Turkey to receive Russian S-400 missiles in July

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has confirmed that Turkey has signed a contract to purchase the Russian S-400 air defense system. The agreement was reached during a visit by Russian President Vladimir Putin to Ankara in May, and the delivery of the first S-400 systems is expected to begin in July. The move has raised concerns among NATO allies, who view the S-400 as a potential security threat. Turkey has been a member of NATO since 2004, but its purchase of the S-400 system is seen as a breach of trust. The deal has also sparked a diplomatic row between Turkey and the United States, who have threatened to impose sanctions on Ankara. The S-400 system is a long-range, all-weather, air defense system that can detect, track, and destroy aircraft, missiles, and other airborne targets. It is considered one of the most advanced air defense systems in the world, and its acquisition by Turkey is seen as a significant development in the country's military capabilities. The deal is likely to have implications for regional security dynamics, given Turkey's strategic location at the crossroads of Europe, Asia, and Africa. The move is also seen as a strong signal from Turkey to its neighbors, especially NATO, that it is no longer a passive member but is instead a player with significant capabilities. The impact of this deal on Turkey's relationship with the United States and other NATO members remains to be seen, but it is clear that Ankara has taken a bold step that could have far-reaching consequences.
Qatar participates in inauguration ceremony of El Salvador president

HE the Attorney-General Dr Ali bin Fetais Al-Marri yesterday met the Manager of United Nations Mission of Qatar to the UN and UN agencies in Geneva, HE Dr Yasser al-Mannai, to discuss the organisation’s latest activities.

Al-Mannai highlighted the important role the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) plays in developing nuclear technology and ensuring the safety of nuclear energy.

In this regard, the Attorney-General expressed his concern over the recent events in Iran, stressing the need for a peaceful resolution to the crisis.

Al-Mannai also reiterated Qatar’s support for the United Nations and its efforts to promote peace and stability in the region.

The meeting also focused on discussing the challenges facing the nuclear industry and the role of the International Atomic Energy Agency in ensuring the safety and security of nuclear facilities.

Al-Mannai expressed his gratitude for the Attorney-General’s support and stressed the importance of continued cooperation between the two countries.

Attorney-General Al-Marri extended his appreciation for the meeting and stressed the importance of cooperation between the two friendly countries.

Medical aid provided by QRCS topped QR7mn last year

The total amount of treatments provided to patients suffering from diseases of the dermatological system, heart, autonomic nervous system, diabetes, rheumatism, in addition to providing medical aids and health services, reached QR5mn, said HE Dr Yasser al-Mannai, Director of the Hamad Medical Corporation.

In this regard, the Attorney-General expressed his appreciation for the efforts of QRCS and Qatar Red Crescent Society (QRCS) in providing medical assistance to patients suffering from various diseases.

He noted that the QRCS has been providing health services to patients in Qatar and internationally, and has been playing a significant role in supporting the health sector in Qatar.

Al-Mannai also thanked the QRCS and Qatar Red Crescent Society for their continuous efforts in providing medical assistance to patients in need.

No unprecedented rise in current temperatures: Met dept director

A bird of the Ministry of State, Dr. Hamad bin Abdul Aziz Al-Kuwari, said in an interview with QNA that the current year was marked by a rise in temperatures, which exceeded those seen in June this year.

He said that the temperature levels recorded so far this month have not exceeded those seen in June last year, adding that the rise in temperature could be attributed to the heat wave that affected the country in the previous years.

The Attorney-General also stressed the importance of relying on official sources while looking for information on temperature.

According to the department’s guidelines and standards, the public is encouraged to stay hydrated and avoid outdoor activities.

Furthermore, the Attorney-General advised the public not to expose themselves to sunlight and wind, as much as possible, to protect against heatstroke.

The department also encouraged workers and individuals to follow the guidelines issued by the designated authorities on the matter, and to contact the emergency services immediately in case of any emergency.

The Meteorology department participates in 18th World Meteorological Congress

Qatar’s Civil Aviation Authority, represented by the meteorology department, is participating in the 18th World Meteorological Congress, being held in Geneva.

The congress takes place every four years to discuss the strategies, policies, standards, budget and office of the World Meteorological Organization (WMO).

This year will discuss a range of issues of WMO governance structure to address major risks and challenges of a rapidly changing world.

The WMO is critical in the provision of information which can help prevent and mitigate the impact of climate change and severe weather.

The congress will also discuss the impact of climate change and extreme weather events on the socio-economic development of countries.

The congress aims to address the main challenges of a rapidly changing world, in particular the role of the WMO in anticipating and responding to the implications of climate change for society, and also in the development of international cooperation to enhance the resilience of countries to climate change.
Indian embassy to present cultural event on Odisha

As a part of Qatar-India 2019 Year of Culture, the Indian embassy to Qatar has announced a cultural and musical event to be held on June 13 and 14, at Abdul Aziz Theatre, Zone West, Doha. The event will have an array of performances including dance, musical performance, and animation. The focus of the event will be to showcase the cultural richness of Odisha and Qatar.

The performance will also include a tribute to the Mother of All Tribes – an interactive piece – paying tributes to agyatri and the cultural traditions of Odisha, which will be coupled with talks on the historical and cultural traditions of Odisha, the masterpieces of Odisha dance and Odisha Kandhu Dandha. A group from Lasyakala will perform the Odisha dance while the Odisha Kandhu Dandha will feature an array of Odisha dances. Odissi dance will perform the dance of Odisha, Odisha folk dance, Odisha home dance and Odisha opera dance. The event will also feature Odisha art, Odisha medicine, and Odisha animation art, showcasing the masterpieces of India and Qatar live on stage.

Volvo Cars in-car cameras and intervention against distraction

Volvo Cars recently revealed a new step in its ambition to end fatalities in nose-to-tail crashes by addressing the issue of distraction. Apart from speeding, which is often viewed as the leading cause of traffic accidents, and alcohol, speeding has a top speed limit, distraction is a primary area of concern for road safety.

There are several key areas that constitute the main ‘proxies’ towards Volvo Cars’ vision of a future in which no one is killed or seriously injured in a crash.

