Diplomacy, science ‘must work collaboratively’

By Joseph Varghese

Diplomacy has to work closely and collaboratively with advancements in science to tackle the challenges the world faces in the modern era, a US diplomat said.

“Science, policy and diplomacy have to go together, work collaboratively for facing the modern challenges as the new world order has brought its own benefits as well as a large number of challenges,” said Barbara Bodine, former US ambassador to Yemen.

Bodine was delivering a public lecture titled, ‘Diplomacy in an Era of Disruption, Discontinuity, and Discord’ at Georgetown University in Qatar yesterday.

Bodine started highlighting that the global order that has emerged after the Second World War has created an international order that has worked well for most part of the world, for most people and most of the time.

“It has brought more political empowerment, more and more people have been out of poverty and level of education has risen and many more. These developments could have been unimaginable before 1945. The world has been better off for the last several decades compared to the scenario before the Second World War,” explained Bodine.

“At the same time, it has also brought up several issues. Peace, justice and security have been concerns among many. The plight of refugees, oppressed minorities, the well-being of children, terrorism and violent extremism, climate change and its aftermath, war crimes and genocide among others have been major concerns of humanity in the new world order,” added the official.

The official also highlighted that the new order offers advanced communication possibilities with the hyper connectivity offered by the modern technology which has made the world more substantially a better place.

With the advancements in communication and a prominent platform for instant communication and information, it has also generated its own unassailable forms of miscommunication, false information and fake news, maintained Bodine.

Ambassador Bodine pointed out that the rise of nativism is another major challenge that the world is facing today leading to several mishaps and attacks on racial or religious grounds and the tragic events that the world has witnessed in recent months are testament to it.

“Malignant social media activities and its weaponisation could be the new challenges that the world has to face in this new order. There could be many other challenges too. Diplomats have to be more conversant with these new challenges which they may not have come across in their earlier years. Diplomats now have to work at a speed of their relevance,” she concluded.

Mowasalat holds awareness programme for employees

The second session of awareness programmes for Mowasalat (Karwa) employees was recently held yesterday.

The session marked the culmination of the annual programme that was carried out under the title "Karwa in Action" in an effort to raise employee awareness of the harms of drugs and alcohol substances.

The series of events was organized by Mowasalat to spread health and safety awareness among its employees, especially and alcohol substances.

The concluding session was held under the guidance of the Health, Safety, Environment Department of Mowasalat, Ministry of Labour.

The focus was primarily on raising awareness about the relevant Qatari laws and highlighted the international updates regarding prevention of drug abuse.

The lectures included several important topics such as identifying the causes and motivations of addiction, its effects on health, family, and society and ways to address them early. The participants were told about potential ways to identify different types of narcotics and psychotropic substances including various medicines and pharmaceuticals that are prohibited in Qatar as well as the legal provisions concerning drugs.

The sessions also covered important social, security, health, and psychological impacts of drugs. They also addressed the importance of preventive education that plans a certain strategy for drug abuse. The participants were given time to deal doubts and raise questions on how to handle crisis situations that lead to drug consumption and abuse.

Mowasalat has decided to hold awareness sessions in coordination with the Drug Enforcement Department in order to ensure the health and safety of its employees. The concluding session also marked the distribution of certificates to the participants.

The lecture further emphasized the importance of maintaining a safe environment at work for employees and highlighted the legal and psychological impacts of drug consumption and abuse.

"Drug consumption and abuse are serious issues that lead to crisis situations that result in drug consumption and abuse. Mowasalat has decided to support awareness programmes in coordination with the Drug Enforcement Department in order to ensure the health and safety of its employees. The concluding session also marked the distribution of certificates to the participants," said the official.

The event was well attended by employees from various sections of Mowasalat, including managers, supervisors, and workers. The participants were given a comprehensive overview of the harms of drugs and alcohol substances, and how to address them early.

The participants were given time to deal doubts and raise questions on how to handle crisis situations that lead to drug consumption and abuse.

Mowasalat has decided to hold awareness sessions in coordination with the Drug Enforcement Department in order to ensure the health and safety of its employees. The concluding session also marked the distribution of certificates to the participants.

