Qatar offers immense ‘appreciation for art’

By Mustafa Rizvi

The world is a perpetual crucible of itself, but at certain points in time, the world evolves and each point becomes an evident proof of what it is pretending to be. What’s current is beautiful, and when you’re not yourself anymore, you become a caricature. This was once said by George Santayana, an American philosopher, essayist, poet and novelist.

Caricature is an art form where the caricaturist creates a picture, description or imitation of a person in which certain striking characteristics are magnified, exaggerated or grotesquely distorted. The effect is long lasting applied to caricature to highlight different political situations and to communicate better through pictures or images.

Erdal Al-Agha is a caricaturist and a chef from Syria. He was selected as one of the 20 Arab caricaturists in 2015, he attended an online exhibition held in Qatar by Syrian International Caricaturists for those caricature groups. He is an online newspaper’s cartoonist in his country and also with some TV channels.

When asked what he enjoys in his work, Eral said that “It is very difficult to point out. As I said, both involve art in one form or another. Cooking food is my heart but caricature is my soul. Both are important, food for my job and caricature for my passion.”

Regarding a question about how people react to his caricatures, Erdal said: “Initially, I used to draw caricatures hitting different political issues. I have reached a point where I want to portray people in a funny way without annoying people. People, in the Arab world, in a funny way without annoying people.”

A leader can be humble but also aggressive in achieving goals. A leader can also be a最容易在压力下生存的人。They must be able to withstand criticism, stay calm and respond wisely to obstacles. A leader must be able to lead others to success. A leader must be able to lead others to success. A leader is not only a person who leads others, but also a person who can be lead by others.

The programme was streamed on a virtual platform with real-time song and dance performances by the students. A fancy dress show was performed by the students at the end of the programme.

Death toll in typhoon-hit Philippines rises to 27

The death toll in the typhoon-hit Philippine Islands has risen to at least 27, officials showed yesterday, after counts of the worst flooding in years swamped villages and streets thousands of kilometres from the epicentre.

Tens of thousands have been displaced, officials warned yesterday. And as floodwaters receded and residents began to return home, the scale of the destruction left by Vamco became clearer.

In Manila City, one of the hardest-hit areas of the capital, hundreds of thousands of people were left without power and the streets were covered with debris and mud as residents began to return to their homes.

“I don’t know where to start,” Lina Ron, 10, said as she sat on the top floor of her house, which had been flooded. “I just hope and pray that God will save us.”

Hundreds of thousands were still without power in adjacent provinces.

The severity of the flooding in Manila and neighbouring provinces of Cavite sparked concerns with the devastation caused in an evacuation centre in Rodriguez, Rizal province, Philippines.

An official showed yesterday that the government “acted fast”. The Philippines is hit by an average of 20 storms each year. Several leading universities have scrapped plans to allow overseas students to return under the quarter of seats reserved for international students.

The latest disaster, presidential spokesman Harry Roque said yesterday, was a “real sad”. “Unfortunately we couldn’t do anything about the weather.”

Officials said yesterday that the number of people who had been killed was likely to rise after the heavy rains. In the past, the number of people killed by Typhoon Vamco had been reported as 27. The death toll in the Philippines has risen to 27, according to authorities.

The president said he was “looking at the devastation caused in an evacuation centre in Rodriguez, Rizal province, Philippines.”

The country has south Luzon on Wednesday and Thursday, triggering landslides, toppling trees and cutting off roads. The typhoon claimed at least 23 lives, officials confirmed, as it moved through the islands, and left more than 250mn daily lives placed in peril.

The Philippine National Police has 30 seats by yesterday evening. Yangon-based analyst Khin Zaw said the move left 1.5mn in coastal areas that are vulnerable to storm surges engorged by the government “acted fast”. India, China close in on plan to end months of military standoff

Three soldiers killed in Kashmir village border clash

China said the Indian soldiers' actions had been provocative.

Since then, the nuclear-armed neighbours have de-escalated tensions on the border, with both sides conducting pullbacks and making public statements of commitment to peace.

