Amir’s visit opens new horizons of economic co-operation: Pakistan envoy

The visit of His Highness the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al-Thani to Pakistan opens new horizons of co-operation in the fields of economy, investment and trade, Pakistan’s ambassador Syed Ahsan Raza Shah, yesterday said adding that the visit also promotes bilateral relations in all fields.

In a statement to Qatar News Agency (QNA), the ambassador said Qatar and Pakistan enjoy friendly and fraternal relations based on common destiny, heritage, trust and mutual respect, stressing that the people of Pakistan view the Qatari leadership with great appreciation in the light of the mutual and continuous support between the two friendly countries, and the contribution of Pakistani manpower to the progress and development of Qatar.

The Pakistani ambassador stressed the continuous interdependence between the two friendly countries through institutional mechanisms such as bilateral political consultations and the joint ministerial committee, highlighting that the current visit of the Amir to Pakistan may witness the signing of number of MoUs in the areas of investment, tourism and cooperation in the field of combating money laundering. “Trade will also be a major part of bilateral talks.”

He noted that Pakistan’s exports have improved gradually following the blockade imposed on Qatar in June 2017. Pakistan’s exports of goods increased to $90mn during the period from July 2017 to June 2018, compared to $52mn for the same period in 2016. Over the past year, special efforts have been made to boost Pakistan’s exports of services to Qatar, he said explaining that from 1 July 2018 to 30 April 2019 Pakistan’s exports of goods and services amounted to $146.457mn compared to $96.138mn in the corresponding period of the previous year, which represents an increase of 52.34%.

He pointed out that Pakistan’s imports from Qatar in the period July 2018 to April 2019 amounted to $1.556bn compared to $998.53mn in the corresponding period of the previous year, which represents a growth of 55.84%. He stressed that the balance of trade is still in favour of Qatar because of Pakistan’s increasing imports of liquefied natural gas and petroleum products. The envoy attributed the increase in Pakistan’s exports to the expansion of the food, construction and fintech in Qatar which seeks self-sufficiency and proactively seeks alternative sources of imports of goods and services. He pointed out that the co-operation in these areas is at the core and Pakistani companies are having lots of opportunities in the Qatari market.

There are about 700 to 800 Qatari-Pakistani companies working in infrastructure development in Qatar, he said and noted the link between Hamad Port and Karachi Port.

On opportunities for Qatari investments in Pakistan, the ambassador identified power generation, hospitality, real estate, petrochemical and strategic industries as the most important sectors.

Hundreds of people gathered at different venues across Qatar to mark the fifth International Day of Yoga in Qatar. Organized by the Indian embassy and the Indian Business & Professional Forum, the event aimed to celebrate the interrelationship between physical and mental fitness and promote the practice of yoga. The event included a morning yoga session at Qatar Sports Club, followed by a special session of the Indian Community Benevolent Club in the evening.

Ambassador P Kumaran, the president of the Indian Business & Professional Forum, opened the event with a speech. He highlighted the benefits of yoga, such as stress relief and increased mental clarity. "It has been a historic event today with a large number of people participating in the yoga sessions," he explained.

The event also featured a demonstration of yoga by the Indian Community Benevolent Club, which too saw a big turnout. "A number of yoga sessions have been arranged at different locations in the country. We have had three sessions on Friday and two sessions today. We will also hold one more session next Friday," added Kumaran.

Expo at Brazil mall spotlights Qatar’s passion for football

At the Qatar @roadto2022 Exhibition, currently being held at JK Iguatemi mall in Sao Paulo, Brazil, a set of collaborative photographs highlights Qatar’s passion for the beautiful game and the strong grassroots football culture in the next FIFA World Cup host nation.

The photographs are the result of a collaboration between the Supreme Committee for Delivery & Legacy (SC), the organisation responsible for delivering the infrastructure and legacy programmes for the FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022, and UK-based Goal Click.

Participants in the project, including those working to deliver the World Cup, community leaders, photographers, football fans and others, were each given a single disposable camera that offered just 27 chances to take the perfect picture. The brief for each photographer was simple: “capture football in Qatar as you see it.”

“And the results – glorious in their imperfections – are a reminder of what football means to the people of Qatar and how it helps unite one of the most diverse countries in the world,” sc.qa reported.

The exhibition, organised jointly by the SC and Qatar Football Association, is open until tomorrow.

Location: Al Aziziyah
Photographer: Maha al-Badr
“This photo was taken in our neighbourhood park and shows my cousins and their friends playing football. I took this photo because it represents Qatari culture and shows how much we love football. Football can be played anywhere,” al-Badr said.

