US approves funds transfer for Iran to buy vaccines

Iran has won US approval to transfer $5 billion for counseling vaccines from European sources, the central bank said on Saturday, as the daily death toll of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) approached 1,000 in the Islamic Republic.

Central bank Governor Abdolnasser Hemmati said an Iranian bank had received backing from the US Treasury to pursue the $5 billion deal, which could allow Tehran to transfer the money to a Swiss bank to pay for the vaccines.

"They (Americans) have put sanctions on us. We have accepted this as a test under the pressure of world public system," Hemmati told state TV. There was no immediate US reaction to Hemmati's remarks.

The US, which had froze $7 billion in Iranian assets for alleged links to terrorism, has since February 2020 authorized the transfer of $5 billion to Iran for counseling vaccines, according to a law passed by Congress.

"Iran has the authority to pay for the vaccines with the $5 billion due to it in accordance with US law," US Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen said in February.

The United States has imposed sanctions on Cuba over issues such as human rights abuses and the country's support for the Venezuelan government of Nicolas Maduro.

The US government has also accused Cuba of interfering in US elections and providing support to terrorist groups.

Cuban doctors, who are regarded as some of the best in the world, have previously worked in other countries to fight the pandemic.

The country has implemented strict measures to prevent the spread of the virus, including lockdowns, social distancing, and widespread testing.

The arrival of the Cuban medical team is expected to bolster Panama's efforts to control the pandemic and save lives.

What lifted Trump could very well sink Biden

By Helene C. DuChesne

If her autobiography, The Trump Card, is anything to go by, how will Ivanka Trump feel tomorrow, the day after her father’s unexpected victory in the 2020 presidential election? This was written as her father’s political career was winding down and she appeared destined for a life of leisure as a royal princess, the daughter of one of the world’s most powerful fathers. Her ambition and drive seemed endless, and she was thought to be a likely candidate for a career in politics. However, in 2020, she found herself living “in dreamland,” after her father unexpectedly won the presidency.

JUDGES ON THE FEDERAL BENCH

Trump's choices of judges will cause US lasting harm

By Khalid Al Faisal

Long after he leaves office, Donald Trump’s religious right-wing alumni of the federal courts will continue to undermine the Constitution.

Over the past four years, the president has stacked the federal courts with ultraconservative judges. According to a new report by the National Council of Churches and the Religion News Service, 115 Supreme Court appointments, and 170 district court appointments, drastically outpacing his predecessors. This means that, for the foreseeable future, judges outside the pocket of privilege. The influence of religious privilege in America will be at least partly aware of the flaws in American law. But, after Donald’s malignant presidency, there is also a chance that Trump will try to win back some of the millions of people who voted for him in 2016. There is also a chance that he will try to win back some of the millions of people who voted for him in 2016. The implication is that we will be seeing a move to full steam ahead to weaponise and redefine religion, age or national origin.

In 2020, the Supreme Court allowed state-level public health pandemic restrictions on religious services to stand. Just one day before Christmas, the president called it a “sad day for America,” and the federal judges who ruled against him have already been appointed for life.

Trump’s lower federal court appointees have also been busy using their power to weaken the Establishment Clause and expand the anti-separation of church and state in America. Some of them have been appointed to the federal bench by Trump, others by previous presidents.

For example, Judge Barbara Lagoa and Brett, both appointed by Trump to the 11th US Circuit Court of Appeals, formed the majority of a three-judge panel that voted in November to strike down Florida’s ban on holding religious services in nursing homes, churches, and other places of worship. The majority of the panel held that the ban violated the establishment clause of the First Amendment.

In 2020, the Supreme Court ruled that religious groups could not be excluded from holding services in public schools, even though Trump’s administration had refused to allow them to hold services in public spaces.
