Civic ministry, North Oil Company sign MoU on conservation of whale sharks

The Ministry of Municipalities and Environment and the North Oil Company have signed a memorandum of understanding for the adequate conservation and sustainable use of whale shark species and to intensify cooperation and exchange of experiences on the protection of these species in the country. The agreement was signed for the ministry by Director of the Ministry of Municipalities and Environment Pascal Meyer, Director of Wildlife Protection Department, Omar Salem al-Nuaimi, and for the North Oil Company by Vice-Executive President for Health, Safety and Environment Pascal Meyer.

Speaking at a press conference on the occasion, al-Nuaimi said that the MoU aims at exchanging expertise to study a whale shark conservation project, strengthening co-operation between the two sides in protecting the rich coastal and marine diversity of Qatar, and enhancing scientific and technical co-operation in the protection of marine life.

Al-Nuaimi underscored the importance of signing this significant agreement with the North Oil Company, which is the first of its kind, for the purpose of addressing the licensing of the ministry on co-operation and funding efforts between institutions and other bodies, especially between the private and public sectors in the state. For his part, Meyer welcomed the signing of the MoU which aims to preserve the coastal and marine diversity in the territorial waters of Qatar and to promote scientific and technical co-operation in these areas.

The MoU also covers the implementation of a joint research project for the different types of whale sharks and coral reefs in the territorial waters of Qatar, under the conditions that the two sides are seeking to develop and agree upon, and that the ministry provides technical co-operation and management of whale sharks within the North Oil Company concession in Qatar.

The whale shark is one of the largest fish in the world and one of the endangered species. Having a length of 12-18 meters, the whale shark is one of the most impressive species in the sea and is considered to be one of the largest fish in the world. The whale shark is also considered a significant part of the marine biodiversity of Qatar and the Gulf region, and its conservation is considered an important step in preserving the marine biodiversity of the region.

The agreement is considered a significant step in preserving the marine biodiversity of Qatar and the Gulf region, and its conservation is considered an important step in preserving the marine biodiversity of the region. Minister urges Islamic world youth to address issues of their nation

The minister of Culture and Sports, Salah bin Ghanem bin Nasser al-Ali, called on the youth of the Islamic world to work for the advancement of their country and to strive to achieve human wealth and assets of their country.

The forum continued yesterday with a training session on the model of the Organisation of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) and the mechanisms of its operation, the Minister of Culture and Sports, Nasser bin Al-Hajri, commended the participation of the young people of the Islamic world, noting the importance of involving all them in initiating and developing projects that contribute to enhancing the visibility and efficiency of the work of the OIC. "We believe in rewarding our clients in the best possible manner," Manar Khalifa al-Muraikhi, director of PR and Corporate Communications at Ooredoo, said: "We're delighted to be QIB's trusted partner on this project. The launch of the new co-branded credit cards is an example of our customer-centric approach, as we have a duty to our clients to always surpass their expectations. The partnership with Ooredoo, complemented with the new corporate online banking and wages processing centre, will end with recommendations and solutions made by the young people themselves, explaining that it is young people who discuss the problem, and they will develop solutions, Steinert-Haase, Managing Director of QIB, added: "Managing the data and the transactions is possible, "the new cards will allow control over expenses, improve policy compliance and become more efficient. When the cards are used in combination with reporting and expense management solutions, they bring better visibility and efficiency into corporate travel management solutions, they bring better Dr al-Kuwari said the goals could not be achieved without meeting system standards in education and other sectors. "If Mohamed bin Abdulaziz bin Fahd, CEO and Director-General of the Permanent Publications Committee in Qatar, has called for an ongoing digital Islamic Youth Front recently, Al-Shawi, who presented the report, said that the youth are actors in social change and future-building. Therefore, Qatar is working to expand youth choices and opportunities that are aimed at empowering young people in various areas of academic development, engagement in civil society, enhancing their capacities, and their potential should be harnessed in transforming the youth towards initiatives that will enable us to continue providing the best services for our children. We are very pleased with Doha Bank’s high responsibility in this regard," he added.