Location: Matar Qadeem
Photographer: Geraldine Menezes
“I noticed this boy kicking a ball while I was driving. It turned out he was on his way to the playground for a game. I stopped the car for a few minutes to get the shot. He was happy to have his picture taken,” Menezes said.

Location: Barwa City
Photographer: Hanson Joseph
“This area is located opposite Barwa City, where thousands of people live. Every Friday people come here to play sport. Cricket used to dominate this area, as many of the residents are natives of India, where the sport is very popular, but over the years more and more people have started playing football,” Joseph said.

Location: Katara Amphitheatre
Photographer: Yezenia Navarro
“I’ve seen multiple shows and performances at this majestic venue, including opera and ballet. I’ve never seen football there, but this is one of the most beautiful places in Qatar and I wanted to bring football to Katara in order to show the world that football can be played anywhere,” Navarro said.

Location: Lusail Stadium
Photographer: Tamim El Abed
“The arena is complete – the arena that one day will host the World Cup final. It’s amazing to think that this place will be the focus of the world’s attention in just over three years’ time,” El Abed said.

Location: Fuwairit Beach
Photographer: Junko Mori
“Some Qatari children were playing barefoot on a beach in the northern part of Qatar. It looked so much fun so I asked to join in. I’m Japanese and I don’t speak Arabic – but football united us. It was a lovely feeling,” Mori said.

Location: Al Wakra School
Photographer: Hamad Mohamed Abdulaziz
“This was during a Generation Amazing event in Al Wakra – where we had just delivered a session about inclusivity. Two of the students were challenging for the ball. You may not notice but one of the boys has a disability. The message here is that football offers a level playing field. It can help everyone to feel confident,” Abdulaziz said.

Sanudor protesters accept Ethiopia proposed for political transition

Sanudor protesters have accepted the Ethiopian government's proposal for a political transition, in a significant development following a week of protests in the Somali capital, Mogadishu. The government has offered to form a transitional council of 15 members, including opposition leaders, to work towards elections. The opposition has yet to respond to the proposal.

French concludes report on 2005-7 military campaign in Senegal

France has completed its report on a 2005-7 military campaign in Senegal, called the “Operation Rachel” mission, which was launched in response to a request from the National Assembly to set up a commission of inquiry. The mission aimed to improve the living conditions of the village of St Louis and to support the Malian army's counter-terrorism efforts in the region. The report is expected to be presented to the government in the coming weeks.

Mauritania votes for a new leader amid opposition fears

Mauritania has held presidential elections, with opposition leaders expressing concerns about the fairness of the vote. The vote was the first since the 2014 coup that deposed President Mohamed Ould Abdel Aziz. The candidate most likely to win the election is Alioune Badiane, a former prime minister who has been endorsed by the opposition. The election is expected to be held on January 21, 2018.

Yemenis fear starvaton after partial suspension of aid

The UN agency for food and agriculture announced the partial suspension of short-term food aid to some of Yemen’s poorest areas. The move is expected to affect more than 24 million people who rely on food assistance. The suspension is due to the continued blocking of aid by the Houthi-held Yemeni port of Hodeidah. The UN says the move is a response to the Houthis’ failure to cooperate with the humanitarian efforts in Yemen.

Three militants killed in Kenya after blast

Three militants were killed in a blast that occurred in the Kenyan town of Nanyuki, killing one police officer and wounding several others. The attack was carried out by heavily armed militants who were reportedly part of the al-Shabab terror group. The Kenyan military has launched a counter-terror operation in the area.

South Carolina faces deluge of Democratic contenders

By Singler Gibson and Amanda Borschel-Dan

South Carolina is at the epicenter of the presidential nominating race, with votes being cast in the first contest of the 2020 cycle. The state's primary on February 29 will be held after the second-in-the-nation Iowa caucuses and before the New Hampshire primary. South Carolina has a significant number of black voters, who make up a large portion of the Democratic electorate. The state's political dynamics are complex, with a mix of urban and rural areas, and a history of segregation and voting rights issues.

The race in South Carolina is being closely watched as a key test for several candidates, including former Vice President Joe Biden, Senator Bernie Sanders, and Senator Elizabeth Warren. Biden and Sanders have both made strongShowing South Carolina's US Capitol Building, Democratic presidential candidate Senator Elizabeth Warren speaks to voters during a campaign event on February 25, 2020 in Columbia, South Carolina.

Venezuela should release jailed opponents: UN rights chief

At the United Nations, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, called on the government of Nicolás Maduro to release all political prisoners in Venezuela, following reports of widespread abuse, torture, and disappearances. Maduro's government has been accused of violating international human rights law, with reports of extrajudicial executions, enforced disappearances, and arbitrary detentions.