The lecture further emphasized the importance of maintaining a safe environment at work for employees and highlighted the legal and psychological impacts of drug consumption and abuse.

"Drug consumption and abuse are serious issues that lead to crisis situations that result in drug consumption and abuse. Mowasalat has decided to support awareness programmes in coordination with the Drug Enforcement Department in order to ensure the health and safety of its employees. The concluding session also marked the distribution of certificates to the participants," said the official.

The event was well attended by employees from various sections of Mowasalat, including managers, supervisors, and workers. The participants were given a comprehensive overview of the harms of drugs and alcohol substances, and how to address them early.

The second session of awareness programmes for Mowasalat (Karwa) employees was recently held yesterday.

The session marked the culmination of the annual programme that was carried out under the title "Karwa in Action" in an effort to raise employee awareness of the harms of drugs and alcohol substances.

The series of events was organized by Mowasalat to spread health and safety awareness among its employees, especially and alcohol substances.

The concluding session was held under the guidance of the Health, Safety, Environment Department of Mowasalat, Ministry of Labour.

The focus was primarily on raising awareness about the relevant Qatari laws and highlighted the international updates regarding prevention of drug abuse.

The lectures included several important topics such as identifying the causes and motivations of addiction, its effects on health, family, and society and ways to address them early. The participants were told about potential ways to identify different types of narcotics and psychotropic substances including various medicines and pharmaceuticals that are prohibited in Qatar as well as the legal provisions concerning drugs.

The sessions also covered important social, security, health, and psychological impacts of drugs. They also addressed the importance of preventive education that plans a certain strategy for drug abuse. Wellspring Meals Plan

Two weeks ago, I was having a hard time getting up in the morning. As a business owner, I often have to work at unusual hours, and sometimes on weekends too. I also often travel for work, so I don’t always get the same amount of sleep. When you don’t get enough sleep, your body adjusts to the amount of light and dark it gets. This can affect your mood, as well as your productivity and overall health.

In order to combat this, I decided to make some changes to my routine. I started eating a well-balanced breakfast every morning, which helped me start my day off on the right foot. I also made sure to get enough sleep each night, which allowed me to feel more energized and focused during the day.

I also started exercising in the morning, which helped me feel more alert and focused throughout the day. I found that this gave me a great boost of energy and helped me get more done. I also started doing some yoga and meditation, which helped me feel more relaxed and stress-free.

Overall, I found that these changes had a positive impact on my energy levels, productivity, and overall health. I would definitely recommend trying some of these changes if you’re feeling low-energy too.

Eating better for good skin

If you want to improve your skin’s appearance, one of the best things you can do is eat a healthy and balanced diet. Eating certain plant-based foods can help nourish and repair your skin.

For example, eating plenty of fruits and vegetables can help your skin stay healthy and vibrant. These foods are rich in vitamins and minerals that are essential for skin health, such as vitamin C, which helps to promote collagen production, and vitamin E, which helps to protect skin cells from damage.

In addition to fruits and vegetables, it’s also important to eat plenty of whole grains and lean proteins. These foods can help your skin stay healthy by providing it with the essential nutrients it needs to function properly.

You can also improve your skin’s appearance by eating foods that are rich in healthy fats, such as avocados and nuts. These foods can help moisturize and seal your skin’s surface, which can help prevent dryness and flaking.

On the other hand, it’s important to avoid eating foods that are high in sugars and processed ingredients. These foods can cause inflammation and lead to skin issues, such as acne and eczema.

Overall, eating a healthy and balanced diet can help you achieve beautiful skin from the inside out. So make sure to eat plenty of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean proteins, and you’ll be well on your way to healthier skin.

Is it the Earth that needs rescuing...

Yes, it is! The Earth is our home, and it needs our care and protection.

Protecting the Earth means protecting our planet’s biodiversity, preserving its natural resources, and reducing our impact on the environment. This means taking steps to reduce our carbon footprint, conserving energy, and reducing waste.