Doha Bank has donated QR200,000 to Dreama Centre to improve the lives of young people in Qatar. The donation was the result of the initiative of the board of Doha Bank, which is keen to support any initiative that has a positive impact on the development of young people. The patron welcomed the opportunity to thank the government and all organisations that have contributed to making Doha Bank a leader in support of initiatives that help the young people of Qatar.

The patron called ICF the "instrument" of the Indian community, where every Indian has a moral responsibility for supporting the weaker sector of the Indian society. "We have been concerned about the problems faced by the Indian diaspora in Qatar. The patron emphasised that ICF has been playing a vital role in assisting the government in the problem-solving approach," he said.

The Gym: How to get started (Part II)

by Sanah Thakur

On what day we talked about how to start your fitness journey and how to go about it, this week let’s take it one step further and discuss some other essential details to consider such as your gym etiquette.

There have been a few mentions of gym etiquette in the past, but this week let’s dive deeper into what you should keep in mind when at the gym. The first thing you should keep in mind is to have good hygiene, which means showering before you go to the gym, as well as wearing clean and comfortable clothes. You should also be aware of the gym’s rules and regulations, and ensure that you follow them. Additionally, you should be respectful to other gym-goers and ensure that you are courteous and polite in your interactions with them.

Here are some key gym etiquette tips to keep in mind:

1. Wash your hands before and after working out.
2. Avoid working out with Covid-19 symptoms or if you have been sick recently.
3. Wear appropriate gym clothes and shoes.
4. Use gym equipment properly and return it after use.
5. Speak to others in a low volume.
6. Keep your bag or belongings inside the gym.
7. Avoid using your phone while working out.
8. Respect others’ privacy and space.
9. Practice general safety for yourself and others.
10. Follow the gym’s rules and regulations.

Despite a toothy smile, Angela Merkel has had another bout of shaking, saying she feels better after drinking a glass of water.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel and Frans Timmermans, the frontrunner to be the next European Commission president, were meeting in Berlin yesterday.

Merkel, 64, had to stand outside the Chancellery for minutes yesterday after fainting during a welcoming ceremony at the building.

She said she felt better after drinking water, and that she would continue to do her job. However, she declined to answer questions about whether she would stay in her post for the next four years...if health allows.

Vijayapura: Karnataka Speaker Gaganendra Singh yesterday suspended 10 MLAs from the Assembly for 10 days over their alleged support for the merger of the Congress with the BJP. The Congress MLAs had been protesting against the merger and were demanding that the party deliver better governance.

The Congress, which had been in power for 24 years in the state, had lost its majority in the Assembly after 10 MLAs joined the BJP. The Congress had been trying to form a new government with the support of other parties, but had failed to do so.

The suspension of the MLAs will prevent them from participating in the Assembly proceedings for 10 days, which is the maximum period allowed under the rules of the Assembly.

The merger of the Congress with the BJP has been a major issue in the state, with the Congress MLAs protesting against it and demanding that the party deliver better governance.

Punjab CM reviews state's power crisis as Sidhu sulks

Amritsar: Punjab Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh yesterday reviewed the state's power crisis and said that the government was working on a number of measures to address the problem.

Singh, who had been on a visit to the state for the past few days, said that the government was working on a number of measures to address the problem, including increasing the capacity of the power plants and improving the efficiency of the system.

The Chief Minister also said that he had been in constant touch with the Centre and had written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, urging him to provide financial assistance to the state to help it tackle the crisis.

The Punjab government had announced a statewide power cut on Monday to tackle the crisis, but the public had been faced with long power outages in many parts of the state.

Mexico’s new finance minister vows fiscal calm

Mexico’s new finance minister, Arturo Herrera, on Tuesday said he would seek to further soothe nerves in financial markets after the resignation of his predecessor, Jesus Urzua, with whom he worked closely on economic policy.

On Thursday, Mexico’s finance minister, Arturo Herrera, said he was also on board with Lopez Obrador’s expansive infrastructure programme, known as the “Vigia Plan”, and urged Mexico to be more open to investors as the new administration looks to the future.

