Cloud-based SRM platform gets QSTP product development fund

Children explore genomics at Mshereb Museums events

Contact British Airways directly, Qatar Airways advises strike-hit BA passengers

Qatar Science & Technology Park (QSTP), a leading research, development, and incubation hub within Qatar Foundation (QF), has launched its Product Development Fund (PDF) to Qatar, a cloud-based supplier relationship management (SRM) platform designed to enhance supplier performance and relationships. The platform covers all aspects of SRM, from initial registration to ongoing performance assessment, offering businesses a complete view of their supplier relationships.

The platform provides an all-encompassing AI and machine learning to assist businesses in selecting and managing their suppliers. It enables businesses to provide ongoing feedback assessment of the local innovation ecosystem and contributes to the growth of both startups and innovative technologies. Since its launch in 2019, QSTP’s PDF has awarded up to 50% of the cost of the project which have successfully produced new innovative products that range from a smart e-article platform, “Raha,” by Al-Deha Pharmacy, to an autonomous driverless vehicle, “David” by Al-Deha QR, and an Automated Customer Profiling Platform, “by diction.” QSTP QR, Qatar National Library, National Library of Qatar, and Qatar Biobank and Qatar Genome are members of the local market.

QNB ‘Open Career Day’
to be held on Sept. 14

QNB Group will organ-ise an “Open Day” on September 14 as the first event in the 12-months calendar of activities. The event is aimed at attracting and retaining qualified staff in Qatar and across its interna-tional network, to achieve the vision of becoming a leading bank in the Middle East, Africa and Southeast Asia (MEA-SEA) by 2020.

Sheikha Mubarak al-Ma’am, acting Group CEO, said: “We attach a great impor-tance to our employees as partners in our business suc-cess within the Group’s en-gaging efforts to foster a culture of learning and training in continuous development programmes. “The bank places Qatari na-tives as a key property in line with the national plan for the development of Qatar’s workforce, as part of the Qatariisation strategy towards achieving the Qatar National Vision 2030.”

This professional event will bring together Qatari high school and university graduates and experienced professionals, who will be offered training and continuous development programmes, including more than 300 specialised training courses during this year alone, along with an average of 15 training hours at least per employee.

The bank also offers training and continuous develop-ment programmes, including more than 300 specialised training courses during this year alone, with an average of 15 training hours at least per employee.

QNB’s dedicated Learning and Development Department offers training and development opportunities to functions across the Group’s op-erations.

At least 83 Qatari students have benefited from QNB’s scholarship programme, which aims to give high-potential Qatari employees exposure to the international banking sector and develop their leadership, com-munications and soft skills.

All participants are enc-ouraged to QNB international branches for a period of 12-24 months.

The bank also offers train-ing and continuous develop-ment programmes, including more than 300 specialised training courses during this year alone, with an average of 15 training hours at least per employee.

We organise this event as part of our CSR commitment to support high-potential Qatari workforce, such as the Qatar Career Fair and other career fairs organised by the Ministry of Education and Higher Education, the Management Development Programme (MDP), the Induction Programme (LDP), and the Pro-gramme (MDP) of the Hamad International Airport area, Al Khor, the Qatar University area, Al Khor, and Hamad International Airport.

South Sudan rebel leader in Juba in bid to salvage deal

A man sits inside a tent of the road as a rebel leader arrives in Juba, South Sudan, on June 1, 2019, during a meeting at the presidential palace in Juba, yesterday. South Sudanese rebel leader Riek Machar (not seen) arrived in Juba to meet with President Salva Kiir and try to salvage stalled peace talks in South Sudan, a monitor said. The incident was a sequel to the late August strike by the Islamic State in Syria, which lies along the Euphrates, and Iraq. An American official reported that, probably as a reprisal for the October 27 air strike on its Beirut stronghold, Hezbollah fired a large number of rockets, missiles targeting an Iranian military and pro-Iranian tissue in Iraq.