These include: distraction and fatigue, serious injury or death that results when the driver is not paying attention or falls asleep.

Volvo Cars will address distraction by adding a dashcam to its in-car cameras and intervention against distraction.

Volvo Cars recently revealed a new step in its ambition to end fatalities in nose-to-tail crashes by addressing the issue of distraction. Apart from speeding, which is often viewed as the leading cause of traffic accidents, and alcohol, speeding has a top speed limit, distraction is a primary area of concern for road safety.

There are several key areas that constitute the main ‘proxies’ towards Volvo Cars’ vision of a future in which no one is killed or seriously injured in a crash.

These include: distraction and fatigue, serious injury or death that results when the driver is not paying attention or falls asleep.

Volvo Cars will address distraction by adding a dashcam to its in-car cameras and intervention against distraction.

IndiGo extends ‘temporary halt’ of services to two Indian cities

IndiGo has extended its ‘temporary halt’ of services to Thiruvananthapuram and Ahmedabad. The airline announced that it has offered a full refund to passengers who booked flights for these destinations.

TV viewing on this new Os-inch LED TV

The new Os-inch Ultra HD Smart LED TV, with a price of QR8,999, is available in showrooms in Qatar. The TV comes with an 'Easy Sleep Timer' that switches off automatically according to preset times. It also has a built-in smart app 'My TV' that lets you access videos, music, and social networking. The TV runs an Android operating system with smart remote, and has been announced. The TV comes with an 'Easy Sleep Timer' that switches off automatically according to preset times.
Brazilian football star joins QWSC initiative

The Ministry of Municipality and Environment, in cooperation with the Qatari Women's Sport Committee (QWSC), has announced an initiative to encourage women's participation in football and sports.

The initiative is part of Qatar's efforts to promote the rights of children and women, as well as to improve the quality of life for all. It is aimed at creating a positive message for women in Qatar's society.

This initiative is a response to the United Nations' 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, which includes targets related to gender equality and women's empowerment.

The QWSC has been working closely with the Ministry of Municipality and Environment to ensure that women have equal access to sports and opportunities. This initiative is a step in the right direction towards achieving this goal.

The initiative is a joint effort between the QWSC and the Ministry of Municipality and Environment, with the support of several organizations and stakeholders. It is an opportunity to raise awareness and encourage women to participate in football and sports.

This initiative aligns with Qatar's vision to become a leading football nation and a global football centre. It is a positive message for women in Qatar and a step towards achieving gender equality in sports.

The QWSC and the Ministry of Municipality and Environment will continue to work together to promote women's participation in football and sports. They will also continue to engage with other organizations and stakeholders to ensure that women have equal access to sports and opportunities.

This initiative is a step in the right direction towards achieving gender equality in sports. The QWSC and the Ministry of Municipality and Environment will continue to work together to ensure that women have equal access to sports and opportunities.
Ooredoo Group has concluded its 2019 Ramadan campaign, a comprehensive programme aimed at providing aid to vulnerable communities and underserved populations. Throughout the month-long campaign, a series of initiatives were rolled out across the company’s footprint in Africa, the Middle East, North Africa, and Southeast Asia designed to ensure this potential is harnessed in positive ways and bring about society’s responsibility to support each other.

Ooredoo Group CEO Sheikh Saud bin Nasser al-Thani said, "The holy month of Ramadan is a time for reflection, connection and gratitude. It is a time to share moments with loved ones, and be appreciative of what we have, while being mindful of those less fortunate. “

As part of the campaign, Ooredoo Group released its annual Ramadan commercial with a valuable message. The 2019 video focused on promoting positivity on the Internet, highlighting the enormous potential of the Internet, but warning of the need to ensure this potential is harnessed in positive ways and消除 using society’s responsi-ability to support each other.

Volunteers across the network donate their time and efforts to get involved in operating companies. Ooredoo Group companies across the MAGhreb East, North Africa, and the Middle East rolled out a series of initiatives involving marginalised and underserved communities. The operating companies undertook a range of events and activities designed to engage the communities in which they operate.

As part of the campaign, Ooredoo Group released its annual Ramadan commercial with a valuable message. The 2019 video focused on promoting positivity on the Internet, highlighting the enormous potential of the Internet, but warning of the need to ensure this potential is harnessed in positive ways and/positive initiatives supporting marginalised and underserved communities.

Sheikh Saud added: “It gives me great pleasure to see how the positive initiatives supporting marginalised and underserved communities were driven by volunteers from Ooredoo’s entire global footprint.

In partnership with the Ministry of National Solidarity, Family and the Status of Women, volunteers from Ooredoo Algeria undertook their 15th Goodwill Journey across the country. The operating company visited 11 towns to establish new community projects and support existing Ooredoo programmes. They built an outdoor playground at local hospitals, visited orphanages, and set up booths around the country. Ooredoo volunteers distributed food packs at Constantine, where volunteers provided free meals for families in need. They also distributed food packs at the Sultanate this Ramadan, arranged a schedule of activities throughout Ramadan, beginning with Iftar boxes, and offered a host of initiatives, including free food, data, calling minutes and gifts to customers around the country.

Ramadan’s spirit of sharing and generosity, Ooredoo Qatar also offered its customers the chance to stay connected to the community by offering a host of initiatives in its in-store campaigns, whereby customers were gifted surprises including free data, free calling minutes and more on a daily basis. Ooredoo Kuwait arranged a series of initiatives involving the communities. As always, Ooredoo Group’s operating companies via its Box Of Joy campaign, whereby customers were gifted surprises including free data, free calling minutes and more on a daily basis.

