Trump challenges counts as Biden inches closer to victory

The US election was coming down to just a handful of states where the Republican incumbent and his challenger fought over the presidency. Biden led in Michigan by nearly 4,900 votes with 94% counted and has already been declared winner of four states, while the apparent shift in fortunes toward Biden was coming down to just a handful of states where the Republican incumbent and his challenger fought over the presidency.

Eco-friendly walkway opened in Al Wakrah

The Ministry of Municipality and Environment, represented by Al Wakrah Municipality, launched the Al Wakrah Waterway, an environmentally sustainable initiative, as part of the activities of Qatar Sustainability Week 2020 and coinciding with the accession of Al Wakrah to the membership of the Unesco Global Network of Learning Cities (UNLGC).

Legal battle looms for the White House

T he campaign said it was also suing the Wisconsin Elections Commission spiralled in the still uncounted US election yesterday, as President Donald Trump demanded a recount in Wisconsin – all of them close contests. Biden was leading in Michigan by nearly 160,000 votes with 95% counted and has already been declared winner of four states, while the apparent shift in fortunes toward Biden was coming down to just a handful of states where the Republican incumbent and his challenger fought over the presidency.

Trump's campaign announced a lawsuit to try and disrupt the vote count in Michigan, where it said the team was denied proper access to observe vote counting.

The campaign said it was also suing the Wisconsin Elections Commission – after the president called overnight for Supreme Court intervention to exclude the processing of mail-in ballots after the close of polls.

Biden demanded a recount in Wisconsin, saying “incompetent” state officials had already been declared winner of another tight race in Arizona. Results were still being tabulated in Georgia, Nevada, North Carolina and Pennsylvania – all of them on track to be flipped to the Democrats.

MME opens Al Wakra Walkway

QNA

The Ministry of Municipality and Environment launched Al Wakra Walkway in the ongoing Sustainability Week 2020 and as part of the activities of Qatar to become a Learning City (GNLC).

Al Wakra Municipality’s Omar al-Jaber explained that the inauguration is in line with the idea proposed for Qatar Sustainability Week. Al Wakra Municipality, represented by the Public Parks and Recreation Department, was keen to use solar lighting in many of its facilities such as Al Wakra Family Beach and Al Wakra Public Beach.

He indicated that the walkway, 350m long, was constructed, in line with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, with environmentally friendly materials being used in all stages of its construction. In line with the idea proposed for Qatar Sustainability Week, Al Wakra Municipality represented by Al Wakra Park and Environment, the Ministry of Municipality and Environment, launched the Al Wakra Walkway, an environmentally sustainable walkway.

The new initiative is part of a joint sustainability effort to benefit the environment. It is an important movement to electric or hybrid cars to make a direct impact, as electric cars produce zero emissions, while hybrid vehicles have reduced CO2 emissions.

Employees will be able to rely on such vehicles while they visit our premises. Principal operating officer at Ooredoo Qatar said: “As our sustainability efforts progress, in line with our corporate social responsibility strategy and our commitment to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, it is important for us to think in a holistic manner. Given this commitment to sustainability at the core of our operations, it makes sense for us to give our colleagues every opportunity to drive their cars to charge and to rely on such vehicles while they visit our premises.

“Being able to offer our customers this charging facility while they visit our premises adds value. We’re proud to be working with our colleagues to move to electric or hybrid vehicles, while they visit our premises also.

In line with Porsche’s commitment to the future of electromobility and CO2 reduction. “With the new, all-electric Taycan 4S, Turbo and Turbo S models that are now available to order, Porsche is heavily investing in do-everything portfolio and an integral part of that is ensuring our charging stations are accessible to not only owners of Porsche electric and hybrid vehicles, but also to visitors and employees of Ooredoo,” he added.
Qatar health expert joins UN Covid-19 initiative

Dr Sara al-Bayat, head of vaccination at the Ministry of Public Health and Covid-19 Contact Trace Track and Three Lead for Qatar, joined global experts from around the world to participate in the Vaccine Confidence Project’s campaign to build trust in vaccines, launch on October 14.

Dr al-Bayat participated in a webinar on the regional and global challenges related to Covid-19 vaccines and counter misinformation, which also featured experts from the World Health Organization (WHO), UNICEF, national health authorities, and academics from around the world.

The Vaccine Confidence Project, a non-profit organization with the aim to build global trust in vaccines, has more than 10 years of experience in implementing activities in 100 countries around the world to improve vaccination rates in the community and adapt trust in vaccines.

The webinar was the second in the 2020 Vaccine Confidence Project’s Global Summit, which had been launched in autumn and aimed to bring together experts from around the world to discuss the challenges and opportunities related to Covid-19 vaccines and counter misinformation.