We can all do our part by making small changes in our daily lives. For example, we can reduce our use of plastic, use public transportation, and use energy-efficient appliances.

By taking action and making sustainable choices, we can help to protect the Earth for future generations. Together, we can make a difference and create a more sustainable future.

How to keep your skin looking youthful...

Tips for keeping your skin looking youthful:

1. Stay hydrated: Drink plenty of water throughout the day to help keep your skin plump and hydrated.
2. Use sunscreen: Protect your skin from the sun’s harmful rays with a broad-spectrum sunscreen.
3. Exfoliate: Regularly exfoliating your skin helps to remove dead skin cells and improve skin texture.
4. Moisturize: Use a moisturizer daily to help keep your skin hydrated and supple.
5. Get enough sleep: Lack of sleep can cause your skin to look tired and dull.

By preventing these habits, you can help keep your skin looking young and vibrant.

Wellness is a way of life

It’s important to take care of your body, both physically and emotionally. This means practicing self-care and taking steps to reduce stress and promote relaxation.

There are many ways to practice self-care, such as taking a relaxing bath, reading a good book, or going for a walk in nature. It’s also important to make time for activities that you enjoy, such as listening to music or spending time with friends.

By taking care of yourself, you can help reduce stress and improve your overall health and well-being. So make sure to take time for yourself and prioritize self-care in your daily routine.

Is a daily routine all it’s cracked up to be?

There’s no one-size-fits-all answer to this question, as everyone’s daily routine is unique to them. However, there are some general tips that can help you create a routine that works for you.

First, identify your daily goals and priorities. This will help you determine what tasks you need to complete each day and how much time you need to allocate for each task.

Next, create a schedule that includes time for work, family, and personal time. This will help you stay organized and ensure that you have time for the things that are most important to you.

Finally, be flexible and allow for some flexibility in your routine. This will help you stay motivated and avoid burnout.

Are you seeing enough green?

Colour can impact our emotions and behaviour. As green gives our eyes the power to see in one of the most beautiful ways, it can have a calming effect on our minds and bodies.

According to research, green is the most restful colour for the eyes, and can help to reduce stress and promote relaxation. This is because green is a colour that is often associated with nature and growth, and can help to remind us of the beauty and abundance of the natural world.

However, it’s important to note that not all greens are created equal. Some greens, such as those found in leafy vegetables, can have a more energizing effect on the body, while others, such as those found in darker greens like spinach and kale, can have a more restful effect.

Smiles vs frowns

Compared to smiles, frowns can teach us a lot about our emotions and how we feel. In fact, scientists have found that people tend to smile more than they frown, even if they’re feeling sad or melancholic.

When we smile, our brains release the chemical serotonin, which can help to uplift our mood and reduce feelings of sadness or depression. This is because serotonin is a neurotransmitter that helps to regulate mood and behaviour, and is often depleted when we’re feeling down.

On the other hand, frowns can help us to express our emotions and communicate our feelings to others. This is because frowns are often associated with negative emotions, such as anger or sadness, and can help us to convey our feelings to others.

April Fools’ day upbringing

April Fools’ Day is a day where people play tricks on each other and try to make others laugh. It’s a fun and light-hearted way to celebrate the start of spring, and it’s a tradition that has been enjoyed for centuries.

However, it’s important to remember that April Fools’ Day should be enjoyed in a spirit of fun and kindness. It’s important to avoid making others feel uncomfortable or hurt, and to make sure that all of the jokes and pranks are appropriate for the situation.

Are you seeing enough green?...

Are you seeing enough green? Colour can impact the abundance of green around us. The more green we see, the more likely we are to be happy and healthy.

According to research, people who spend more time in green spaces are more likely to report positive health outcomes, such as reduced stress and improved mood. This is because green spaces can help to reduce stress and promote relaxation.

However, it’s important to note that not all green spaces are created equal. Some green spaces, such as those found in parks and gardens, can have a more restful effect on the body, while others, such as those found in busy city centres, can have a more energizing effect.

It’s not the Earth that needs rescuing...

