Conflict reports about Trump's health

Conflicting reports about the US president's health are swirling, as all US officials neither confirmed nor denied if Donald Trump, 74, was admitted to hospital yesterday after he felt ill. The White House said the president was doing very well following what it described as a "precautionary measure". The White House said Trump had been admitted to the hospital for a "precautionary reason" after feeling "fatigued".

White House Press Secretary Kayleigh McEnany said the "precautionary measure" came after Trump "felt some unusual, mild symptoms" and "initiated a precautionary measure to ensure he is prepared to fully carry out his duties".

"The president's doctors have determined that he remains very healthy, has no fever and no signs of the flu," the statement said.

"The president is doing very well and will be remaining in the hospital to continue to receive proper and close medical care," she added.

Qatar Airways volunteer join MoPH in Covid-19 fight

Qatar Airways has volunteered to join the Ministry of Public Health (MoPH) in Qatar in the fight against the coronavirus, a move that will further boost the country’s efforts to contain and control the spread of the virus.

The airline, which has been severely affected by the pandemic, announced its decision to support the government in its fight against the virus by undertaking a number of tasks.

The move comes after the government launched a campaign to encourage private companies to join the fight against the virus, with the aim of increasing the number of volunteers who can help in the fight.

The airline said it would provide its employees with the necessary training and support to ensure they are prepared to carry out their tasks effectively.

Qatar Airways has already launched a number of initiatives to support the fight against the virus, including the provision of medical supplies and equipment to hospitals and healthcare facilities.

In addition, the airline has donated a number of aircraft to the government to be used for transporting medical personnel and supplies.

The move by Qatar Airways is seen as a significant step in the country’s efforts to contain the spread of the virus, with the government calling on all private companies to join the fight in any way they can.

HMC launches new website for elderly care

The Hamad Medical Corporation (HMC) has launched a new website for healthy ageing and care information for older people.

According to Dr Hanadi al-Hamad, national lead for healthy ageing and medical director of Hamad Hospital and Qatar Rehabilitation Institute, the need for medical services for elderly patients has grown since the pandemic, and alongside this need to promote preventative measures to support healthy ageing.

“The elderly citizens are a growing, valuable, and vibrant resource in our community; the microsite, which can be accessed through the homepage of HMC’s website (hamad.qa), is the first resource of its kind in the country and is intended to be a trusted source for up-to-date information and advice on healthy ageing and care.”

The microsite, which can be accessed through the homepage of HMC’s website (hamad.qa), is the first resource of its kind in the country and is intended to be a trusted source for up-to-date information and advice on healthy ageing and care.

Dr al-Hamad added, “Our elderly citizens are a valuable resource for the country and is intended to stay well, and live at home wherever possible,” said Dr al-Hamad.

“This website is an important contribution to HMC’s comprehensive plan for enhancing care for the elderly. It includes health care education and information campaigns that have been designed to support our elderly citizens. It is one element in our strategic and innovative approach to managing disease and promoting health and well-being among older adults.”

“While we cannot change our genes, we can all make certain lifestyle changes that will influence the state of our health and well-being as we age. Starting from when we are in our 40s, we need to think about how we will help our physical and mental health, as both are closely linked. Staying physically and mentally active and connected with family and friends, eating healthy, avoiding smoking, and conducting regular health screenings are all important investments in our future health.”

HMC’s Geriatric and Long-Term Care Education and Medical Consultation Programmes are part of the expansion of services to provide enhanced care to our older patients. These services were offered online or via telephone. We also continue our Elderly Telephone Reassurance Services, with many more services now available online or via telephone. Prevention Clinics and the Geriatric and Long-Term Care Education and Medical Consultation Programmes provide a range of important and preventative services and specialties across multiple sites and hospitals, and has added several new clinics this year. The new Falls Prevention Clinic and the Geriatric–Dermatology Virtual Clinics are part of the expansion of services to elderly patients and medical director, Dr Essa Mubarak al-Sulaiti, said, “As our population continues to age, we remain committed to providing services and resources that improve the well-being and quality of life of our elderly. As preventionists, we need to take every aspect of the patient’s life into account, including their social and economic environment, which affects lifestyle habits.”

“The government of Qatar and the health department need to change the way we deliver services, with more remote services and medical consultations now offered online or via telephone. This has allowed our team to continue to serve the vulnerable population with maximum safety and security.”