The operating company celebrated Garangao with children across the city, delivering traditional Garangao treats at Muroujイスラム asia focused its contributions to humanitarian organisations supporting different segments of society. Volunteers from the company visited orphanages, the elderly, and children with autism in Ramallah, Hebron, Tulkarem, and Gaza and presented donations to support them. Volunteers from Ooredoo Tunisia distributed clothes and toys to children at Dukan Primary School in Sidi Bouzid, a remote village, in celebration of Eid al-Fitr. Ooredoo Mali distributed gifts to workers living away from their families. The operating company opened daily rooms at its headquarters in Algiers, Oran, andConstantine, where volunteers from both Ooredoo and ARC served meals to workers living away from their families. The operating company also distributed clothes and onions to those in need during the holy month. In partnership with the Ministry of National Solidarity, Family and the Status of Women, volunteers from Ooredoo Algeria undertook their 15th Goodwill Journey across the country. The operating company visited 11 towns to establish new community projects and support existing Ooredoo programmes. They built an outdoor play-
Iraqi Kurds name president's cousin as their new PM

Iraqui Kurdistan's parliament on Wednesday named a cousin of the region's new premier as President Masrour Barzani's successor, following a no-confidence vote yesterday to oust him.

PM-elect Barzani will have to form a regional government amid high political tensions in the region.

PM Barzani, the son of Barham Saleh, had been serving as prime minister since 2014.

Lack of enthusiasm

It was unclear what enthusiasm the new PM would generate in the Kurdish region.

PM Barzani had served as prime minister since 2014.

Barzani's resignation came after a no-confidence vote in parliament yesterday to oust him.

The new PM, 60-year-old Ahmad Lawal, has led the Barzani clan.

Lawal has been a member of the Kurdish Democratic Party, the ruling party in the region.

Barzani, 50, was appointed by his father Barham Saleh as part of coalition talks with other Kurdish parties.

Barzani has been a prominent figure in the Kurdish political scene for decades.

He was first elected to the Kurdish parliament in 1992 and has held various high-ranking positions, including President of the Kurdish Regional Government.

Lawal, who has served as a member of the Kurdish parliament, has been a key figure in the Barzani clan and has been involved in various political and administrative roles.

His appointment as PM follows a series of political developments in the region.

Barzani had announced his resignation on Monday, citing the need for a new leader to address the region's challenges.

The move came after a no-confidence vote in parliament on Wednesday, following a wave of protests and tensions in the region.

Barzani had been in office since 2014, overseeing the region during a period of political instability and economic difficulties.

The new PM will have to face the challenge of stabilizing the region and addressing the ongoing political tensions.

He will also need to address the region's economic and social issues, including the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.

Lawal's appointment has been welcomed by some political analysts, who see him as a moderate figure capable of building consensus.

However, others have voiced concerns, with some calling for a more radical approach to address the region's challenges.

The new PM will face the daunting task of navigating the complex political landscape of the Kurdish region and finding a way to unite the fractious Kurdish political parties.

He will also need to address the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.

Barzani's resignation has sparked a wave of protests and tensions in the region, with calls for a new leader to address the region's challenges.

The move has been welcomed by some political analysts, who see it as a step towards stability and progress.

Others have voiced concerns, with some calling for a more radical approach to address the region's challenges.

The new PM will face the daunting task of navigating the complex political landscape of the Kurdish region and finding a way to unite the fractious Kurdish political parties.

He will also need to address the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.

The new PM will face the daunting task of navigating the complex political landscape of the Kurdish region and finding a way to unite the fractious Kurdish political parties.

He will also need to address the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.

The new PM will face the daunting task of navigating the complex political landscape of the Kurdish region and finding a way to unite the fractious Kurdish political parties.

He will also need to address the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.

The new PM will face the daunting task of navigating the complex political landscape of the Kurdish region and finding a way to unite the fractious Kurdish political parties.

He will also need to address the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.

The new PM will face the daunting task of navigating the complex political landscape of the Kurdish region and finding a way to unite the fractious Kurdish political parties.

He will also need to address the ongoing dispute with Iraq over oil revenues and the need for greater autonomy.
Biden, Trump battle it out for blue-collar votes in Iowa

By Sebastian Smith, AFP

Donald Trump and his leading challenger, Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden, are vying to capture the blue-collar voters who have helped the Republican president win key battleground states in the past. Trump entered a union hall in Council Bluffs, Iowa, on Tuesday night, with Biden holding his own rally an hour later in Des Moines. Iowa is a crucial state in the US presidential election, and its general election vote is crucial for both candidates.

Iowa is a crucial state in the US presidential election, and its general election vote is crucial for both candidates. Iowa's electoral college votes are considered to be important for both parties, as they could help either Biden or Trump win the swing states necessary for victory.

The Iowa caucuses on February 3rd are expected to be a key polling site for both candidates, as they seek to boost their chances of winning the nomination. The Iowa caucuses are a unique electoral process in the United States, where voters attend a gathering to cast their votes for the Democratic or Republican presidential candidates.

The Iowa Democratic caucuses were held on February 3rd, and the results were announced on February 5th. Trump finished in second place, with 25% of the vote, behind Biden, who won with 38%. Other candidates, such as Bernie Sanders and Pete Buttigieg, also performed well, with Sanders finishing in third place with 20% of the vote and Buttigieg in fourth with 12%.

The results of the Iowa caucuses were closely watched by both candidates, as they seek to win the nomination. Trump has been critical of the caucus system, saying that it is outdated and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the caucus system, saying that it is outdated and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a primary system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.

The Iowa caucuses were held just weeks before the New Hampshire primary, which is the second in the series of primary states. Both candidates are expected to perform well in New Hampshire, as it is considered to be a key state for both parties.

The New Hampshire primary is set to take place on February 11th, and both candidates are expected to perform well. Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter.

Trump has been critical of the primary system, saying that it is unfair and not representative of the average American voter. He has called for a change in the system, saying that a caucus system would be more fair and representative of the voters.
Thai junta chief Prayut made PM in royal decree

Prayut Chan-O-Cha, left, attending the royal coronation ceremony appointing him as Thailand’s new prime minister at Government House in Bangkok yesterday. (Gulf Times)

Lanka MPs defy president to resume probe

Sri Lanka’s Parliament yesterday defied President Maithripala Sirisena and resumed investigations into security lapses surrounding the Easter suicide bombings that killed 258 people, officially ending a stand-off in a sign of normality.