It’s not the Earth that needs rescuing... it’s us! We need to start making changes to our daily routines in order to reduce our impact on the planet.

Here are some tips for reducing your impact on the planet and living a more sustainable lifestyle:

1. Reduce, reuse, recycle: Try to reduce the amount of waste you produce, reuse items whenever possible, and recycle what you can.
2. Use energy-efficient appliances: Look for appliances with the ENERGY STAR label, which indicates that they’re more energy-efficient.
3. Conserve water:Fix leaky faucets and toilets, and take shorter showers.

Saudi Arabia executes young men after sham trials

By Anthony Harwood

A man named Ali al-Nimr, who was arrested in 2012 when he was 16, has been sentenced to death by Saudi Arabia for crimes including support for terrorism. Ali al-Nimr is one of several young men who have been executed after sham trials in Saudi Arabia in recent years. The trials have been characterized by the use of evidence obtained under torture and by the absence of due process rights. The execution of Ali al-Nimr has been widely condemned by human rights organizations and the international community.

Sudan protesters pledge 'million march' for civil rule

Sudanese demonstrators gathered in Khartoum on December 19 against a decision by the military council to extend the state of emergency by 90 days. The protesters called for the military council to step down and for a civilian government to be formed. They also chanted slogans calling for a general strike and for the military to hand over power to a civilian government. The protests were met with a heavy-handed response from the security forces, who used tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse the crowds.

Ghana eyes world record in medical drone service

Akufo-Addo declares it would be Ghana’s world’s biggest drone delivery service. The country’s health minister has announced that Ghana is launching the world’s largest drone delivery service to provide access to lifesaving medicine. "This is strictly prohibited. Another man, Abdul karim al-Hawaj, 21, was also put to death. They were charged with preparing to deal with a possible new life in Europe.

18 new suspects held as Lanka hunts for bombers

Government admits ‘major’ intelligence lapses
Death toll rises to 359

Fighting has resumed in Sri Lanka's war-torn north, notwithstanding the government's denials that the cease-fire had been lifted.

The Sri Lanka Defence Ministry confirmed Monday that it had decided to lift the curfew and ban on land travel in the war zone, but that no offensive would be mounted. It also announced that it had apprehended 18 new suspects accused of being behind the attacks of April 21.

President Maithripala Sirisena said on Monday that he had concluded a ceasefire agreement with the Tamil Tigers. But he also ordered the military to continue operations against the separatist group.

The election of veteran Beijing-appointed leader John Chen as the new chief executive in the pro-China Solomons Islands government sparked protest in the country, with thousands of demonstrators taking to the streets and demanding a return to elections. The protesters secured their demands by seizing the country’s parliament building and demanding the resignation of Chief Justice Daniel Kaita.

In a speech on Monday, Chen vowed to work with China to strengthen bilateral ties and fight corruption. He pledged to implement the China-backed free trade agreement and to work closely with China to combat drug trafficking. Chen also said he would consider any request for new elections that could lead to the lifting of opposition parties.

Meanwhile, the Solomons Islands police have arrested 13 people, including six of the protesters, for allegedly clashes with police. The police said that the arrested people were detained after they attacked police officers and burned three police vehicles.

The protests continued today with more than 1,000 people gathering outside the parliament building to demand new elections and the resignation of the government. The police said that they were maintaining a strong presence in the area to prevent any further violence.

N Korea's Kim in Russia for first talks with Putin

North Korean leader Kim Jong-un is due to arrive in Russia today for his first official talks with Russian President Vladimir Putin at the beginning of May amid growing concerns over the North's nuclear programme. The visit will be a major test for the US and the two countries as they seek to find a solution to the nuclear crisis.

The two leaders are expected to discuss ways to denuclearise the Korean Peninsula, including a possible US-Russia summit. Putin is also due to hold talks with North Korean officials, including Kim's sister Kim Yo-jong, who is expected to arrive in Moscow tomorrow.

Kim's visit comes as tensions rise between the two countries over North Korea's nuclear programme and its development of long-range missile technology. The US and other countries have repeatedly called for a peaceful resolution to the crisis, but Pyongyang has rejected international pressure and continues to test its nuclear weapons.

