Qatar urges human rights council to end blockade’s coercive measures

Qatar has stressed the importance of the role of the Human Rights Council in fulfilling its mandate to protect human rights in the region and to hold countries accountable.

This came in the speech delivered by HE the Permanent Representative of Qatar to the United Nations Office in Geneva Ali Khalfan al-Mansouri yesterday, under the second item of the general discussion on the updated statement of the High Commissioner for Human Rights at the Human Rights Council at its forty-first session.

He said that this month marks two years of discriminatory unilateral coercive measures caused by a blockade imposed on Qatar by a number of countries in the region and to hold those responsible accountable.

He reiterated that Qatar condemned the reoccurrence of violence against people based on religion, stressing the responsibility of the Council and all governments in standing against the threats against immigrants, refugees and minorities, especially Muslims.

He also regretted that the High Commissioner did not address the violations and crimes committed by Israel, the occupying power, against the Palestinian people. He called on the international community to assume its responsibility in protecting the Palestinian people and to exercise their legitimate rights.

HE al-Mansouri pointed out that the military escalation by the Syrian regime’s forces and their supporters in Idlib targeting of civilian facilities is evidence that the Syrian regime believes only in the military option. He stressed that the perpetrators of those violations must be held to account.

HE al-Mansouri welcomed the initiative of the head of the Presidential Council of the Libyan National Reconciliation Government, the internationally recognised body as representative of Libya, as a step out of the crisis. He called on the international community to support the initiative and to put in place the guarantees that prevent the recurrence of violence.

Ashghal opens interchange on Al Khor Road

The new interchange offers direct access to Lusail sports complex

The Public Works Authority (Ashghal) yesterday announced the opening of a new interchange on Al Khor Road as part of the Al Khor Expressway upgrade project.

“The new interchange is located at Exit 32, 3km to the north of the recently opened interchange at the intersection of Al Khor Road with Al Majid Road. The interchange includes a bridge with two lanes in each direction and serves people using Al Khor Road, Al Shamal Road and Al Majid Road coming from Doha and Al Khor. It provides road users with direct connectivity to several public and sports facilities, and also ensures direct access to the Lusail sports complex, Local International Circuit, Lusail Shooting Club and Lusail Reserves. Ashghal has said in a statement.

Hassan al-Maejeba, Ashghal Highways Department project engineer, said the new interchange has put an efficient travel option in place. “Before its opening, motorists had to use the intersection of Al Khor Road with Al Majid Road and Al Mazrouah Interchange to reach the Lusail sports complex. Now they can use the bridge to directly reach the destination,” he said.

Khalid al-Rumaihi, general manager of Losail Circuit Sports Club, said the newly built interchange allows easy access to the Losail Circuit and serves athletes and fans who attend the events held in the sports complex. “It also delivers a safe and easy connection for motorists coming from Doha and Al Khor,” he added.

The 33km-long main carriageway of Al Khor Road was opened in April, a year ahead of schedule. The old road was developed into an expressway extending from Al Khor city to Qatar University Street in Doha. The old road, which had two lanes in each direction, was upgraded to five lanes in each direction. Besides, two emergency lanes were also set up. This expansion has resulted in increasing the vehicular capacity to accommodate approximately 10,000 vehicles per hour instead of 4,000 in each direction, the statement notes. Besides, it has enhanced road safety.

Ashghal has also opened three vital interchanges: Simaisma Interchange, the interchange on Al Majid Road and the interchange on Al Turfa Street as part of the Al Khor Road project. The Al Khor Road main carriageway serves as an alternative to Al Shamal Road as it helps road users coming from Al Khor save travel time by up to 65% compared to the journey via Al Shamal Road. The road is strategically linked to major expressways such as Al Majid Road. Besides, it directly serves more than 20 residential areas alongside the carriageway in addition to a number of economic, commercial and public amenities in the surrounding areas.

The road is expected to become the centre of development and encourage the population of Doha “to move outside the confines of Qatar.” The project will help draw new investments to the area in fields such as business and agriculture. Al Khor Road is a major link to a number of 2022 FIFA World Cup stadiums as it ensures a direct connection to Lusail and access to Al Rayyan and Education City stadiums. In addition to this, the new road facilitates access to universities and Al Khor Youth Centres, Al Khor Sports Club, Lusail sports complex and Lusail Reserves.