At a total cost of $40,000, funded by QRCS, these products include masks, gloves, protective suits, goggles, masks, and 106 digital thermometers, 200 medical mask packages, 510 medical gauze packages, and 160 medical mask packages. As a main partner, QRCS was involved in all stages of the project from selection of suppliers to logistic and technical support. Afghanistan is among the countries prone to the coronavirus pandemic and thousands of Afghan people have returned from abroad, which increases the chances of infection among the locals. There are no places or resources for quarantine, and most of the population suffer poor education and living conditions.

A statement from the QRCS added. “The project is driven by QRCS’s sense of responsibility towards the brotherly people of Afghanistan, where the health authorities lack resources and supplies. It is an attempt to reduce the spread of the virus among local communities with a special focus on the underserved and vulnerable parts of the country.”

QRCS is a registered non-profit organisation whose mission is to help those in need. QRCS supports Afghan efforts to combat Covid.

Brexit talks extended by one month

By Alesha Jeffreys, AFP

Britain's foreign minister Dominic Raab warned on Monday that the UK's member nations could become restive party members unless there is a trade deal with the European Union by the end of the year. Raab, who is the government's lead negotiator, said: "We are not prepared to enter a version of no deal that would be 'phased down' between 2021 and 2025." Raab said that the gap between the two sides was "too large to bridge" and that the European Union had so far refused to counter proposals made by the UK. The EU's chief negotiator, Michel Barnier, said: "The UK insists on this, but the EU stands firm on that."

Johnson bids to woo restive party members

By Alesha Jeffreys, AFP

The new UK trade minister, Liz Truss, has met with troubled Conservative backbenchers to try to ease concerns about a potential trade deal with the European Union. The meeting comes as the government faces a division between its pro-Brexit and pro-EU wings over the terms of the trade deal. Truss, who has been tasked with securing a trade deal with the EU, has met with Conservative MPs to discuss the deal's impact on the UK's economy. The MPs have expressed concerns about the deal's potential impact on the UK's manufacturing sector and have called for more time to review the terms. Truss has assured them that the deal will be beneficial to the UK's economy and that it will create new jobs and opportunities. Johnson has also expressed his commitment to securing the deal and has promised to work closely with the MPs to address their concerns.

Public awareness key to limiting spread of Covid-19

Public health indicators have shown that the spread of coronavirus has not really been contained in Qatar, but authorities clarified this does not mean the pandemic has been reversed or that it has disappeared altogether. People are advised to be as much as possible to moderate Covid-19 symptoms. At the peak of the coronavirus, Qatar had recorded more than 2,000 confirmed cases a day, but for the past few weeks the number has constantly remained under 100.

Several countries around the world are already witnessing the second wave of coronavirus, and this could occur in Qatar as well, if citizens and residents do not take precautions seriously, the Supreme Committee for Crisis Management stressed recently.

People’s awareness about the pandemic and ways to mitigate the spread through personal hygiene and social distancing, and their commitment to follow other precautionary measures, especially relating to gatherings and social events, will go a long way in limiting the spread of the virus.

The Supreme Committee for Crisis Management noted it has made it clear and emphasized that relaxing without proper caution is the main source of spreading Covid-19 in the country.

The committee has approved a three-phase plan to re-impose certain Covid-19 restrictions to prevent the resurgence of the coronavirus pandemic in Qatar, if the Ministry of Public Health recommends so, based on its continuous monitoring of health indicators.

As the spread rate of the pandemic around the world is on the rise, the authorities noted it is necessary to apply mandatory measures to all residents returning to Qatar until further notice.

The pandemic has presented a unique set of challenges for all of us. We are still learning more and more about coronavirus every single day, but public health experts continue to warn that you don’t actually have to be infected with the virus in order to transmit it, and this is how the virus is spread.

We are all doing our part to mitigate the spread of the virus, and it’s important to continue to do so.

The country’s rich ancient legacy is primed for a promising future with innovative ideas dedicated to the cause.

Fine Art in Qatar

The Ministry of Culture and Sports is looking forward to the 2021 Year of Culture, which was established as a platform to promote this art, sharing with words and melodies, and even musical performance. The centre’s inception in 2017 came to give priority to everything that would contribute to the development of music, especially to the young musicians in the country and work to adapt a cultural project that promotes the country’s heritage, preserved by cultural identity and possess the rich heritage of the Qataris’ memory and nation.

In the context of achieving the centre’s goals of presenting the pride of Qatar in music, the Qatar Fine Arts Society (Katara) has contributed to the advancement of fine arts in the country, preserved the rich cultural heritage of Qatar, and pushed the development movement in the field of art.