Bachelet, a former president of Chile, said she was “deeply concerned” about the situation in Venezuela and called on the government to respect the rights of all political prisoners. She also called for an end to the use of force against protesters and for an independent investigation into human rights abuses.

Bachelet's call comes amid growing international pressure on Maduro's government, which has faced criticism from the United Nations, the European Union, and the United States. The UN Human Rights Council has also condemned the government's human rights record.

ASEAN leaders vow to tackle ocean waste

Asean leaders have vowed to tackle its mounting trash troubles, with Asean foreign ministers meeting this weekend in Phnom Penh to discuss measures to prevent and reduce plastic waste going to sea.

The region, which houses the world’s No. 6 producer of plastic waste, has called for a “plastic-free” Asean by 2025. For now, the leaders are promising to “prevent and reduce” plastic pollution by 2030.

Mr Pramudwinai, Vietnam Foreign Minister Pham Binh Minh, Brunei Second Minister of Foreign Affairs and Trade Erywan Yusof, Cambodia Foreign Minister Prak Sokhon, Indonesia Foreign Minister Retno Marsudi and ASEAN Secretary General Lim Jock Hoi has given a joint press conference during the Asean foreign ministers meeting in Phnom Penh on Sunday.

One of the measures was adding police suspecting the business once a month, going back on targeted operations, and was invoking provisions of a decree he believed there was a need to incorporate this issue into global headlines.

Avail of tax amnesty to avoid trouble, says PM

The federal government has set up a research institute instead of setting up a university to study the tax amnesty scheme, which was introduced in 2019.

 Speaking to the media about the tax amnesty scheme, which was announced in January this year for tax evasion, FBR chairman Ahmad Jahangir Qureshi said that the institute would be established to study the scheme and its impact.

“Tax evasion is a big problem in Pakistan and the government is taking serious steps to address it,” Qureshi said.

He added that the institute would be established to study the scheme and its impact on the economy.

Qureshi also told the media that the government had already collected Rs5.5tn revenue from the tax amnesty scheme, which was launched in 2019.

P resident Rodrigo Duterte has asked the courts to declare at least 117 public employees, including himself, liable for illegal hiring.

In his speech during the oath-taking of local officials in Digos City on Friday, Duterte confirmed that 30 percent of his core personal staff were involved in graft and corruption cases.

After the appointment of his core personal staff, he said, “We have to be very sure it will all come out.”

He also threatened to fire any public employee he found guilty of financial irregularities.

To Duterte's 700 core personal staff, he ordered, “We will be coming for you.”

Duterte said in an audit report.

The men told Filipino police the Abu Sayyaf group, which conducts its operations in the southern Philippines, is behind the kidnapping of the foreign fisherman.

The Abu Sayyaf group, a militant group that claimed it has links with al-Qaeda, has been involved in kidnappings of foreigners.

The freed hostages had been held in captivity for nearly a month.

The militants, who demand the release of some captured Filipino soldiers, kidnapped the men on May 25, local news reports said.

The Abu Sayyaf group was formed in 1991 and is known for carrying out kidnappings and armed attacks in the southern Philippines.

Govt agrees to joint China probe over boat sinking

By Peter Pemberton / William Justice

China and the Philippines agreed to conduct a joint investigation of a Filipino fishing boat being towed by a Chinese vessel in disputed waters, President Rodrigo Duterte said yesterday.

The line of conflict, which has left boaters in the South China Sea, has sparked tensions.

Manila has accused the Chinese coast guard of colluding with the vessel’s 12 Filipino crew members, who are being held in the Sulu Sea fisherman’s detention.

But Beijing, which is based on the same principles as the 1982 UNCLOS, has rejected the claim, saying it was only to provide “technical assistance.”

The government has so far not revealed details of the incident.

President Duterte said in a statement, “To determine what really happened, the probe should include both ‘highly qualified and competent international experts, with the Philippi- ne government covering 30 percent of the member coming from a neutral country.”

Duterte said the plan is to form a joint investigation headed by top Philippine and Chinese government officials and ministers and ambassadors.

The government has not yet commented on the case.

Audit agency says HDFM salary hike ‘illegal’

By Mr. B. Salotino

The Home Development Mutual Fund (HDMF) released a statement last Thursday, May 12, 2016, that it had met a general increase in salary, which would be effective by October 31, 2016, without the Office of the Commission on Audit (OIA) in an audit report.

The audit report, which was released in Dec. 2015 and 2016, rated the fund’s salary hikes as “illegal.”