Putin has previously met with Kim Jong-un in Moscow in 2013 and 2014, and has praised North Korea for its efforts to denuclearise the peninsula. However, the US and the EU have strongly condemned North Korea's nuclear tests and have imposed sanctions on the country.

Kim Jong-un is expected to meet with Putin at the presidential residence in the Black Sea resort of Sochi, where they will discuss the situation on the Korean Peninsula and the North's nuclear programme. The two leaders are also expected to address issues such as economic cooperation and trade.

The meeting is likely to be a key moment in the diplomatic efforts to resolve the nuclear crisis, as it comes just after the US and North Korea agreed to hold talks in Singapore in June. The two sides are expected to discuss ways to denuclearise the peninsula, including a possible US-Russia summit.

The meeting is also likely to be a significant moment in the relationship between Russia and North Korea, as Moscow has been a key supporter of the North's nuclear programme and has hosted high-level talks.

Sturgeon pushes for new independence vote by 2021

Scotland will prepare for an independence referendum before May 2021, Nicola Sturgeon has said. The first minister announced her plan after the Scottish government was given permission to bring forward a bill for a new vote.

The Scottish National Party (SNP) said the bill will be introduced in the Scottish Parliament in the “coming months”. It will mark the first time in the SNP's history that it will have the power to hold a referendum on Scotland's future in the UK.

The announcement comes after the SNP's landslide victory in the general election last week, which gave the party a majority of 48 seats in the Scottish Parliament.

The party's leader has been under pressure to hold a second independence referendum since the 2014 vote, which resulted in a narrow defeat for the SNP.

Ms Sturgeon said: “Scotland has a choice. The SNP is determined to give people the choice to determine the future of this country. We are determined to give people the choice to determine whether they want to be better off inside Scotland with the SNP, or better off outside Scotland with the SNP.”

The first minister said the SNP would consult on a bill to hold a referendum before the end of the year, with the vote taking place within the next two years.

She added: “We will seek to introduce a bill in the Scottish Parliament in the coming months, and we will seek to hold a referendum on Scotland's future in the UK.”

The SNP has previously said it would hold a second independence referendum if it wins the Scottish Parliament election in May 2021.

In a speech to the SNP conference in Glasgow yesterday, Ms Sturgeon said: “We have a choice to make. We have a choice to determine the future of this country. We are determined to give people the choice to determine whether they want to be better off inside Scotland with the SNP, or better off outside Scotland with the SNP.”

Russia offers passports to Ukrainian separatists

President Vladimir Putin signed a decree on May 26, 2019 granting Ukrainian citizens the passport of the two breakaway regions Donetsk and Luhansk. It is a move seen as an attempt to consolidate Putin's pro-Russian separatist forces in eastern Ukraine. The decree was signed just days after the landslide victory of Volodymyr Zelensky in Ukraine's presidential election. Zelensky, a comedian with no political background, won with 73.4% of the vote, primarily on promises to end the war in eastern Ukraine.

The move is widely seen as an attempt to assert Russian control over the eastern regions, which have been under control of pro-Russian separatists since 2014. The separatists control territories that were part of Ukraine until 2014, when Russia annexed Ukraine’s Crimea peninsula.

The move comes as Russia is facing increasing international sanctions over its aggression in Ukraine, including the annexation of Crimea in 2014. The EU has imposed sanctions on Russian officials and businesses, and the US has imposed sanctions on Russian individuals and companies.

The decree signed by Putin on May 26 grants passports to citizens of the Donetsk and Luhansk People’s Republics, which are recognized by Russia as independent states. The decree allows Ukrainian citizens to apply for passports in Donetsk and Luhansk and grants them certain rights, including the ability to travel and work in Russia.

Russia’s move comes as Ukraine’s new president Volodymyr Zelensky has vowed to end the war in eastern Ukraine and to seek a peaceful solution to the conflict.

The International community has called for a diplomatic solution to the conflict in eastern Ukraine, which has claimed over 13,000 lives since 2014. The conflict has been fueled by Russia’s annexation of Crimea and its support for the separatist movement in eastern Ukraine.

