In an exclusive interview with Qatar Charity’s ‘Ghiras’ magazine

Khalid Khalifa, UNHCR representative to GCC countries:

We are proud of working with Qatar Charity to provide support in emergencies worldwide

The coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic has affected people and organizations around the world, leading to the displacement and voluntary organizations and bodies are working around the clock to support vulnerable populations around the world. UNHCR and UNHCR are working closely with governments and organizations to provide support and assistance to those affected by the pandemic.

To discuss the responsibilities of the pandemic and the current state of humanitarian activities around the world, the ‘Ghiras’ magazine talked to Mr. Khalid Khalifa, UNHCR Regional Representative for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

Qatar is among the largest responders to humanitarian crises

The coronavirus has posed significant challenges to refugees and the displaced who have already been going through unprecedented humanitarian crises. How do you assess the situation and what are the most significant needs?

- Of course, the coronavirus pandemic has brought unprecedented challenges in terms of internally displaced persons (IDPs) and refugees worldwide, causing the further deterioration of their humanitarian needs. All people, regardless of nationality, are at a higher risk of being infected with the coronavirus, which means that we must coordinate internationally to meet the needs of the most vulnerable people and ensure they are protected.

- UNHCR, the UN Refugee Agency, and its partners are on the ground to support refugees and host communities, and ensure awareness and protection in the event of the coronavirus outbreak among individuals of concern to UNHCR.

- Fighting the epidemic requires concerted efforts by all and solidarity with the most vulnerable people, like refugees and the displaced. Also, the countries and societies bearing large numbers of refugees in the Middle East and North Africa are the most at risk level of COVID-19 and the humanitarian action required.

Can you shed light on the cooperation between Qatar Charity and the UNHCR to combat the coronavirus?

- Qatar Charity was among the first organizations of the region to respond to the UNHCR appeal, making a generous contribution of $30 million to provide emergency assistance to Syrian refugees in Lebanon to combat the spread of the coronavirus pandemic. This contribution will provide essential cash assistance to nearly 40,000 Syrian refugees living below the poverty line.

- UNHCR, has received a significant amount of funding from Qatar Charity to support internally displaced persons (IDPs) in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and other humanitarian crises worldwide. With the funds, UNHCR has continued to support the families of such refugees around the world, and will continue to do so in the future.

How do you assess the humanitarian role and contributions of the State of Qatar globally?

In general, Qatar is at the forefront of the global humanitarian action, under the leadership of HH the Amir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al-Thani, Amir of the State of Qatar. We welcome Qatar’s contribution to the global humanitarian efforts, especially in terms of providing urgent assistance to vulnerable communities around the world. Qatar Charity has been one of the most important partners to Qatar in helping the displaced.

- Qatar Charity has helped deliver basic aid and cash assistance, support infrastructure, and provide water, sanitation, and hygiene supplies and medical equipment.

- Qatar Charity is proud to work with many partners in Qatar, including the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Qatar Fund for Development, Education Above All, Qatar Charity, Thani Bin Abdulrahman Bin Thani Al Thani Humanitarian Fund, Islamic, Qatar Airways, and others.

- The State of Qatar, through donations made by private and public sectors, has contributed more than $100 million for Qatar’s needs.

To what extent does Qatar’s humanitarian and development initiatives contribute to combating the worst of the UN agencies, particularly relating to the displaced and refugees across the globe?

The State of Qatar is one of the most important partners and supporters of the UNHCR at the international level, and we are proud of the role Qatar Charity plays in supporting vulnerable people, especially those affected by the displaced and refugees worldwide. Qatar and its institutions have supported many humanitarian sectors and programs of the UNHCR such as education, health, economic development assistance, as well as water and sanitation and many others.

Qatar has maintained a strong partnership with the State of Qatar since the beginning, and we are grateful to the Government of Qatar for supporting us, especially after signing the framing agreement in 2008.

The UNHCR has enjoyed the strategic cooperation with Qatar Charity, and many agreements and programs have been signed by both parties over past few years. How do you evaluate this partnership and what extent does it contribute to addressing the challenges faced by the displaced and refugees globally?

- We are proud of our partnership with Qatar Charity, which provides a pioneering model for supporting vulnerable populations. We are working jointly for enhancing the humanitarian response and cooperation and collect donations for the benefit of refugees and the displaced.

In 2018, Qatar Charity has made generous contributions amounting to $100 million in support of UNHCR operations and activities globally. The aid has contributed to supporting many different programs of the UNHCR.

In your capacity as an advisor to the High Commissioner for Refugees, what are the expectations of introducing Islamic financial mechanisms in support of refugees, especially in the Arab and Islamic region?

What is your evaluation of the results achieved through the Refugee Zakat Fund established by the UNHCR?

- The UNHCR Refugee Zakat Fund, established in 2017, is the first global motorcycle international and local philanthropy, and it has been supported by a number of leading Islamic countries, including Qatar. The fund has raised more than $100 million from Qatar Charity and other organizations to support refugees, especially those affected by the displaced and refugees worldwide.

Facebook's robust advertising platform has always been its lifeblood. But the company has flirted with the idea of diversifying that revenue stream. Now, it faces a major test that could determine whether it can successfully pivot away from its addiction to advertising.

The test is whether users will accept Facebook as a news outlet, or whether it will continue to rely on advertising as its primary source of revenue.

The company's decision comes after a series of scandals, including the Cambridge Analytica data breach and theisure of the role of social media in spreading misinformation.

Facebook is currently facing pressure from regulators around the world to increase its transparency and accountability, and to address concerns about its impact on society.

The company has also been working on developing new products, including Facebook Watch, a video platform that competes with YouTube.

The key question for Facebook is whether users will be willing to pay for its news content, or whether it will continue to rely on advertising as its primary source of revenue.

If users are willing to pay, Facebook could become a major player in the news industry. But if they are not, it may have to continue relying on advertising, which could be a significant risk for the company's future.

A blue moon appeared in Qatar for the first time yesterday evening. It was the second full moon to appear in October, and that gives the year 13 full moons instead of the usual 12. The moon does not occur twice in a month, and the month that contains two new moons is usually referred to as a blue moon. Blue moons occur on average once every 23 years or so, and the last one was seen in March 2018, according to information available online. The image above was captured in Al Wakra.