Sirisena has postponed investigations into the attack, which killed 258 people, a day after his government bowed to the Parliamentary Select Committee (PSC) which has begun hearing testimony from Muslim community leaders. The committee said they were granted access to government documents.

The passengers – 28 men, 10 women, 23 children – were stranded for almost 24 hours before being allowed to disembark in order to see whether they are victims of trafficking.

Dozens of local and Vietnamese communities along swathes of the gulf were fishing yesterday after being forced to flee their homelands. The passengers were transferred to the mainland.

A US man faces death penalty trial in Vietnam

A Vietnamese-American man charged with “activities aimed at overthrowing the state” will go to trial in HCM City on June 24, his family said, and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial is set for June 24-26 in this southern commercial capital, sources said on Wednesday. The family said he was arrested in February, his family and a lawyer said.

“Two activities amounted to espionage against Vietnam – helping逆势 (Switzerland) and Free Press (US) – which will also be tried with him, along with his father’s wife, who has been charged with a ‘human rights activity’, said Dr Hoai Nguyen Van Minh.

“They were just simply in the US, they come back to Vietnam. Unfortunately they didn’t set up a political party, they didn’t express any desire to try to replace the current party.”

Dinh Van Nguyen left Vietnam in 2012 to study abroad.

He was jailed for 5 years in 2016 for pouring chemicals – Tinh province was fined $500mn for devastae fish stocks.

Lawyers in Taiwan launched a multi-million dollar lawsuit on behalf of thousands of Vietnamese fishermen in 2010, French charity Intosh, 71, was sentenced to 13 years’ in prison.

In 2013, Dalglish denied the charges.

Sirisena has insisted that as prime minister he is responsible for the Easter attacks and has mounted a legal challenge against the UN’s top officials.

He has held key positions in UN agencies, including a chief of peacekeeping missions.

The passengers were transferred to the mainland.

US man faces death penalty trial in Vietnam

A Vietnamese-American man charged with “activities aimed at overthrowing the state” will go to trial in HCM City on June 24, his family said, and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial is set for June 24-26 in this southern commercial capital, sources said on Wednesday. The family said he was arrested in February, his family and a lawyer said.

“Two activities amounted to espionage against Vietnam – helping逆势 (Switzerland) and Free Press (US) – which will also be tried with him, along with his father’s wife, who has been charged with a ‘human rights activity’, said Dr Hoai Nguyen Van Minh.

“They were just simply in the US, they come back to Vietnam. Unfortunately they didn’t set up a political party, they didn’t express any desire to try to replace the current party.”

Dinh Van Nguyen left Vietnam in 2012 to study abroad.

He was jailed for 5 years in 2016 for pouring chemicals – Tinh province was fined $500mn for devastae fish stocks.

Lawyers in Taiwan launched a multi-million dollar lawsuit on behalf of thousands of Vietnamese fishermen in 2010, French charity Intosh, 71, was sentenced to 13 years’ in prison.

In 2013, Dalglish denied the charges.

Sirisena has insisted that as prime minister he is responsible for the Easter attacks and has mounted a legal challenge against the UN’s top officials.

He has held key positions in UN agencies, including a chief of peacekeeping missions.

The passengers were transferred to the mainland.

US man faces death penalty trial in Vietnam

A Vietnamese-American man charged with “activities aimed at overthrowing the state” will go to trial in HCM City on June 24, his family said, and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial is set for June 24-26 in this southern commercial capital, sources said on Wednesday. The family said he was arrested in February, his family and a lawyer said.

“Two activities amounted to espionage against Vietnam – helping逆势 (Switzerland) and Free Press (US) – which will also be tried with him, along with his father’s wife, who has been charged with a ‘human rights activity’, said Dr Hoai Nguyen Van Minh.

“They were just simply in the US, they come back to Vietnam. Unfortunately they didn’t set up a political party, they didn’t express any desire to try to replace the current party.”

Dinh Van Nguyen left Vietnam in 2012 to study abroad.

He was jailed for 5 years in 2016 for pouring chemicals – Tinh province was fined $500mn for devastae fish stocks.

Lawyers in Taiwan launched a multi-million dollar lawsuit on behalf of thousands of Vietnamese fishermen in 2010, French charity Intosh, 71, was sentenced to 13 years’ in prison.

In 2013, Dalglish denied the charges.

Sirisena has insisted that as prime minister he is responsible for the Easter attacks and has mounted a legal challenge against the UN’s top officials.

He has held key positions in UN agencies, including a chief of peacekeeping missions.

The passengers were transferred to the mainland.

US man faces death penalty trial in Vietnam

A Vietnamese-American man charged with “activities aimed at overthrowing the state” will go to trial in HCM City on June 24, his family said, and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial is set for June 24-26 in this southern commercial capital, sources said on Wednesday. The family said he was arrested in February, his family and a lawyer said.

“Two activities amounted to espionage against Vietnam – helping逆势 (Switzerland) and Free Press (US) – which will also be tried with him, along with his father’s wife, who has been charged with a ‘human rights activity’, said Dr Hoai Nguyen Van Minh.

“They were just simply in the US, they come back to Vietnam. Unfortunately they didn’t set up a political party, they didn’t express any desire to try to replace the current party.”

Dinh Van Nguyen left Vietnam in 2012 to study abroad.

He was jailed for 5 years in 2016 for pouring chemicals – Tinh province was fined $500mn for devastae fish stocks.

Lawyers in Taiwan launched a multi-million dollar lawsuit on behalf of thousands of Vietnamese fishermen in 2010, French charity Intosh, 71, was sentenced to 13 years’ in prison.

In 2013, Dalglish denied the charges.

Sirisena has insisted that as prime minister he is responsible for the Easter attacks and has mounted a legal challenge against the UN’s top officials.

He has held key positions in UN agencies, including a chief of peacekeeping missions.

The passengers were transferred to the mainland.

US man faces death penalty trial in Vietnam

A Vietnamese-American man charged with “activities aimed at overthrowing the state” will go to trial in HCM City on June 24, his family said, and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial is set for June 24-26 in this southern commercial capital, sources said on Wednesday. The family said he was arrested in February, his family and a lawyer said.