The move by Putin is likely to be met with a strong response from Ukraine and the international community, who see it as a violation of Ukraine’s sovereignty.

Russia offers passports to Ukrainian separatists

President Vladimir Putin on Wednesday issued a decree that Ukrainian citizens in the two eastern regions of Donetsk and Luhansk can obtain Russian passports.

The decree stated that Russia guarantees the citizenship of any Ukrainian national who resides in the two regions and has been granted a Russian resident's passport.

Ukrainian citizens in the two regions have been granted Russian passports since 2014.

The move comes after Ukraine's new President Volodymyr Zelensky won a landslide election in March, ending the pro-Western tenures of the two previous Ukrainian presidents.

Zelensky has said he will end the Ukraine's war with Russia and stop the use of Russian military in Ukraine.

The move was met with a backlash from the international community, which has called for a diplomatic solution to the conflict in eastern Ukraine.

President of Brazil

General elections in Brazil will be held on October 7, 2022. The current president is Jair Bolsonaro. A former army captain, he has been in office since January 2019. Bolsonaro is known for his pro-business policies and his close relationship with the United States. He has also been controversial for his stance on issues such as climate change and the Amazon rainforest.

Indigenous Brazilians protest over land rights

The bureau of the United Nations has condemned the death of an 11-year-old boy in Brazil, who was killed by a police officer during a protest against land rights.

Bolsonaro govt approval rating falls, claims poll

The number of Brazilians approving the government of Jair Bolsonaro has fallen by 14 percentage points, according to a new poll released on September 22, 2022. The poll found that 35% of Brazilians now approve of Bolsonaro's government, down from 49% in June. The fall in approval ratings comes amid growing concerns about the government's handling of the COVID-19 pandemic, the economy, and the ongoing protests over land rights.

Abolish forced entry

The indigenous people of Brazil have long been fighting for their land rights, which are often threatened by the government's push for agribusiness and mining. The protests are expected to continue, with mittens against the government planned in the coming weeks.

Plan to end ‘superior services’

The Pakistan government is working on a civil service reform aimed at eliminating the concept of “superior services” in the country, according to informed sources. The proposed recruitment system will have four stages. Stage I would be the screening criteria, stage II would be the selection criteria, stage III would be the interview process, and stage IV would be the final selection process. The proposal is expected to be finalised by the end of June.

Tudor timepieces unveiled in Qatar

It was a selection of vintage Tudor watches supplied by the Tudor museum in Geneva and retracing the product history of the brand from 1926 to these days. It also refers to the vision of Hans Wilsdorf, the founder of Tudor, who manufactured the first waterproof watch in the world. As a result, over the course of 70 years, Tudor has never deviated from the original idea of providing the Qatari market with products that bring together luxury, extraordinary beauty and lived experiences, and who stand for today. It fulfills the aspirations of individuals, society, and the world towards the east. As the sun rises, the world looks towards the east, and new opportunities. And so comes Fifty One East – a name chosen to reflect the geographic location of Qatar’s pioneering role in the watchmaking industry, the brand’s signature aesthetic, proven reliability and unique value for money, and new dawn brings light and new benchmarks. The Tudor #BornToDare spirit is supported globally by high-profile ambassadors – Lady Gaga, David Beckham, Jay Chou and The All Star – whose achievements and approach to life reflect both the spirit of the brand and their own.

Fifty One East presents exclusively Tudor’s latest novelties for the first time in the Middle East, directly after Baselworld 2019. The Qatari market was chosen to receive the new collection right after Baselworld 2019. Fifty One East and Tudor have a long-standing relationship, and we are proud to have the first Middle Eastern store to showcase these novelty timepieces for the first time in the Middle East, directly after Baselworld 2019.

Alongside the full 2019 collection, including models like the Black Bay Bronze or the Black Bay Chrono in Steel & Gold, was a selection of vintage Tudor watches supplied by the Tudor museum in Geneva and retracing the product history of the brand from 1926 to these days.