Dr al-Bayat said the impact of global vaccination campaigns will be facilitated by global partnerships, scientific evidence, and accurate information.

Qatar has achieved a high level of vaccination among people aged 18 and above, covering 80% of the population, Dr al-Bayat said.

She also praised the Ministry of Health and Prevention (MoPH) for its efforts to launch campaigns to raise awareness and confidence in vaccines.

Qatar’s achievements in vaccine confidence were highlighted by the WHO in 2019, Dr al- Bayat said.

The Vaccine Confidence Project, with the aim to build global trust in vaccines, has more than 10 years of experience in implementing activities in 100 countries around the world to improve vaccination rates in the community and adapt trust in vaccines.

Dr al- Bayat pointed out that the Ministry of Health and Prevention (MoPH) and the Ministry of Education and Higher Education (MoE) have been working together to launch awareness campaigns to encourage people to get vaccinated.

Commissioner-General of UNRWA visits Qatar Charity, applauds its humanitarian efforts worldwide

HE Sheikh Hamad bin Nasser Al Thani, Chairperson of Qatar Charity, met with HE Philip Lazarini, Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA), in the presence of Yousef bin Ahmed Al-Kuwari, CEO of Qatar Charity, during a visit he paid to Qatar Charity's headquarters recently.

The meeting also talked over the difficulties facing international humanitarian organizations working in Palestine, in addition to the difficulties experienced by UNRWA in terms of funding.

During the meeting, the two parties also discussed the possibility of developing joint capacity building programs, the prospects for strategic partnership in the areas of advocacy, and the participation in international events, in addition to research.

Besides, Qatar Charity's worldwide humanitarian efforts, particularly those made in support of the Palestinian people, were reviewed during the meeting.

The Commissioner-General of UNRWA, expressed his great admiration for the efforts made by Qatar Charity worldwide, praising its governance procedures and technology usage, especially in the field of fundraising and spending on its various projects.

He underlined the importance of cooperation and partnership with Qatar Charity and developing it to the strategic level and working together to convey the voice of the Palestinian people to international forums.

He also noted the suffering of Palestinian refugees in Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, the West Bank, East Jerusalem, and Gaza, especially in light of the coronavirus pandemic, underscoring the right of Palestinian refugees to access education and health and aspire for a better life.

HE Sheikh Hamad bin Nasser Al Thani, Chairperson of Qatar Charity, affirmed Qatar Charity's commitment to support the Palestinian people and contribute to alleviating their suffering.

He said that Qatar Charity would spare no effort to continue supporting the Palestinian people in the humanitarian and development fields, in coordination and cooperation with humanitarian partners, especially United Nations agencies.

He also noted the importance of overcoming difficulties associated with the performance of the humanitarian institutions operating in Palestine, emphasizing the need to work within the international system, and the importance of coordination and cooperation.

It is worth mentioning that Qatar Charity has spent approximately $140 million on developmental, social and humanitarian projects for the benefit of Palestinians in the 2015-2020 period. Currently, more than 16,000 Palestinian orphans are under the sponsorship of Qatar Charity.

Qatar Charity has a proven track record of cooperation with UNRWA. Three agreements have already been signed, including a strategic agreement. The last $1.5mn pact was signed this year to support food security.

Perfect plants to boost your well-being

By James Wong

There are huge benefits to being in green spaces, as having plants as part of your life can help improve your health. In fact, there are four rules to boost your well-being.

With a growing body of scientific research consistently showing a huge range of health benefits that come from being in green spaces, I am convinced that more people should go outside to boost their well-being. It’s a big question, but here’s what I would advise...

For going outdoors:

One of the most surprising things I have seen from looking at images of nature projected on screens is how it can improve mood and performance. It would be fair to postulate, therefore, that the visual stimulation of greenery alone may be one of the biggest factors at play here. Working on this assumption, I’d like to suggest that people go outside and let the plants do the rest.

Don’t forget scent:

Troops shoot dead Palestinian in West Bank village in Jordan Valley

A Palestinian shot at Israeli troops near Nablus, the occupied West Bank yesterday and was killed when soldiers fired the shots. "We were at a military post adjacent to the southern part of the city of Nablus when a fighter drove out of the city armed with a pistol and fired indiscriminately," said an eyewitness. "The episode has been termed an act of terror." An anonymous person contacted by AFP that the suspect was killed. No Israeli soldiers were injured. Palestinian security sources named the dead as Bilal Adnan Rawajbah, 26, and official Palestinian news agency Wafa said he was a resident of the Palestinian security services. The Intifada Liberation Organisation accused Israel of "the most recent example of the apartheid policy" and called for the International Criminal Court and the United Nations Security Council to intervene. "This latest act of terrorism is committed by Palestinian security forces," it said. "We are demanding the immediate withdrawal of Israeli soldiers from our lands and an end to all Israeli violations." Troops destroyed a number of buildings in the town and demolished a number of other structures, according to residents.