The road also ensures easy access to a number of recreational and tourist destinations such as Katara, Simaisma Beach, Al Farkiya Beach and Al Daayen Celebration Hall Complex as well as some of the most prestigious educational institutions in Qatar such as Qatar University, Community College of Qatar, Qatar Leadership Academy, Doha Institute for Graduate Studies and College of the North Atlantic–Qatar. "Ashghal is actively working on completing the remaining parts of the project. These include construction of 15km-long Olympic cycle track on one side of the carriageway and 15km-long pedestrian and cyclist paths on the other side as well as the construction of 42 polyclinics and cycle underpasses," the statement adds.

Top US security aide Bolton says US will receive no concessions to committee to meet with official

U.S. President Donald Trump's top security aide says the United States will receive no concessions to a committee to meet with an official and only engage in dialogue if Washington is granted a meeting with Iran's leadership.

“I am not going to engage in dialogue with the Iranians,” U.S. National Security Advisor John Bolton said Monday on a visit to the UAE. Bolton said the United States would meet with Iran's leadership “if and when” Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei's “flip-flop” over the issue of Donald Trump's deal with Iran.

In some comments outlining his new approach, Bolton, who is visiting the UAE, ruled out dialogue with the Iranians for now. “We want to see what Iran does and what Iran says,” he said in a joint statement with UAE’s national security advisor.

In a televised address Monday, Iranian President Hassan Rouhani said his government would “never negotiate with America” and would “not meet with the Americans” over a range of issues, including the nuclear deal and a war with Iran.

In an interview with CNN on Monday, a senior Iranian official said the United States would not meet with Iranian leaders for “ Years,” adding that the “dialogue was over.”

The comments come as the United States and Iran are on the brink of a serious military confrontation over a series of attacks by the Islamic Republic on the border with Iraq, which could trigger a broader conflict.

Ethiopia has been left reeling after a deadly rebel offen-ced that last week took west up to Addis Ababa in what officials said was an “attempted coup” in northern Amhara region.

The state’s attorney general, in a hearing Monday, said he set the date for the start of the trial on Friday.

Judge Ijeoma Ojukwu granted bail for the man who was killed alongside him.

The trial is expected to last more than 1,000 people were cremated or burned, including veterans of the dead and government-officials were both north and south.

On Sunday, the government launched a full-scale crackdown on the organisation described as a “hit squad” by the state’s attorney general.

Zimbabweans wary of latest currency re-launch

Zimbabwe has relaunched its currency in a controversial move that has several implications for foreign exchange.

Tanzania tightens foreign currency exchange controls

Tanzania’s central bank tightened foreign currency exchange controls on Monday, restricting foreign exchange transactions to companies with a history of currency speculation.

The new regulations will make it more difficult for exchange bureaus to operate, likely increasing the cost of foreign exchange transactions.

The central bank revealed that it has imposed limits on foreign exchange transactions, which will be reviewed every six months.

The new regulations were introduced in 2014, while electronic transactions (credit card) were introduced in 2016.

Critics hit out at millions spent on Harry and Meghan's home

The residence, west of London, had been bought and sold several times but was turned back into a single family home. It was still the last remaining block of flats it had been in the 1920s, when it was bought by the council. The council had already been ordered to stop using the building in 2016, but by the time it had the money, the National Trust had taken over. The National Trust is putting a price tag of around £80,000 each on the houses that were sold to the council to help fund the removal of Grenfell Tower.

The council is in the process of selling the houses to the public, but has yet to be paid. The houses are now up for sale, but there is no indication of how much they will be sold for. The council has promised to give a percentage of the sale price to the Grenfell Tower fund, but it is not clear how much.

In the meantime, the council is advertising the houses as “affordable housing” on its website, but it is not clear if it will be able to sell them for this price. The council has said it will continue to advertise the houses until the Grenfell Tower inquiry is completed.