Herrera, who was confirmed as finance minister by Mexico’s lower house of parliament on Tuesday, told a news conference in Mexico City that his confirmation would bring “an important change in the situation of the economy”.

“I am very confident that we will have a peaceful economic recovery,” he said.

The news conference came after the resignation of Urzua, who had been one of the government’s leading figures in the fight against corruption and organized crime.

Urzua resigned on Tuesday with a letter that shocked Mexico’s financial markets, sending the peso to its lowest level against the dollar in over a month.

The peso fell by 0.7% to 18.578 per dollar, while the stock market dropped 1.4%.

The resignation of Urzua, who had been finance minister since last year, follows the arrest of his former boss from the cabinet, Johan Hernandez, on charges of drug trafficking.

Hernandez, 42, is currently being sought by authorities and is free after being released from prison waiting outside the closed-door extradition request.

He was sentenced to 30 years for crimes committed during the civil war, but was ordered freed last month by a court.

Amir's visit takes Qatar-US strategic ties to new heights

The visit of His Highness the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al-Thani to the United States of America has taken Qatar's strategic partnership with the US to a significant early level and also raises the bar for future bilateral engagements.

Amir's meetings with President Donald Trump at the dinner banquet, Trump’s statement on Twitter the night before, and the high-level talks later at the White House stunned an atmosphere of harmony rarely seen in a relationship that has seen its ups and downs especially by their leaders.

The personal rapport between the two leaders was evident from the warm welcome accorded to the Amir at the White House by President Trump to that of the Amir to the US. As the Amir said at the Pentagon, Qatar and US will work together to ease tension in the region.

Strategic Dialogue to be held in Washington in January 2020. The Amir's current visit to the US is also very important as it comes at a time when the tension between Iran and the world at large.

Sheikha Hind emphasises need to link education, sustainable development

Sheikha Hind, CEO of Qatar Foundation (QF), emphasised the need to link education, sustainable development and the realisation of Qatar’s vision for the nation’s sustainable development while also achieving their goals – and it must be a cornerstone of sustainable development as a whole.

Speaking at the session, Sheikha Hind said, “Education has to evolve to reflect a world where disruption is a way of life, and means to traditional principles while not reducing its scope to try new things. It must reach and inspire young people by demonstrating that it is their pathway to opportunity and the realisation of their goals – and it must be a cornerstone of sustainable development as a whole.”

“Learning growth, productive employment, decent work, and social cohesion are inextricable, and peaceful and inclusive societies cannot become possible through education alone. It is only through the brand of education interconnects with all sectors from which they can contribute to see and follow a direct pathway into education.”

SDG 4 – chaired by Inga Rhonda King, UK and United Nations Special Envoy and female empowerment, and has been endorsed by over 2,000 business leaders around the world. At the signing ceremony, Sheikha Hind discussed QF’s contribution to empowering women, its role as a national and regional driver of inclusivity, with Phumzile Mlambo- Ngcuka, United Nations Under-Secretary-General and executive director of UN Women.

Sheikha Hind’s trip to the US has also seen her sign the CEO Statement of Support for the Women’s Empowerment Principles, established by global corporate sustainability initiatives – UN Global Compact and UN Women.

QF’s support for these principles reflects its commitment to inclusive education, ensuring everyone has the opportunity to develop positive social change, and training cross-generational leaders of the world and future leaders who have integral roles in Qatar’s development journey.

Taking place from July 9-18 under the auspices of the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), HLPF 2019 is the last conference of the UN’s main sustainable development platform.

Sheikha Hind told an audience – including senior UN figures and ministers – that if all the SDGs identified by the 2030 Agenda can be achieved on a worldwide scale, they have to be interconnected with every aspect of life, and retain its fundamental line with individual and societal needs, with other goals and targets under the 2030 Agenda, and the policy changes and long-term commitments required to ensure connectivity between the SDGs is maximised for global society’s benefit.