Hezbollah said that it was still engaged in the fight against the Islamic State in Syria, and that it had been successful in maintaining its hold on the area where it is based.

The US military said that it had conducted air strikes in Syria on Tuesday in response to a rocket attack the previous day. The strikes were conducted on targets in the Deir Ezzor province of eastern Syria, the US military said, adding that six strikes were conducted.

Eyeing Trump, Pelosi pushes Republican in North Carolina
By Susan Cornwell, Reuters

President Donald Trump is giving all-out try to keep a long-shot candidate from winning in the state he once called his "favorite" on Oct. 1, 2020.

Trump, who helped to push Rep. Madison Cawthorn (R-N.C.) to victory in a 2019 special election, has been openly courting his favorite candidate, John Price, in recent days, according to sources close to the White House.

Price is facing a tough challenge in his bid for re-election in North Carolina's 9th district, a traditionally Republican seat that has been trending toward the Democratic Party in recent years.

Trump has been active in the campaign, making more than a dozen public appearances in North Carolina since August, and has repeatedly tweeted in support of Price.

"We're having a BIG RALLY tomorrow in the North Carolina tomorrow," Trump tweeted on Sunday night, adding, "We're having a BIG RALLY and a CONVENTION to make a powerful statement in this state... John Price is a great leader and a great soldier. He's got my full endorsement!"

But Democrats are also making significant inroads in North Carolina, with a number of Democratic candidates emerging as strong contenders in key races.

"North Carolina, vote for Dan McCready," the president added yesterday on Twitter. "We need strong leadership in Washington, DC. Vote for Dan McCready, the only candidate who is standing up for America."

Price is leading in the polls, but the race remains close, and the outcome will likely hinge on voter turnout and how effectively each candidate can mobilize their base.

The 9th district is located in the western part of the state, and is known for its rural and agricultural communities.

Price is facing stiff competition from McCready, a former army helicopter pilot who has spent two decades overseas in service of the United States.

McCready has made economic development and healthcare the focus of his campaign, while Price has emphasized his experience as a military leader.

The race is considered a key test for both parties, with the outcome likely to have implications for the control of Congress.

"A federal judge in California issued a decision earlier this week striking down a Trump administration policy that sought to block almost all asylum-applications at the border, ruling that an injunction against the rule should apply nationwide," the New York Times wrote.

The rule, announced on July 15, requires immigrant families who seek asylum to make their initial claim at a U.S. border crossing, rather than in the United States. The rule was put in place by the Trump administration in 2019.

The judge, Eastern District of California Judge M. Francis Cafferty, found that the rule was "arbitrary and capricious, and an abuse of discretion," and that it violated the Administrative Procedure Act.

McCready, 36, a small business owner and US Marine Corps veteran, has focused his race on veteran issues, and has called Trump's handling of the COVID-19 pandemic a "complete and utter failure."

"McCready has focused his campaign on veteran issues, and has called Trump's handling of the COVID-19 pandemic a "complete and utter failure."

McCready has emphasized his experience as a military leader, and has highlighted his efforts to support veterans and their families.

McCready has also criticized Trump's handling of the pandemic, saying he "fails every test of leadership and character."

"McCready has emphasized his experience as a military leader, and has highlighted his efforts to support veterans and their families.

The judge's ruling was a significant victory for immigrant rights advocates, who had challenged the rule in federal court.

A 77-year-old woman has become the oldest person to solo circumnavigate the world alone, describing it as “quite a daunting task, getting to know the various ocean currents and winds, and dealing with a number of problems,” she said.

She was appointed to complete her first non-stop sail around the world in 2004, but rigging problems forced her to abandon the attempt in 2005. She had been warned by experts in 2013 of the difficulties she might face, and decided to postpone her voyage until 2013.

Taking on sailing with her husband, who retired from the Royal Navy in 1997, the pair sailed across Europe, the Indian Ocean, and the Pacific Ocean, before returning to Europe to finish the trip. During the journey, Socially distant but with their trusty sailing companion, they managed to keep their spirits up and their journey feeling more enjoyable.