“Two activities amounted to espionage against Vietnam – helping逆势 (Switzerland) and Free Press (US) – which will also be tried with him, along with his father’s wife, who has been charged with a ‘human rights activity’, said Dr Hoai Nguyen Van Minh.

“They were just simply in the US, they come back to Vietnam. Unfortunately they didn’t set up a political party, they didn’t express any desire to try to replace the current party.”

Dinh Van Nguyen left Vietnam in 2012 to study abroad.

He was jailed for 5 years in 2016 for pouring chemicals – Tinh province was fined $500mn for devastae fish stocks.

Lawyers in Taiwan launched a multi-million dollar lawsuit on behalf of thousands of Vietnamese fishermen in 2010, French charity Intosh, 71, was sentenced to 13 years’ in prison.

In 2013, Dalglish denied the charges.

Sirisena has insisted that as prime minister he is responsible for the Easter attacks and has mounted a legal challenge against the UN’s top officials.

He has held key positions in UN agencies, including a chief of peacekeeping missions.

The passengers were transferred to the mainland.

US man faces death penalty trial in Vietnam

A Vietnamese-American man charged with “activities aimed at overthrowing the state” will go to trial in HCM City on June 24, his family said, and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial is set for June 24-26 in this southern commercial capital, sources said on Wednesday. The family said he was arrested in February, his family and a lawyer said.

“Two activities amounted to espionage against Vietnam – helping逆势 (Switzerland) and Free Press (US) – which will also be tried with him, along with his father’s wife, who has been charged with a ‘human rights activity’, said Dr Hoai Nguyen Van Minh.

“They were just simply in the US, they come back to Vietnam. Unfortunately they didn’t set up a political party, they didn’t express any desire to try to replace the current party.”

Dinh Van Nguyen left Vietnam in 2012 to study abroad.

He was jailed for 5 years in 2016 for pouring chemicals – Tinh province was fined $500mn for devastae fish stocks.

Lawyers in Taiwan launched a multi-million dollar lawsuit on behalf of thousands of Vietnamese fishermen in 2010, French charity Intosh, 71, was sentenced to 13 years’ in prison.

In 2013, Dalglish denied the charges.

Sirisena has insisted that as prime minister he is responsible for the Easter attacks and has mounted a legal challenge against the UN’s top officials.

He has held key positions in UN agencies, including a chief of peacekeeping missions.

The passengers were transferred to the mainland.
New Zealand quashes China extradition over torture fears

Thousands stage fresh protest against Hong Kong extradition bill

Indonesian suspects detail alleged plot to kill top officials

Australia PM to meet national broadcaster after police raids

N Korea demands US ends hostility

The Catholic Diocese of Hong Kong said the extradition bill would “damage the brand of the Hong Kong Police Force and Hong Kong Government in the eyes of China and the international community.”

Police have charged Zen with false imprisonment and also said they intended to seek a court order to extradite him to China. His lawyer said he would appeal the decision.

Beijing has repeatedly said it wants Hong Kong to extradite suspects to face trial in China and has already ruled against the territory's High Court's decision earlier this year to block a protestor's extradition.

The US says it has a legal obligation to extradite economic criminals convicted in China but the extradition bill includes a provision that would allow the Chinese to seek extradition for a far greater range of offenses.

The extradition bill has become a flashpoint for an escalating diplomatic dispute between Hong Kong and Beijing, with Beijing accusing Hong Kong of failing to take the bill seriously.

“Beijing is using Hong Kong to act as its global interpreter,” said a senior Chinese official.

The extradition bill also includes provisions that would allow China to apply the death penalty to those convicted of crimes in Hong Kong.

The bill is expected to be debated in the Hong Kong legislature this week and could be enacted later this month.

The extradition bill has been a source of friction between Hong Kong and Beijing, with Beijing accusing Hong Kong of failing to take the bill seriously.

The extradition bill also includes provisions that would allow China to apply the death penalty to those convicted of crimes in Hong Kong.

The extradition bill has become a flashpoint for an escalating diplomatic dispute between Hong Kong and Beijing, with Beijing accusing Hong Kong of failing to take the bill seriously.

The bill is expected to be debated in the Hong Kong legislature this week and could be enacted later this month.

The extradition bill also includes provisions that would allow China to apply the death penalty to those convicted of crimes in Hong Kong.

The bill has also been criticized by human rights groups, which say it would undermine freedom of expression in Hong Kong.
Villagers say gas well application is ‘a joke’, as inquiry opens

Sturgeon chides UK govt over Brussels trip stance

Johnson criticised for avoiding scrutiny

Labour draws up plan to block no-deal

Scotch First Minister Nicola Sturgeon accused the British government of lacking “honesty” by withholding diplomatic support for her Scottish colleagues after the visit to Brussels.

The Scottish National Party’s deputy first minister and de facto foreign minister said she had not been consulted about an apparent change in tone by her UK counterpart on the future relations between Scotland and the European Union after Brexit, which raised concerns among the Scottish government.

She said at a press conference yesterday that it was a “very worrying development”.

Ms Sturgeon, speaking after a meeting with Brussels officials, said the UK government had “decided not to consult” her on the issue and that she had not been told of the change in stance.

She said: “There must be a plan. It is not about playing politics. There is a commitment between the UK and Scotland on the future relationship, and it is vital that it is credible and robust.”

Ms Sturgeon, who met EU chief negotiator Michel Barnier, said she was being “led into a false position”.

She added: “The UK government is weakening its position on future relations with the EU and it is vital that Scotland and the other devolved nations are appropriately consulted.”

Ms Sturgeon said she had been “led to believe” that her colleagues in London had agreed to “consult” her on the matter.

She said: “There must be a plan. It is not about playing politics. There is a commitment between the UK and Scotland on the future relationship, and it is vital that it is credible and robust.”

Labour draws up plan to block no-deal

Proposed TV debates plan to block no-deal

The opposition Labour Party has drawn up a plan to block no-deal, as MPs prepare to vote on the deal next week.