Abbas holds talks with Romanian PM

Palestinian Prime Minister Mohammad Shtayyeh accused Israeli troops of having "completely demolished the village of Homeira al-Baqia, having arrested 350 people from it". The Israeli army has demolished the homes of nearly 800 Palestinian residents in the occupied West Bank, officials and Palestinian popular organisations say. The army says it is targeting "terrorists" and is operating in areas where this type of activity is taking place.

Seven killed in Syria's rebel northwest

Four children were among seven civilians killed in government air raids on a rebel-held area in Syria's northwest Idlib region last week, a monitor reported. The US-led coalition carried out the attack against the rebel-held area of Idlib province, which is home to one million people, according to the Observatory. The coalition said seven civilians had been killed in a "hostile act" targeting Syrian rebel forces in Idlib on Thursday. The Observatory said the attack was in response to a "hostile move" by Syrian government forces in the area.

Teachers kidnapped in Cameroon's troubled Northwest Region

Two teachers kidnapped in Cameroon's troubled Northwest Region.

The abduction comes on the heels of a massacre of schoolchildren, which the government has blamed on militiamen.

The massacre happened on Monday in Kumbo, in Cameroon's Northwest Region. It is the second such attack in the region in recent weeks, following a massacre of schoolchildren in a nearby town last month.

The region has been plagued by violence for years, with separatists seeking independence for the country's northern region, known as the English-speaking “Western” region.

The government has accused separatists of carrying out the attacks, but separatists have denied the allegations.

The latest attack comes as the government is preparing to hold a referendum on constitutional reform, which separatists have said is an attempt by the government to undermine their demands for independence.

The referendum is scheduled for October 24, and the government has said it will take place despite ongoing violence in the region.

Biden leads Trump in battleground states

Despite Joe Biden having a narrow lead in Wisconsin yesterday, after officials completed their vote counts in the presidential race, a major blow to his quest to win the US presidency from Donald Trump would be to deliver the swing states of Wisconsin and Florida, both vowed action on posts and unsubstantiated allegations of election-related abuses of their platforms. In the US, where the latest voter fraud claims of state wins, premature claims of victory and unsubstantiated allegations have been applied to both candidates, the importance of the vote counts as ballot counting will continue for days or weeks. The protest flyer called people to action to stop Trump from being declared the winner. "We’re going to demand this vote, the vote by which Joe Biden has been elected to the presidency," said Krause, adding that the company’s legal team was preparing to contest Trump’s所谓 victory.

Austria ‘was warned attacker tried to buy ammunition’

Austrian intelligence services have been warned that the gunman who carried out the attack in Vienna tried to get ammunition. The warning comes as police have stepped up security measures in other European cities.

The gunman, identified as Kujtim Kickl, is said to have been an Islamic State supporter who wanted to carry out a terrorist attack in Vienna. The Austrian interior minister, Karl Nehammer, said that the warning had been passed on to the police and that they were investigating the extent of the relationship between Kickl and the intelligence services.

The warning reportedly came after Kickl was killed in a police operation in December. The police had been monitoring Kickl since he was arrested in April last year for trying to travel to Syria to join IS.

Nehammer said that the warning had been taken “very seriously” and that the police were investigating whether the warning had been acted upon.

The warning was reportedly made by the Austrian domestic intelligence service and the government之间的 correspondence.

The warning information was shared with the police and the interior minister, who said that it was “clearly a matter of concern”.

Four people were killed when the gunman, named as a former Austrian police officer, opened fire in a busy street in Vienna on Monday evening.

The interior minister said that the gunman had been “taken down by police forces” and that the attack had been “stopped in its tracks”.

Meanwhile, Austrian interior minister Karl Nehammer has said that a man who killed four people in Vienna on Monday was a known terrorist and had been monitored by the intelligence services for a long time.

The attack comes as police in other European cities have ramped up security measures in response to the terrorist threat. After the attacks in Vienna, police in Milan, Rome, and Madrid have stepped up security patrols and checks.

In a statement, Nehammer said that the attack had been “a clear indication that the terrorist threat is still a serious concern in Europe”.

CBI can’t carry out investigations without govt’s approval: Kerala

The Kerala government on Saturday said that the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) cannot carry out investigations without its permission.

The decision to withdrawal the clearances came after a meeting of the state cabinet, chaired by Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan, which ruled out the possibility that the government could withdraw the clearance it had given to the CBI.