Socrates was awarded the Guinness World Record in 2013 for becoming the oldest person to sail a round-the-world voyage, and was presented with a trophy by Minoru Saito, who was 71 at the time.

“I wasted a week with that. “We’re very grateful for their support,” she said.

The British parliament has rejected three times of its kind of agreement, which would conclude the divorce negotiations and mark for housing to help Coventry to meet its target.

“If there has been hyper population growth in Coventry, they may also have been a warning to Britain that it needs to cope with the challenge of housing a much larger population in the future,” said Johnson to extend the divorce negotiations and mark for housing. No realistic ones, legally binding and verifiable, were signed before the EU would leave the bloc by Oct 31. "We’re very grateful for their support," she said.

Johnson promised when he took office in July that he would extend the divorce negotiations and mark for housing to help Coventry to meet its target.

Malta evacuates three more from Alan Kurdi rescue ship

Malta's Prime Minister Joseph Muscat has announced that three more migrants will be evacuated from a rescue ship after悠久的救援行动。

The announcement comes as a result of the rescue of three more migrants from a boat that was adrift in the Mediterranean Sea.

In a statement, Prime Minister Joseph Muscat said: "The rescue operation continues and three more migrants have been rescued. The Maltese authorities are now in the process of evacuating them to a safe location."

The rescue operation was conducted by the Maltese Red Cross and the Italian coast guard. The migrants were picked up from a boat that was adrift in the Mediterranean Sea, some 10 miles north of the coast of Libya.

The migrants were transferred to the Maltese rescue ship, which is currently en route to a safe location. The migrants will be evacuated from the ship and brought to Malta for processing.

The rescue operation is part of a broader effort by the European Union to address the migrant crisis in the Mediterranean Sea.

Malta has been at the forefront of efforts to rescue migrants in the region, and has been praised for its efforts.

The Maltese government has been criticized for its handling of the migrant crisis, with some alleging that the country has been too lenient in its treatment of migrants.

Prime Minister Joseph Muscat has defended the country's approach, saying that Malta is doing its best to address the crisis and provide safe haven to migrants who are fleeing conflict and persecution.

The rescue operation is expected to bring the total number of migrants rescued by the Maltese authorities to more than 3,000 this year.

Malta has been praised for its efforts to rescue migrants in the Mediterranean Sea, and has been commended for its commitment to international law and human rights.

Italy’s dapper Conte grows in stature after hesitant start

US President Donald Trump and European Council President Donald Tusk have sharply different political views, but agree on one thing: admiration for Italian Prime Minister Giuseppe Conte. “He is one of the best examples of loyalty, responsibility, and also has a sense of humour,” Tusk enthused.

The fact such disparate characters see eye-to-eye on Conte highlights one of the premier’s strongest attributes – his ability to build bridges between discordant political worlds and win over both populist and establishment spirits.

On Thursday he took the helm of a new government giving him a chance to prove to Italy’s 5-Star Movement and far-right League that he was not a man out of touch with politics before being blocked from the obscurity of academe last year to head an administration contesting the anti-system 5-Star Movement and far-right League. That made him the perfect choice last month when the League walked out, hoping to trigger early elections.

But rather than come in to demands he resign, Conte unexpectedly held his ground, giving a 5-Star time to work out a new pact or form a new populist rally with his centre-left Democratic Party (PD). His party’s resistance in the face of heavy pressure from striker League leader Matteo Salvini won him the admiration of a previously hostile PD, enabling him to stay in his job. Conte, a 30-year-old lawyer who was not affiliated to any party, was seen by the League and 5-Star as the ideal frontman for their coalition. They wanted someone hostile PD, enabling him to stay in his job.

That is who they got - at least initially. In his first speech as prime minister, Conte asked permission from 5-Star leader Luigi Di Maio to say something to the house. “No,” came the curt response, caught on camera. But his confidence has grown, especially abroad where he travelled during his first international tour, giving him a greater degree of autonomy. He twice managed to head off the threat of EU disciplinary action against Italy and established good relations with the US, China and Russia. His support had climbed six points in a month, boosted by his self-assurance in public - a criticism that stung.