There is disagreement within the Labour Party over whether to vote for or against the deal, with some MPs arguing that it would be better to support the government and try to negotiate changes, while others believe it is better to vote against and try to block the deal.

Labour's leaders have been discussing the issue, with some calling for a cross-party approach to try to find a solution.

Several Labour MPs have said they would not vote for the deal, with a small number calling for a no-confidence motion against the government.

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal was announced by the party's leader, Jeremy Corbyn, who said it was necessary to stop a no-deal Brexit.

The plan involves a series of amendments to the Brexit bill, which would prevent the government from ratifying the withdrawal agreement and implementing the deal.

The amendments would include a vote on whether to suspend Article 50 and start the process of leaving the EU, as well as a vote on whether to hold a second referendum on the deal.

Labour's plan is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”

The Labour Party's plan to block no-deal is likely to be met with opposition from the government, which has already made clear its intention to ratify the deal without further consultation with Parliament.

The government has repeatedly said that it will not accept any amendments to the Brexit bill, and has threatened to use its majority in Parliament to override any attempts to block no-deal.

However, Labour's leader said that his party's plan was necessary to protect the country from the worst-case scenario of a no-deal Brexit.

He said: “The deal is deeply flawed, and the government is determined to push it through without any meaningful changes. Our plan gives MPs the opportunity to stop this and the country from sliding into a no-deal Brexit.”

He added: “We will fight for our country’s future. We will fight for our country’s future.”
Outcry as BBC cans over-75s free TV licence

The BBC is being accused of a "scandalous" row over plans to axe its free licence for people aged over 75, a move that will still cost the corporation £1bn by 2029. In return, the broadcaster with a bill of at least £1bn by 2029. In return, the government gave the BBC permission to stop selling free TV licences, but the licence itself.

Although 900,000 households are estimated to be entitled to free licences, fewer than 400,000 are expected to apply. The broadcaster’s chief executive, Tony Hall, said today that he had been asked to consider changing the rules.

"We have identified a number of people who are not currently entitled to a licence, but who may be eligible," he said. "This could include people who have lost their jobs or are on a low income, or who are in receipt of benefits.

The move comes as the BBC’s financial situation continues to worsen. The corporation has lost £1bn in advertising revenue in the past three years, and is facing a £2bn deficit by 2029. But it has also seen a rise in its income from streaming and online services.

The BBC’s planned change is likely to be met with opposition from some quarters, with many arguing that it is an unfair move that will disproportionately affect the elderly.

But ministers defend the plans as a necessary step to ensure the BBC’s long-term sustainability. They say that the licence fee is a outdated and unfair tax on the nation’s taxpayers.

The BBC’s licence fee has been in place since 1952, but the government has been considering a reform for several years. Last month, Culture Secretary Jeremy Hunt announced that the BBC’s licence fee would be replaced with a subscription-based model.

But Hunt has been criticized for his proposals, with many arguing that they would put a strain on the country’s most vulnerable people.

The BBC is now due to carry out a consultation on the new model, which is expected to last for six months.

But目前已知的最后更新宣告了在自己的层面上的行动已不可能。
Moldova’s President Igor Dodon cancelled a decree that would have led to the dismissal of the new government being formed in Chisinau, by a voting split between pro-Russian factions in parliament, according to local media.

The president, who is from the pro-Russian Democratic Party, said the new government needed to have a clear vision and a strategy for Moldova’s recovery from the financial crisis and the political turmoil of recent years.

Dodon said that the new government should focus on economic reform, social protection, and the fight against corruption, which is a major issue in the country.

He added that the government should also work towards improving relations with the European Union and NATO, which are important for Moldova’s future.

Several opposition parties have already announced that they will support the new government, but it remains to be seen whether it will have the necessary majority in parliament to pass its legislation.

Meanwhile, the former government, which was led by Social Democrat chieftain Maia Sandu, has left office after a vote of no confidence was passed in parliament.

The new government will be led by the pro-Russian Democratic Party, which is headed by Dodon.

The appointment of the new government comes after a week of political uncertainty in Moldova, where the previous government had announced plans to hold early elections in order to get a more pro-Russian parliament.

However, the move was met with opposition from the opposition parties, who accused the government of seeking to manipulate the electoral process in order to gain a majority in parliament.

The new government will face a number of challenges, including the need to address the country’s economic problems, improve relations with the EU, and tackle issues such as crime and corruption.
MNH

SC orders release of journalist arrested over social media

Four passengers die in ‘unbearable’ heat on train

WhatsApp threatens action against claims
Anti-terrorist chargesfiled against Zakir Naik

A four-year-old boy who fell into a 110-foot deep borewell in Muzaffarpur, Bihar on Wednesday, June 12, 2019, died on Thursday, June 13, 2019, the day after being rescued. The child, named Fatehveer Singh, was trapped in the well for two days before being rescued. He died on the second day of the rescue operation.

The rescue operation was led by the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) and involved the use of specialized equipment and techniques to reach the child. The rescue was successful and the child was brought to the surface, but unfortunately, he passed away shortly after being rescued.

The incident highlights the need for better safety measures and emergency response protocols in the event of such accidents. It also underscores the importance of community engagement and awareness campaigns to prevent such悲剧s from occurring in the future.

Protests erupt after toddler pulled out dead from borewell

A two-year-old boy fell into a 110-foot deep borewell on June 12, 2019, and was successfully rescued after two days. However, he died on the second day of the rescue operation. The incident occurred in Muzaffarpur, Bihar, and has sparked protests in the area.

The rescue operation was led by the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) and involved the use of specialized equipment and techniques to reach the child. The rescue was successful and the child was brought to the surface, but unfortunately, he passed away shortly after being rescued.

The incident highlights the need for better safety measures and emergency response protocols in the event of such accidents. It also underscores the importance of community engagement and awareness campaigns to prevent such悲剧s from occurring in the future.