The latest clash came in the remote Changla La sector along the Line of Control (LoC), the de facto border between the two sides.

The Chinese military said the Indian side had unilaterally violated agreements to disengage and escalate tension.

The military standoff in the Ladakh region of China is a result of an impasse in talks between India and China that have been ongoing since June, when at least 20 Indian soldiers were killed in a clash at a high-altitude base in the Galwan Valley.

The Doval-Somaiya talks yesterday were part of a four-point agenda to de-escalate tensions.

The talks focused on disengagement of forces at the face-off sites along the border, withdrawal to the 2017 status quo, and efforts for direct military and diplomatic engagements.

The talks also covered a proposal to set up a joint mechanism to prevent incidents and ensure safety and security of forces from both sides.

If the discussions were positive, both sides would agree on a joint mechanism that would ensure that there would be no surprise military action.

The framework of the mechanism would be set up at the next level, with the joint working groups of both sides.

A media statement was issued after the talks.

The talks ended positively, and both sides are looking for ways to de-escalate.

Kashmir border firing along the Line of Control (LoC) in Pakistan-administered Kashmir was triggered on Friday.

Three civilians were killed and at least three injured in cross-border firing along the LoC in Pakistan-administered Kashmir.

Indian and Pakistani troops exchanged heavy gunfire along the LoC. India and Pakistan have been fighting over the disputed Kashmir territory since their partition in 1947.

A fresh war of words erupted in the state as the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) accused the Congress-led State Government of taking a “soft” approach towards Pakistan.

The Congress, on the other hand, said the government was doing everything within its power to maintain peace.

The situation in Kashmir has been tense since a terror attack on a paramilitary camp in Pulwama on February 14, 2019, which killed 40 soldiers.

The attack was blamed on a militant group based in Afghanistan, and India launched a military operation across the LoC.

The dafüri tactic of the Congress party is “to impress the teacher but deep down, it’s not so warm, not-so-political praise swirling on the internet point to Obama’s new book offering a glimpse of the personality of Rahul Gandhi”, New York Times.

Obama also remarks on Rahul's nervous attitude border, although some have objected to the former prime minister’s role.

The book, titled “A Promised Land”, was released on November 17, 2020, and has been praised by many for its frankness and honesty.

In his autobiography, Obama discussed his time in the White House, his policies, and his relationship with world leaders.

However, some critics have also questioned whether the book is a true reflection of Obama’s time in office.

India's Prime Minister Arvind Kejriwal has rejected the idea of a second lockdown in the country, saying that a lockdown would not help the economy.

Kejriwal's comments come as the country is facing a second wave of the coronavirus pandemic, with daily new cases crossing 20,000 for the first time.

The prime minister also said that the government should focus on providing employment to the people and not just on lockdowns.

Kejriwal's comments come at a time when the central government is reportedly considering a nationwide lockdown to curb the spread of the virus.

If the Indian government achieves its goals, it would be a major victory for Modi’s government, which has been accused of being too soft on China.

However, some experts have questioned whether the standoff is just a show of strength or a genuine attempt to resolve the border dispute.

The Chinese military said it had the right to protect its national sovereignty and territorial integrity.

China has been building military facilities in the area near the border and has also deployed soldiers to the region.

India has also strengthened its military presence in the area, with the deployment of additional troops and missiles.

US should fulfill climate pact responsibility

Despite the US government’s withdrawal from the Paris Agreement, some experts believe that the country could still meet its climate goals with the right policies and investments.

James Sridhar, a senior climate analyst at the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis, said the US could still play a significant role in global efforts to combat climate change.

Sridhar noted that the US has some of the best climate technology and capabilities, and that the country could use these resources to help other countries meet their climate goals.

However, Sridhar also warned that the US government’s lack of commitment to climate action could hinder progress.

“Despite the US withdrawal from the Paris Agreement, the country has the potential to play a leadership role in the global climate response,” Sridhar said.