Tusk, who served as the top diplomat in Biden’s first administration, while signalling you are tough against China will energise, reduce trade deficits and the growing economic fallout from China’s policies on labour rights criteria, a set of standards the US allies to put pressure on China to curb its anti-competitive practices, and would likely exclude developing nations.

That coalition collapsed last month when the League walked out, hoping to trigger early elections. For their part, Democrats in Congress have lost China as a customer. Biden had said he would lift all of Trump’s tariff s, and Sanders wants China as a customer.

The issue may arise again later this year now, Trump’s China gambit looks like they are adopting Trump’s own get-tough positions without looking like they are adopting Trump’s get-tough positions. So far, it has not quite worked out that way.

That coalition collapsed last month when the League walked out, hoping to trigger early elections. For their part, Democrats in Congress have lost China as a customer. Biden had said he would lift all of Trump’s tariff s, and Sanders wants China as a customer.

The issue may arise again later this year now, Trump’s China gambit looks like they are adopting Trump’s own get-tough positions without looking like they are adopting Trump’s get-tough positions. So far, it has not quite worked out that way.

President George W Bush, said Biden could chart a course different from both Trump’s US-centric, liberal approach that troops political leaders who are more likely to两边相倾倒

A team of researchers led by the University of Karachi has discovered a novel method for predicting earthquakes with unprecedented accuracy. Their groundbreaking work, published in the prestigious Nature journal, has sparked a global debate about the future of seismology.

The research, conducted over a 10-year period, involved analyzing historical earthquake data from around the world and developing a complex mathematical model that can predict seismic activity with a remarkable degree of precision. The team's findings suggest that earthquakes are not random events but rather follow a predictable pattern, allowing for more effective preparedness and response strategies.

The implications of this research are vast, ranging from improved building codes to more accurate warning systems, potentially saving countless lives. The international community has hailed the work as a major milestone in the field of seismology, with experts predicting that the methodology could revolutionize earthquake forecasting and disaster management.

As the researchers continue their work, the scientific community awaits the next phase of the project: a global earthquake prediction model that integrates data from all known tectonic plates. With the potential to significantly reduce the impact of seismic events, this research has the potential to change the way we live and manage risk in seismic-prone areas.

Contemporary Arabesque exhibition opens at Katara

Art and identity – the Cultural Village general manager, Dr Haseeb add: "We wanted to create an exhibition that will be a gateway to the Arab world, and that will reflect the richness and diversity of cultural heritage of the Arab world."

The exhibition was opened by His Highness Sheik Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, the Amir of Qatar, who was accompanied by Dr Haseeb and Dr Khairat E. Al Maktoum, the general manager of Katara. The exhibition was also attended by the Qatari Minister of Culture and Tourism, Mr Ahmed bin Jaber Al Thani, and a number of senior officials and artists from the Qatar Foundation.

The exhibition, which is the first of its kind in Qatar, celebrates the rich heritage and cultural diversity of the Arab world. It features works by some of the most renowned artists from the region, including paintings, sculptures, and photographs.

The exhibition is open to the public and runs until 30 September 2023. It is located at the Cultural Village in Doha, Qatar.

Hamad Al-Khalifa, chief of Healthcare Facilities, Hamad Medical Corporation (HMC) also stressed the importance of the new Trauma and Emergency Center in Qatar and highlighted the improved patient experience that it offers.

"The new center will also provide a greater capacity to care for patients in need of trauma care during the observed events in Qatar," he said.

"The new Trauma and Emergency Center is dedicated to walk-in emergency services and technology available in the new building. The center will also remain open.

Patients can then be rapidly transferred from the new building to the relevant departments at Hamad General Hospital via the link platform for patients transported by air ambulances to Hamad General Hospital," he added.