The council has also said it will not be able to sell the houses until it has been able to remove the cladding from Grenfell Tower. The council has been criticized for not doing enough to help the people who lived in Grenfell Tower, and for not doing more to help the other people who were affected by the fire.

Tourists flock to Rome and Paris yesterday seeking their dream holidays, pedalling through temperatures, to arrange boat trips and content them with ice creams as a result of continental Europe. The hotel’s really hot, it’s over 40, I’m not sure what to do. I do five hours of work, go for a swim, eat ice cream," he added.

M exico's president yesterday said the 35,000 migrants his government has deployed to the US border do not have orders to stop migrants from crossing. Lopez Obrador told a press conference that the deployment would be reviewed to ensure a "sensible" response to the US request.

He made the comment after an AFP journalist's images of Mexican forces were reported to have been "washing" migrants. "This is being discussed and we have to see what we can do," Lopez Obrador said.

The statement contradicts what Lopez Obrador's own defense minister said on Monday in a joint press conference with his US counterpart.

Asked whether the National Guard and army troops recently deployed to Mexico's southern border were detaining migrants to prevent them from crossing, Defense Minister Salvador Cienfuegos said: "No."

"We are going to deal with this matter in a sensible way that does not abuse migrants," he said.

"We do not want to see a confrontation with the US government," he added. "We have to avoid any confrontation with the US government."

Supporters of former Mexican president Vicente Fox, the US ambassador Louis B. Susman and US House Speaker Nancy Pelosi have called for a "humanitarian pause" at the US-Mexico border.

A suspension of deportations would be a "positive" step, Cienfuegos said.

He said that all the deployments of the Mexican military "are in line with the recommendations of the public security minister."

The Philippines will not stop China from fishing in its waters, President Rodrigo Duterte said yesterday in the wake of the Recto Bank incident. "I think we'll have to wait for the case to be resolved first before we can react," a Palace official said.

"If we have problems, we will react accordingly," the Palace official said. The president had said the Philippines was willing to co-operate in any investigation so that once and for all the Recto Bank incident did not warrant the sending of troops to the area.

"That's the president's point," Panelo said.

The Department of Health is also checking the Philippines' list of fish that China can catch in the country's EEZ.

The country could not afford a full-blown, unbiased investigation "because the Chinese will not co-operate in any investigation," Panelo explained.

"The complaint was not filed before the Office of the Ombudsman," Panelo said. "I don't know if the Chinese will co-operate in any investigation because they're already in the country."

The president had said that fish and fish products are "China's especials," and that for this reason, "we can't say that we don't have a point that we will not stop China from putting their lines in our country's EEZ."

Duque says open to probe over scam

By John Cruz

Health Secretary Francisco Duque III stressed yesterday that the Department of Justice (DoJ) would have his full co-operation in the investiga- tion of the Recto Bank incident, explaining that the state-owned Philippine Health Insurance Corp (PhilHealth) was willing to co-operate with the Department of Justice (DoJ) to have his full co-operation in the investigation of the Recto Bank incident.

"The DoJ has my full support and I was willing to co-operate with them," Duque said in a statement.

He said Health Secretary Franchise Duque III is especially favourable to independent film exhibitors in the country.

The agency also released new policies and guidelines that will advance and improve the film industry.

Under the new guidelines, "a minimum run-length of at least seven days for every film booked for theatrical release, for example, will be shown only for half a day, to match the box office revenues of the film, and to increase the gross margin for booking agents not to have their tickets go to waste," said the agency.

The new policies and guidelines that will advance and improve the film industry in the country include the following:

- The head of the Film Development Council of the Philippines (FDCP) has changed the scheduling of the showing of new films under its Mandala sa Cinemas (MMC) 2019 list to released movies.

"It is best the Film Development Council of the Philippines (FDCP) changed the scheduling of the showing of new films under its Mandala sa Cinemas (MMC) 2019 list to released movies. We're already doing it, but they're changing it so that once and for all the film that was supposed to be released in cinemas has already been released," Panelo said.

"This is because the Film Development Council of the Philippines (FDCP) has come up with new policies and guidelines that will advance and improve the film industry in the country."

The Republic Act 11223 of the PhilHealth Board was implemented on February 3 this year.