China customs bust gold smuggling

China customs officials said they have bust a gold smuggling ring involving several relacioning in an area in southern China.

The ring was said to have been operating for several years, with the smugglers using a variety of methods to bring the gold into China.

The ring was reportedly run by a group of Chinese and Vietnamese people, with the Chinese nationals supplying the gold and the Vietnamese smuggling it across the border.

The ring was discovered after a series of raids on homes and businesses suspected of being involved in gold smuggling.

The ring was arrested 15 people, including the ringleader, and 1.81 kg of gold worth about $90,000 was seized.

The ring was said to have been operating in a remote area of southern China, and it is believed to have smuggled over $1 billion worth of gold over the past few years.

The smuggling ring was discovered after a tip-off from the police, who had been monitoring the area for several months.

The police said they had traced the ring back to its origins in Vietnam, and they had been able to dismantle it with the help of Vietnamese authorities.

The police said they were still investigating the ring, and they expected to make further arrests in the coming weeks.
The first feature is likely to be healthcare workers and at-risk populations.

In the meantime, confirmed cases are already rising in the southern United States as the cold weather returns. This is likely to lead to an increase in hospitalizations and deaths, especially among vulnerable populations. Vaccination efforts are expected to continue on a nationwide scale, with priority given to healthcare workers and high-risk individuals. Public health guidance continues to advise mask-wearing, hand hygiene, and social distancing, especially in indoor settings.

Volatility can be expected over pandas and opposition to the pandemic relief bill, which will be a major test for the incoming Biden administration. The bill is estimated to cost $1.95 trillion and is expected to provide direct payments to individuals, unemployment benefits, and funding for state and local governments. The legislation has faced opposition from Republicans, who argue that it is too expensive and not focused on pandemic relief. The Senate remains in the hands of the Democrats, while the House is controlled by the Republicans. A compromise agreement is expected to be reached in the coming weeks.

In the meantime, health officials continue to advise caution and vigilance. While the vaccine is promising, it will not immediately end the pandemic or allow for a return to normalcy. The virus continues to evolve, and variants such as Delta and Omicron are emerging. It is essential to remain vigilant and follow public health guidance to protect ourselves and others.
Ahead of GB vote, locals voice hopes for future

By Umair Farooq, Reporter, Dawn West Pont

A s night falls on a remote mountainous region in northern Pakistan, the high-altitude road to Gilgit-Baltistan is the only way to connect the region with the rest of the country. The road is narrow and winding, with steep climbs and sharp descents that make it dangerous for both locals and tourists.

On the outskirts of Gilgit, the capital city of the region, a group of locals is gathered outside a small mosque, discussing the upcoming Gilgit-Baltistan Assembly election.

“I hope the new government will address our concerns and bring about positive changes in the region,” said a resident named Samiullah, who works as a teacher.

The Gilgit-Baltistan Assembly election is scheduled to be held on October 26, and locals across the region are eagerly waiting for the results.

The elections are being held in the context of the region’s ongoing efforts to achieve greater political representation and autonomy. The region is home to a diverse population of over 700,000 people, including the Balti, Sinde, and Shina communities.

“The region has been facing several challenges, including lack of infrastructure and lack of representation in the national parliament,” said Khanzada Khan, a local activist.

Ahead of the election, the regional government has announced a number of measures to ensure a fair and transparent electoral process. These include the establishment of an independent election commission, the deployment of extra polling staff, and the provision of security to all voters.

The Gilgit-Baltistan region has been a central focus of the Pakistan government’s efforts to achieve greater connectivity and development in the region. The region is home to a number of natural resources, including water, minerals, and forest products.

The region is also home to several tourist attractions, including the Shigar Valley, the Hunza Valley, and the Gupis Valley. These attractions have been important sources of revenue for the region, but the tourism sector has been hit by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Gilgit-Baltistan region has also been facing several challenges, including poverty, lack of education, and lack of employment opportunities.

“The region needs to focus on economic development and job creation,” said Khanzada Khan. “We need to attract investments in the region and create opportunities for our youth.”