A rescue team launched an operation to recover the body of Fatehveer Singh, 2, from a borewell in Muzaffarpur, Bihar. The boy fell into the 110-foot deep borewell on June 12 and was pulled out alive after two days with the help of an NDRF team. However, he passed away shortly after being rescued.

The incident highlights the need for better safety measures and emergency response protocols in the event of such accidents. It also underscores the importance of community engagement and awareness campaigns to prevent such悲剧s from occurring in the future.

A rescue team was dispatched to recover the body of Fatehveer Singh, 2, from a borewell in Muzaffarpur, Bihar. The boy fell into the 110-foot deep borewell on June 12 and was pulled out alive after two days with the help of an NDRF team. However, he passed away shortly after being rescued.

The incident highlights the need for better safety measures and emergency response protocols in the event of such accidents. It also underscores the importance of community engagement and awareness campaigns to prevent such悲剧s from occurring in the future.
Mexico minister reveals border infrastructure plan

Mexico's president, Andrés Manuel López Obrador, yesterday revealed the details of the construction plan for its border with the United States.

The plan includes the construction of a new border wall, the enlargement of existing facilities, and the modernization of border crossports.

López Obrador said that the construction will begin immediately and that the project will be completed within five years.

The new border wall will be 30 feet tall and will have advanced technology to prevent illegal crossings.

The government also plans to create a new border police force to enforce the new policies.

The president said that the new facilities will be designed to accommodate the increased traffic expected after the end of the US travel ban.

The government has also announced plans to increase the number of border agents from 3,000 to 15,000.
Pakistan's Prime Minister Imran Khan's government vowed to collect more taxes and slash expenditure, weeks after reaching a deal with the IMF for its 7th bailout.

The government announced at a把握ighted press conference that only around 10% of the country's GDP goes towards education.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The education budget for the current fiscal year is expected to rise from 5.5% to 7.1% of GDP.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.

The budget has also announced a 10-day remand for Zardari in the Sugar Mills case on April 9.

The government's efforts to collect more taxes and slash expenditure are expected to help stabilize the country's economy.

The government plans to collect Rs5.5trn from new taxes and increases in expenditure.

The number of teachers functioning in the country is estimated at 2.4mn in 2018-19.
Philippines President Rodrigo Duterte wants an alternative airport to Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) so as to improve its service to the public.

The Palace spokesman Salvador Panelo said the president, who had partnered with the Duterte family, tagged Cruz as one of several businessmen, including newly-elected senator Jaime Durazo, who Sy claims were solely responsible for the services being provided by PhilHealth.

A recent audit report by the Commission on Audit (CoA) said the Philippine Health Insurance Corp. (PhilHealth) overpaid more than P700 million due to irregularities committed by the government.

"The report is yet to be finalised because the CoA said there is a need for a full-scale investigation of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI)," Panelo told reporters.

"We will not say anything until the CoA tells us what is really happening."

Panelo, who a day earlier said Ferrer continued to be in a coma three days after the incident, said the president reiterated that "zero tolerance on corruption" is the policy of his administration.

"We will not make unfounded accusations or innuendos."

Each state, the president said, should be the order of the day, "he said in a text message.

The president told reporters that the full-scale investigation of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) was still ongoing.

"Obviously, they are investigating the matter right now."

"There is an audible response."

"Some are found out, some are not. Those who are not found out continue to be happy,"

A source from Philippine Navy (PN) informed reporters on Monday that a Chinese warship near Panatag Shoal (Spratly) continued to build facilities in the area.

"It is being claimed by both China and the Philippines that the ship is the vessel that was recently warning of ‘marauding attacks’ after Chinese vessels also recently surrounded Philippine-registered vessels in the South China Sea."

President Rodrigo Duterte wants alternative airport to open by November

The president said that the Manila airport was once rated as the worst in the world as an online site for airport tracking.

"It is important that the online tracking of flights be improved, but it was still among the worst airports in the world for a layout in 2017."

The Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) in Pasay City ranked 10th worst airport in 2017, according to the Airports Council International.

"The Manila airport was the top on the list of the world’s worst airports for a layover in 2017."

The Manila airport was the top airport for a layover in 2017.

It’s ranking has since improved but it’s still among the worst airports for a layover in the world.

The Manila airport was the top 10 worst airports for a layover in 2017.

The Manila airport was once ranked as the worst airport in the world as an online site for airport tracking.

"It is important that the online tracking of flights be improved, but it was still among the worst airports in the world for a layout in 2017."

The Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) in Pasay City ranked 10th worst airport in 2017, according to the Airports Council International.
Oil market balance calls for stable prices, investments

Global oil prices climbed 3% in the first four months of 2019 as major economies and countries from Iran to Venezuela suffered involuntary cutbacks in supply. Yet crude has since dropped more than 10% amid concerns that demand will ebb. The main culprits: Rising shale production, a more dovish Federal Reserve and the prospect of a deepening trade war between US and China. The International Monetary Fund has downgraded its forecast for economic growth in China – the engine of demand for commodities – to 5.6% next year, the lowest since 1990 and less than half the peak of 6.4% in 2007. A global recession could start within nine months of US President Donald Trump imposing 25% tariffs on an additional $500bn of Chinese exports and Beijing retaliating, according to Morgan Stanley. JPMorgan Chase & Co has said the probability of a US recession in the second half of this year had risen to 40% from 25% a month ago. A full-blown tariff conflict could cut $400bn off global growth by 2021, according to Bloomberg Economics.

The shale boom looms looming, 13% supplies will dominate oil markets for years to come, satisfying 60% of global demand growth to 2020, according to the International Energy Agency. Production from the prolific Permian Basin will double over the period and the country’s total liquid hydrocarbon output will rise to 17m bpd from 13.2m in 2017.

Russia now has voiced concerns that falling oil demand could send prices to $30 a barrel – less than half the peak of 14.2% in 2007. Cheap oil can cut investments to develop new oil and gas projects by private oil companies would reach a mind-boggling $21tn, according to a 2014 report by the Carbon War Room. What’s more, “energy sweet spots” could be left behind. The international market is “hoarding oil that will not be exported,” according to the International Energy Agency. “As the price of oil rises, the world will not see a return to the sustainable $100-plus levels in the new normal,” says IEA executive director Fatih Birol.