Germany needs fiscal boost to stay as Europe’s growth engine

With trade tensions and a slump in manufacturing weighing on the euro area, the slowingdown in economic activity continues to be a drag on global growth. Of particular concern is Germany, Europe’s largest economy.

German business morale fell to its lowest level since November 2015 in June, adding weight to expectations of Europe’s growth engine, contracted in the second quarter. The Ifo institute’s closely watched business climate index deteriorated to the third month in a row, to 97.4 in June from 99.2 the month before. That was slightly more than a consensus forecast for 97.2.

“The German economy is heading for the doldrums,” Ifo President nú Blau said. The German economy stagnated at the end of 2018, trailing most of its peers in the euro area, and continued trade tensions mean any pickup in Europe’s powerhouse economy could still be muted.

“The German economy should show evidence of a rebound in the first quarter, provided the ECB (European Central Bank) with much needed reassurance that a downturn in the second half of 2018 is temporary. Still, manufacturing weakness is likely to weigh on its performance in the first half,” according to an assessment by Bloomberg economists last month.

The car industry is under particular pressure amid escalating global trade tensions. It was already facing issues including weaker Chinese demand, disruption from the US-China trade disputes, the UK’s exit from the EU and the transition to electric vehicles.

Along with weaker demand, costs are being pounded by higher raw material costs, notably energy. Apec’s delayed exit from the European Union creates uncertainties in the global business environment, according to the Ifo institute’s economic research unit.

The Bundesbank said this month it expects the economy to contract in Q2 in the second quarter after an expansion of 4.9% between January and March. The government has halved its 2019 growth forecast to 0.5% after an expansion of 1.8% in 2018, the weakest in five years.

There are, for sure, “green shoots” of hope. The services sector, buoyed by a solidly-domestic economy, has been providing important industry thrusts. The economy has been relying on private consumption for support, ruffled by a robust labour market, lower interest rates and rising wages. Higher government spending has also helped support growth and building the Bundesbank’s confidence in monetary policy.

The European Central Bank has decided to keep its interest rates at record lows, saying it was too soon to consider raising them. The bank’s decision is seen as a signal that it is ready to cut rates again if necessary.

The government is facing a difficult task in balancing the budget. The country has a large deficit and needs to find ways to reduce it. The government is considering a range of measures, including increased taxes and cuts in spending.

The Ifo business climate index is forecast to fall further in the coming months, according to the institute’s economic research unit. The index has been sliding for the past three months, with the exception of April, when it rose slightly.

Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy is characterised by weakness and wasting of the muscles in the pelvic area, followed by the development of the shoulder muscles. As the disease progresses, muscle weakness and atrophy spread to additional muscles of the body, including the trunk and forearms, eventually affecting breathing capability. The disease is progressive and most affected individuals require a wheelchair by their teenage years.

VCUarts Qatar design professors win merit award from US Cida

Three professors from the Interior Design program at Virginia Commonwealth University School of the Arts in Qatar (VCUarts Qatar) in Education City have received a merit award from the US Council for Interior Design Education (Cida) for their entry, “Meta Studio.”

Professor John Gimberg, Mohamed Jamil and Salmah El Hammali were given the award at a ceremony at the Interior Design Education Council conference in Charlotte, USA, in mid-November 2018. In the second Cida award that the department has won, with the previous project titled “Exploring Through the Lens – Photography,” the award recognises and celebrates outstanding practices that advance the cause of excellence in interior design education. Cida is an independent, non-profit, accrediting organisation responsible for setting standards and endorsing degree-granting interior design programs.

“The plotted out all the stops are really going to come and we correlated them with the themes of the week that we were going to here during the entire semester, so in a sense it was more project driven,” said assistant professor of Interior Design, El Hammali. “It really helped me to look at my project more in-depth and really understand the kind of space I’m creating and the kind of feel I’m creating,” said student, Yousif Al-Jaddan.

“The studio was a partnership, in fact a ‘Meta team’, which consisted of faculty and staff mentors from the Qatar Museum Library, Writing Centre, Wood Shop Fabrication Lab, Materials Library, Writing Centre, and the Graphic Design department.”
