronts, and the Democrats’ warnings about diverting funds for the border wall could further complicate negotiations and lead to more gridlock. The situation remains tense, with neither side appearing willing to compromise on the issue.

Florida ex-convict gets new lease on life:

Cyntoia Brown, a woman who was convicted of murder and prison at age 16, has been granted clemency by Tennessee Governor Bill Haslam and is scheduled to be released from prison on August 7. Brown’s clemency petition was supported by a number of celebrities and politicians, including Al Sharpton and Kim Kardashian West.

Brown, who was convicted of killing a man she knew through prostitution, has spent more than a decade in prison. Her case has attracted widespread attention, with many advocating for her release on humanitarian grounds.

The governor’s decision comes amid ongoing debate about clemency and parole in Tennessee and other states. Critics have argued that the clemency process is too slow and cumbersome, while supporters have hailed it as an opportunity to correct past mistakes and give offenders a chance to rehabilitate.

Border Patrol visits new immigration detention facility in Alamogordo, New Mexico:

Border Patrol agents visited the new immigration detention facility in Alamogordo, New Mexico, leading a Congressional delegation of House members to the border tomorrow. The delegation includes House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and members of the Democratic Caucus, who are expected to tour the new facility and discuss immigration policies.

The visit comes after a series of high-profile visits to detention centers by members of Congress, who have expressed concern about the conditions in the facilities. The delegation is expected to discuss the need for more transparency and oversight of immigration detention centers.
B angladesh police yesterday began to clear tens of thousands of striking workers to the country’s garment industry to prevent a third day of devastating chaos.

Police charged protesters with tear gas and fired rubber bullets to disperse the thousands of workers competing with others for safety and employment. One worker was killed.

More than 3,400 workers were injured by police fire, which disturbed the country’s economic growth. Last year the garment industry was estimated to be worth around $30bn.

The protests were sparked by news that the world’s second-largest garment maker, Asia Textiles, was halving wages by 20%.

Asia Textiles, the country’s largest employer, is owned by the Bangladesh Garment and Textile Workers Association (BGTWA), which accounts for more than 1,130 people in 2013 in one of the world’s worst industrial disasters.

The industry also has a poor workplace safety record with around 1,500 deaths and nearly 300,000 injuries each year. It is estimated that the collapse of a Rana Plaza garment factory in 2013 killed 1,130 people.

One dead, two missing after oil tanker blast off Hong Kong

The blast killed a 20-year-old woman and severely injured 14 children at a kindergarten in southern China. Twenty-three people were injured, including five who sustained life-threatening injuries, according to a hospital official. Another 20 children were sent to hospital with minor injuries.

Wang said the attack was carried out by a man who had been bullying students in the area. The attacker was later identified as a 25-year-old外来人 who had been living in the community for several years. He had a history of violence and had been involved in several incidents involving local children.

One of the school’s teachers said the attacker had been acting strangely in the days leading up to the attack, and had previously been seen carrying a large knife. The teacher said the attacker had been suspended from school two weeks ago for “aggressive behavior.”

Meanwhile, police have launched a wide-ranging investigation into the attack, and are appealing for witnesses to come forward. They have also called on the community to remain calm and support the investigation.

Wang added that the attack had caused a great deal of pain and suffering for the families involved, and that the government would continue to provide support and assistance to those affected.

This is the latest in a series of violent incidents to occur in China in recent years. In March 2019, a similar attack occurred in a primary school in the city of Wuhan, killing six children and injuring 20 others.

Andaya threatens to sue Dioino if budget not released for gov’t salary hike

By Eireene Jairee Gomez

MARKET Leader Rolando Andaya Jr. has threatened to sue Budget Secretary Benjamin Diokno if the Department of Budget and Management (DBM) fails to implement a salary increase for government workers by next week.

“Let’s see if he wants to be face to face with me,” Andaya said in a phone interview. “If he wants to face me, let him face me. What I’m saying is that if next week he’s not going to implement the salary increase, I will sue him.”

Andaya, a former budget secretary, said the DBM has been using “smoke tactics” in delaying the approval of the proposed 2019 budget, a move that would affect the release of funds for the annual procession of the Black Nazarene and other government programs.

“Why is he making such a big issue of the Black Nazarene? The reason is, there is no salary increase,” Andaya said.

After a rough 2018, headwinds are rising for the Chinese economy as authorities try to ward off a deepening of the trade war with the US. China’s refineries are facing tougher contracts as companies seek to shore up inventories and external demand is clouded by mounting uncertainty.

To cushion the blow, PBOC, China’s central bank, has announced another cut to the amount of cash lenders must hold as reserves in a move to release as much as Rmb1.5tn ($173bn) of liquidity and offset a funding squeeze ahead of the Chinese New Year. China is, in a key driver of global growth. The world’s second-largest economy’s $34tn of public and private debt, however, has for a growing concern across the world. China’s leading economic indicators may have accumulated 40tn yuan ($5.8tn) of off-balance sheet debt, or even more, suggesting further defaults are in store, S&P Global Ratings said in October. China is one of the countries most at risk of facing a banking crisis, the Bank for International Settlements said in a June report. While China has not published any official data on the size of its outstanding debt, analysts have estimated it at between 2019% and 28% gross domestic product at the end of 2017. Bloomberg calculated that China’s total debt has been household debt, expanding by an average of 19% a year over the last five years. At $6.7tn, and a record 50% of GDP, private debt is now comparable to that of the US, according to the International Monetary Fund.

There are now signs of fundamental changes at the highest levels of government. After decades of focus on hitting growth targets delivered breakneck expansions accompanied by fedded debt and water, a shift towards more balanced development for the economy is conspicuous. The focus is on greater environmental protection as well as quality over quantity. To degenerate, China’s $34tn dollar mountains is an explosive threat to the global economy. Or maybe, it’s just a manageable by-product of the boom that created the world’s biggest-economy. Either way, China’s huge economy is gearing up to worry the country off its debt-driven without intensifying an economic slowdown, but in the country, across the world. Economists are of the view Beijing will become increasingly aggressive in rolling out stimulus measures, including tax cuts and increased fiscal spending, as growth slows. But moves such as displacing the property market in Tier-1 and 2 cities will only be introduced in the second quarter or later.

China must have learned the practical lesson that a more-equitable prosperity is the surest path to sustainable growth and may give the market a decisive role in shaping the country’s future, the world’s biggest oil, and second biggest liquidated natural gas, buyer. China’s $34tn debt pile has for long been a growing concern across the world. A key driver of China’s economic growth since late 2008. Driven by low interest rates, a major catalyst of China’s credit expansion has been household debt, expanding by an average of 19% a year over the last five years. At $6.7tn, and a record 50% of GDP, private debt is now comparable to that of the US, according to the International Monetary Fund.

A study links green tea with diabetes risk

Researchers from China’s Fujian Medical University, the United States and other research institutions reported that mice fed with green tea showed a 50% reduction in their risk for diabetes. Another study, published in the journal of Endocrinology, showed that green tea can help control blood sugar levels in diabetes patients.

The researchers conducted experiments on mice to observe the effects of green tea on blood sugar levels. They found that mice fed with green tea had significantly lower blood sugar levels than those in the control group. The study also showed that green tea can improve insulin sensitivity and reduce inflammation in the body, which are important factors in managing diabetes.

Green tea contains polyphenols, which are antioxidants that can help prevent cell damage and inflammation. These compounds may play a role in reducing the risk of developing diabetes.

In conclusion, green tea has been shown to have potential benefits for people with diabetes. However, more research is needed to fully understand the mechanisms behind these effects and to determine the optimal dosage and form of green tea for diabetes management.