The CBI had obtained a no-objection certificate from the government to investigate the case of the death of a professor at the University of Kerala.

The government had earlier given its approval for the CBI to investigate the matter, which has been described as a sensational crime.

Trying to cover chaos, lies, complicated vote count in a pandemic

Tuesday night didn’t actually go the way the politicians thought it would. President Joe Biden was leading by a small margin stronger than the ones the networks counted. Then Trump tweeted at 12:49: “We are not done.” But the networks were calling the election. We will never let them do it. Votes cannot be cast after the polls are closed. “And so, we at CBS News... are not projecting a winner and a clear path forward for Joe Biden,” CBS anchor Norah O’Donnell said, adding that it was a “call to fact check his words and try to hold the president accountable.”

The networks had actually started calling the race at 1pm Tuesday with an interesting twist when Fox News called Arizona for Biden and the Trump campaign team demanded it retract the call.

At that point, Fox was the only major outlet to make a call in the right Arizona race. But instead of retracting the call, at about 3pm Tuesday, Fox News anchor Arnon Mishkin, the veteran director of the channel’s decision desk, directed his audience to “the network results tab”.

“I’m sorry, we’re not wrong,” Mishkin said.

Yet in a radio interview that same day, the Trump administration team suggested that if Fox News called Arizona for Biden, the network would be “illegitimately calling an election”.

The networks then all finally called the race as Biden won, and the situation became even messier with Biden leading by 269 electoral votes to Trump’s 214.

Add to that, there was the fact that Fox News had been the only major outlet to make a call in the right Arizona race.

The situation became even messier with the Trump campaign team demanding it retract the call.

But that is a misleading comparison to the present circumstances.

President Joe Biden is the now the president-elect, and has already advanced some policy, like the conservative New York Times columnist from Covid-19, scoff at the description of Trump as a strongman. They see the American economy as a nation that has been suffering under a pandemic that has killed millions with his macho bluster. In the coming weeks, months, or years, Trump and his followers would not be able to understand how we got to this point. Trump has accomplished, we will be a more democratic erosion.

For this election cycle, the party is one of the main issues that affects the democratic process and threatens democracy. Especially in a country like the United States, where the election process is incredibly important.

Adding that there has been a “massive vote by mail operation” and that “these votes have not been counted,” O’Donnell told viewers. “And so, we at CBS News... are not projecting a winner in this presidential race.”

All three news outlets handled the urgent case of a president claiming victory and alleging that his opponent was engaged in trying to defraud the American people as well as can be done within the bounds of traditional journalistic community and discourse.

But how do you counter the damage of such reckless andtransparent lies from the halls of the highest offices in the land? Once the words were out of Trump’s mouth, the nation that has been suffering under a pandemic that has killed hundreds of thousands of Americans and shown millions of out of work, was left behind a world of ever more pain, anxiety and bitter conflict. — CBS News Service

Democracy’s moment of truth

By Ruth Box-Gaytán

A certain moment in history — often after substantial societal progress has discontinued for certain segments of society — is individualized to the political world. The current state of US politics is a case in point. It’s a world that has been dominated by the rise of a new extreme right-wing movement that has been fueled by a series of failures of its predecessors to contain the pandemic.

This description of the archetypal strongman has many commonalities. Since Donald Trump took office in early 2017, the US has experienced an erosion of democracy, the weakening of authoritarian leadership, the current presidential election, and the rise of a new, ideologically-driven political movement that has taken under a president who has maintained his right-wing positions and pursued a foreign policy built on transactional alliances.

An election can only happen, as Abdur Rahman Chishti expected in 2020 showed. Yet an existential dread with murderous despots around the world.

Any election can only happen, as Abdur Rahman Chishti expected in 2020 showed. Yet an existential dread with murderous despots around the world. The imminent presidential election is unfolding of authoritarian leadership.

The moment presidential election is then a result of the exalted position in the US. The president’s position is a result of the exalted position in the world.

Adding that there has been a “massive vote by mail operation” and that “these votes have not been counted,” O’Dunn told viewers. “And so, we at CBS News... are not projecting a winner in this presidential race.”

The Crib: Only by accepting the reality of the authoritarian turn in American politics can further democratic erosion be contained. Whatever the outcome of the US election, the US will remain a major power in the international system, and the challenges to democracy that it faces will continue. – Ruth Box-Gaytán, Professor of History and Indian Studies at the University of Texas, in an expert on authoritarian regimes and their leaders and authors of the forthcoming book 'Globalization: The Power of Authoritarian Regimes', published by Palgrave Macmillan. — Gulf Times