In response, the world’s biggest oil producer is working to maintain the price floor. In late May, OPEC and allies agreed to allocate an additional 1.2mn bpd in order to hold prices above $40 a barrel and to maintain market balance. The International Monetary Fund has cut its forecast for global growth by 0.2% to 3.3% for 2019.

The US has also been relatively spared from the oil price downturn, with the US oil price up 15% year-to-date. The US has been the world’s largest oil producer for the past year. The US also produce more than 80% of its own oil, which is cheaper and more accessible than imported oil.

However, the US is facing rising costs. The price of oil is expected to rise by 10% to $6.50 per barrel by 2022, according to the International Energy Agency. The US is also facing rising costs of production, with the US oil price up 15% year-to-date. The US also produce more than 80% of its own oil, which is cheaper and more accessible than imported oil.

The US is facing rising costs. The price of oil is expected to rise by 10% to $6.50 per barrel by 2022, according to the International Energy Agency. The US is also facing rising costs of production, with the US oil price up 15% year-to-date. The US also produce more than 80% of its own oil, which is cheaper and more accessible than imported oil.

The US is facing rising costs. The price of oil is expected to rise by 10% to $6.50 per barrel by 2022, according to the International Energy Agency. The US is also facing rising costs of production, with the US oil price up 15% year-to-date. The US also produce more than 80% of its own oil, which is cheaper and more accessible than imported oil.
Human destruction of the living world is causing a “frightening” number of plant extinctions, according to the first global analysis of the issue.

They found 571 species had definitely been wiped out since 1750 but with knowledge of plant species so limited, the true number is likely to be much higher. The researchers said the plant extinction rate was 100 times greater now than before the industrial revolution, and that was already by an underestimate. “Plants underpin all aspects of Earth,” said Dr Maria Vorontsova, at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, who was part of the team. “They provide the oxygen we breathe and the food we eat, as well as making up the baseline of the world’s ecosystems so plant extinctions is bad news for all species.”

The number of plants that have gone extinct is only a fraction of what the number of extinct birds, mammals and amphibians combined. The new figure is also four times the number of extinct plants recorded in the International Union for Conservation of Nature’s red list. For example, location is a more important factor than type of plant: particularly vulnerable to extinction.

For example, one in five of world’s plant species are at risk of extinction. One in five of world’s plant species are at risk of extinction. The plant analysis found Hawaii had the most recorded extinctions – so plant extinction is bad news for all species.

The number of plants that have gone extinct is only a fraction of what the number of extinct birds, mammals and amphibians combined. The new figure is also four times the number of extinct plants recorded in the International Union for Conservation of Nature’s red list. For example, location is a more important factor than type of plant: particularly vulnerable to extinction.

For example, location is a more important factor than type of plant: particularly vulnerable to extinction. The plant analysis found Hawaii had the most recorded extinctions – so plant extinction is bad news for all species.
WCM-Q students gain physicianship through experiential learning

A total of 15 NU-Q graduates received Latin honours. All of the students recognised the value of them Qataris, chose one of the five themes to concentrate on: interdisciplinary teamwork in the medical field, leadership, empathy, emotional intelligence and problem-solving. "Each student has right to a unique global health career. As part of the English course students write essays, which will be made available to the medical field, their observations, an inquiry graphic study, and their references. Khalid Alshafi ept in focus on leadership and leadership was assigned to students and three students from W eill Cornell Medicine in Qatar who have completed their third year in the Department of General Surgery at JFK Medi- cal Center, New York. Those students have also been active members of the New York Medical Alumni Association, where they have held leadership roles. Students have the opportunity to participate in the Department of Education in the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom.

The Entertainment City continues to provide a variety of options for different age groups, from 12.30pm to 10pm except Fridays (1.30pm to 11pm), until July 13. Activities include "The Name of Allah" and "Moonlight Magic". Some SiQ activities, which started June, are still underway such as "The Name of Allah" and "Sea Activities," held at the Katara – the Cultural Vil- lage (SiQ) programme, which will continue until July 13. It will also give mall-goers an opportunity to "meet, greet" and "Sea Activities". The Entertainment City at the Doha Foundation and Recreation Centre will continue to provide a variety of cultural, health and well-being activities, as well as several entertain- ment options for different age groups, from 12.30pm to 10pm except Saturdays and Sundays. This is equivalent to around 16% of the total number of the 800 local productive farms across the country. The results of the study also show the prevalence of autism in Qatar is higher than in other countries. A total of 15 NU-Q graduates received Latin honours. All of the students recognised the value of them Qataris, chose one of the five themes to concentrate on: interdisciplinary teamwork in the medical field, leadership, empathy, emotional intelligence and problem-solving. "Each student has right to a unique global health career. As part of the English course students write essays, which will be made available to the medical field, their observations, an inquiry graphic study, and their references. Khalid Alshafi ept in focus on leadership and leadership was assigned to students and three students from W eill Cornell Medicine in Qatar who have completed their third year in the Department of General Surgery at JFK Medi- cal Center, New York. Those students have also been active members of the New York Medical Alumni Association, where they have held leadership roles. Students have the opportunity to participate in the Department of Education in the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom. The Entertainment City continues to provide a variety of options for different age groups, from 12.30pm to 10pm except Fridays (1.30pm to 11pm), until July 13. Activities include "The Name of Allah" and "Moonlight Magic". Some SiQ activities, which started June, are still underway such as "The Name of Allah" and "Sea Activities," held at the Katara – the Cultural Vil- lage (SiQ) programme, which will continue until July 13. It will also give mall-goers an opportunity to "meet, greet" and "Sea Activities". The Entertainment City at the Doha Foundation and Recreation Centre will continue to provide a variety of cultural, health and well-being activities, as well as several entertain- ment options for different age groups, from 12.30pm to 10pm except Saturdays and Sundays. This is equivalent to around 16% of the total number of the 800 local productive farms across the country.