UK declines to help with Sharif arrest warrants

The Pakistan High Commission in London has been unable to obtain the arrest warrant for Nawaz Sharif executed in the United Kingdom nearly a month after the warrant was issued. The British government has ignored multiple requests and rejected all the efforts made in the matter.

The Pakistani High Commission has said that the attempts were made so far to get the arrest warrant signed and delivered from the British government in writing. The High Commission said that all the efforts made in the matter are of fruitless.

Pakistani diplomats also asked the British government through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to issue the arrest warrant but the British government has ignored all the requests made in the matter.

The option for Pakistani diplomats is limited. The High Commission said that it cannot do anything beyond the British government's choice for the arrested person.

The section reads, “The commissioner of Pakistan has asked the relevant authorities to issue the arrest warrants. However, the warrants were not issued. Hence efforts to get the arrest warrants were also not made. The British government has not issued any arrest warrants. Furthermore, the court in London has delivered the arrest warrants. The court in London has asked the prosecution to start the legal proceedings.”

The High Commission in London has confirmed that the arrest warrants were delivered to the court in London. The arrest warrants were delivered to the court in the presence of the judge, the court official, and the accused. The judge has accepted the arrest warrants in writing.

Regulatory body bans motorway rape coverage to hide investigation

The Pakistan Motorway Police Improvement Project has monitored all television announcements and is warning them not to display any content that is related to the motorway rape investigation.

The regulations state that there shall be no display of any content that is related to the motorway rape investigation.

Rehman to head opposition movement

In a move towards further digital payments in Pakistan, Bank Alfalah has announced that it will provide services across its 7,000+ Cash Deposit Machines as well as POS terminals for instant deposits and payment remittances.

Each transaction is registered online, and the slip is issued to the user. In order to access these services, users need to be registered with the National Comprehensive Identity Facility. Users can avail of biometric verification, selection of service terminal, and directly depositing the cash to complete the transaction.

The payment confirmation is done through a QR Code that is issued to the user immediately after the transaction is completed.

"We are continuously striving to provide robust and secure services that are the most user-friendly and secure origins. We are working consistently by collaborating with Builders, as a member of the CDM, to service the free transaction services for public benefit.

Polish mountainer falls to death

A Polish climber has fallen to his death on Pakistan's highest mountain, a peak in northern Pakistan, an official of the country's Alpine Club confirmed yesterday.

A 34-year-old mountaineer attempting to climb Mount Elbrus, the world's highest peak, had died on Wednesday during his attempt to summit the peak of Pakistan's Gilgit-Baltistan.

"According to the information provided by the Alpine Club of Pakistan, said that the climber had attempted to reach the summit, but due to difficult conditions, he returned to his injuries and returned to his home on Thursday morning."

The government has confirmed that the mountain climber had died from a fall on the mountain.

President Komorowski, the former president of the country, said that he was deeply saddened by the news.

Facebook users can now tie up IG, Messenger

Facebook has introduced a new messaging feature that allows users to connect their Instagram and Messenger accounts.

Users can now link their Facebook account with Instagram and Messenger, enabling cross-app communication between the two platforms.

This move is expected to provide added value to users and is part of Facebook's broader strategy to improve the overall messaging experience.

Qatar Museums finalises agreement with Total to sponsor Energy Playground

In a move to further develop the cultural sector of Qatar (Nhdoq) on October 1, Qatar Museums has finalised an agreement with Total E&P Qatar to sponsor the Energy Playground, which will open at NMoQ at a later stage. The playground is part of a series of initiatives announced by Qatar Museums, and Laurent Wolffheiss, Total Qatar country chair, signed the agreement during an online ceremony.

Nhdoq’s Energy Playground, one of three spread across the country, is dedicated to creating a unique experience for families to learn more about energy and the history of Qatar’s oil exploration and processing, according to a press statement.

The playground will be designed for families to engage in inter-generational learning, providing an overview of Qatar’s oil and natural gas, through to their processing and even the by-products which, in turn, benefit today’s societies.

The playground will be extended from various pathways – including the discovery of oil and natural gas, the history of Qatar’s oil exploration in an immersive and fun, interactive and educational setting. “This reflects a joint vision for the development of Qatar’s natural and cultural heritage, which has accompanied the games and urban development that Qatar witnessed due to the country’s development and the growth of the country’s economy,” Ahmed Musa al-Namla, CEO of Qatar Museums, and Laurent Wolffheiss, Total Qatar country chair, said.