The report also faulted the Office of the President and the House of Representatives, which approved the salary hike.

As resolved by the (then-) BOL, the revised salary increases of five steps would be appro- priated in 2016 and 2017.

The audit report also found that the salary increase in 2017 was approved by the aggregate 22,400 HDFM employees from 2016 to 2017.

Inadequate funds are posing growing challenges towards containing Ebola Virus Disease (EVD) in East Central Africa, which has so far claimed more than 1,150 lives in the Democratic Republic of Congo alone.

A recent report by the World Health Organization (WHO) warn that peacekeepers are on the frontlines in the fight to contain the deadly Ebola in Congo and Uganda as well as other countries affected. It added that the Democratic Republic of Congo alone has recorded more than 2,000 cases, including over 1,400 deaths, which is more than in eastern DRC (in August).

New cases over the last two months have increased at the fastest rate since the outbreak began last year, as aid agencies struggle to meet the health and food needs in areas that have suffered decades of neglect and conflict, with increased deaths and health systems and regular outbreaks of deadly violence involving armed groups.

The WHO head appealed for more funds to combat the ongoing Ebola flare-up in 2017 alone. More than 20,400 peace keepers have also been infected with the Ebola virus in the North Kivu region of DRC and more than 1,300 have died so far – mainly because women and children. At least 10 months since the outbreak began, the numbers are rising steadily and the virus remains overstretched and underfunded.

People are infected when they have direct contact through broken skin, or the mouth and nose, with the remains of an infected person. And after banking out the virus, some 700 people, although unable to contain the virus in the Democratic Republic of Congo alone.

As Uganda. Experts had previously warned that if the virus crossed into Uganda, it would hit 90% of those infected, is transmitted through bodily fluids, making health workers including doctors and nurses are especially vulnerable.

Ebola is a virus that initially causes fever, intense weakness, muscle pain and a sore throat. People are infected when they have direct contact through broken skin, or the mouth and nose, with the remains of an infected person.

In fact, social democrats’ declining popularity has little to do with immigration. Their working- class manufacturers have disappeared and the unions have declined. Wise, many working-class voters have been lured by centre-right opposition’s employer-backed and welfare reforms. And after banking out the virus, some 700 people, although unable to contain the virus in the Democratic Republic of Congo alone.

Teflon populism

By Daniele Suracevski

Platform is unsustained and unmeetable. The 1980s, 1990s, and 2000s saw a surge in populism and anti-establishment sentiments in the Western world. These trends were often linked to economic and financial crises, political corruption, and perceived failures of traditional parties and institutions. As a result, new populist movements emerged, often led by charismatic leaders who promised to bring change and restore national pride.

These movements were often skeptical of traditional political parties and institutions, and accused them of corruption and incompetence. They also criticized mainstream media and accused them of disseminating false information. However, their ability to deliver on their promises frequently failed, and their popularity declined as their policies and platforms were not able to compete with those of established parties.

Despite this, populist movements have continued to gain support in many countries, often by stoking fears and exploiting social tensions. They have also been successful in taking advantage of the disarray in traditional political parties, often by presenting themselves as a political outsider, a “savior” who can bring about change.

Despite their failures, these movements have continued to thrive, often by presenting themselves as a political outsider, a “savior” who can bring about change. Science fiction prescriptions for dying coral reefs

Byytta Lee McFarling

The world’s coral reefs are facing a crisis, with many scientists predicting that up to 90% of the reefs could be lost by 2050 due to climate change. The United Nations has declared 2018 the International Year of the Reef, highlighting the urgent need for action to save these iconic ecosystems.

For decades, the world’s coral reefs have been affected by a variety of issues, including rising sea temperatures, ocean acidification, and overfishing. These factors have led to the bleaching of coral reefs, which can cause the loss of vital nutrients and oxygen, as well as the death of coral polyps.

Scientists have explored a variety of solutions to save these reefs, including the use of artificial reefs, artificial reefs, and the use of technology such as drones and robots to monitor and protect the reefs.

One potential solution is the use of “coral vaccines,” which could be designed to prevent the loss of coral reefs. These vaccines could be created using the DNA of coral polyps, as well as the DNA of other marine species that are resistant to the same diseases.

Another approach is the use of artificial reefs, which can be created using materials such as concrete, plastic, or metal. These reefs can serve as artificial habitats for other marine species, providing them with a place to live and grow.

In the future, it is likely that a combination of these approaches will be needed to save the world’s coral reefs. The key will be to work together with governments, scientists, and organizations around the world to protect these precious ecosystems.
