Corruption index results reflect Qatar’s success, says ACTA chief

The results of 2019 Global Corruption Perception Index reflect the success of Qatar in many fields, including transparency and fighting corruption, HE the President of the Administrative Control and Transparency Authority (ACTA) Hamad bin Nasser al-Missned said yesterday.

He said that these achievements come despite the blockade against Qatar and other regional developments.

HE al-Missned said that the authority is always keen on building partnerships with leading international organisations, such as the International Anti-Corruption Academy (IACA) and the Independent Commission Against Corruption in South Korea, as part of the efforts to fight corruption.

He noted that the authority has carried out a number of ambitious projects to enhance transparency in Qatar, in addition to contributing to international efforts on the matter, adding that Qatar has become an important destination for experts in the field of fighting corruption.

In addition to these efforts, the authority also works on facilitating cooperation between different state entities and international organisations, highlighting the importance of the Anti-Smith Thani bin Hamad Thani International Anti-Corruption Excellence Award as one of the leading efforts in that regard.

The index results show that Qatar is ahead of the average in the Middle East and North Africa, including Arab countries, which is 39 points, in light of a large number of countries decline.

The organisation pointed out the negative impact of developments and factors of political instability and conflicts in the region, and its effect on the decline of many Middle Eastern countries on this indicator ranking.

Qatar Charity (QC) has implemented more than 598 relief projects in 34 countries across Africa, Asia, and Europe during the year 2019, at an estimated cost of 340 million Qatari riyals, benefiting more than 8 million people in places affected by crisis and disaster around the globe.

Qatar Charity’s humanitarian intervention included comprehensive relief, basic winter needs, food supply, educational, social cohesion, livelihoods, protection, health, water, sanitation, training, and capacity building.

Comprehensive Relief
Qatar Charity’s assistance in the field of comprehensive relief, which covers all the needs of the beneficiaries immediately after the occurrence of disasters and crises, occupied the largest percentage of aid in terms of beneficiaries and cost. This assistance worth more than 83 million riyals benefited more than one million people, in 16 countries going through exceptional circumstances such as Syria, Somalia, Yemen, Sudan, and Myanmar.

The food projects, which benefited 2 million people, amounted to more than 81 million riyals, while the health projects valued at more than 65 million riyals, benefited nearly 4 million people.

The basic winter needs were estimated at more than 29 million riyals, while the water and sanitation projects and education projects were valued at approximately 15 million riyals and nearly 14 million riyals, respectively.

Humanitarian Intervention
Syria received the largest portion of the assistance provided by Qatar Charity during the year 2019 in various fields of humanitarian intervention due to the worsening situation of the Syrian displaced and refugees. This aid worth more than 168 million benefited three Syrian million people. The humanitarian interventions of Qatar Charity in Yemen, Somalia, and Myanmar was valued at over 37 million riyals, 23 million riyals, and 21.3 million riyals, respectively.

In the field of comprehensive relief, nearly 700,000 people living in Syria and the countries of asylum benefited from projects estimated at 34 million riyals, followed by Somalia with 132,000 beneficiaries of projects worth 11 million riyals.

Food Aid
Qatar Charity provided aid valued at 81,272,570 riyals in the field of food supply, benefiting nearly 2 million people in 27 countries worldwide.

The food assistance includes distributing food baskets to the affected people in Yemen and Syrian refugees in Lebanon, in addition to food projects implemented in Ethiopia, Kosovo, Sudan, Iraq, Palestine, and other countries.

In the field of health, 76 projects worth more than 63 million riyals have been implemented, benefiting about 4 million people in 18 countries, including approximately 1,200 beneficiaries in Bangladesh and 1150 beneficiaries in Palestine, while the projects implemented in Syria amounted to more than 35 million riyals out of 65 million riyals.

Health projects include building hospitals and health centers, strengthening the health system to improve access to healthcare services for Rohingya refugees in Bangladesh, treating the poor in India, deploying medical convey for the poor in Burkina Faso, and providing emergency medical assistance in Yemen, in addition to other health projects implemented across the globe.

Qatar Charity has also implemented educational projects worth more than 13 million riyals, which included sponsoring refugee students, maintaining schools, extending education support for Yemeni children, and providing free education to refugee children returning from Tabata camps and residing in Kamsayo, in addition to other education projects.

Qatar Charity has also implemented other projects in various fields such as water, sanitation, social cohesion, livelihoods, protection, training, and capacity development.

The search and follow-up and those arrested would be checked to identify those who committed violations. Captain Omar Khalifa al-Jonidi, head of the Search and Investigation Department, said the gang was busted after getting information that some people were posting about visa trade on social media and reporting the same.

"After confirming the authenticity of the information, the gang members were kept under watch and a warrant was issued by the Public Prosecution, which resulted in the gang being caught red-handed as the members tried to sell visas to a person sent by the authorities. The teams from the department arrested all the accused and sound stunts, identity cards, bank cards and cash from them. The accused were referred to the prosecution to complete legal procedures," he said. The department had people not to deal with flaying workers or employers, as the office is conducting inspections to follow all violations. The officials have also urged company owners not to give away their lives to undocumented people or others people who could not be trusted to do the official work of the company. Further, the company owners are required to report immediately about flaying workers with the available information.

Iran has the capacity to enrich uranium at any level, the country’s nuclear authorities decide to do so, the deputy head of the country’s nuclear agency said in a report to the country’s parliament.

“The moment, if Iran attaches the decision, the decision will be too easy,” Ali Akbar Salehi, Iran’s Atomic Energy Organization chief, said in a speech in the capital, Tehran, on Wednesday.

The announcement comes as Western powers seek to restore the 2015 nuclear deal with Iran, which Iran has said it will not accept. Iran’s nuclear program is a matter of concern for the United States, which is seeking to contain the country’s influence in the Middle East.

UK PM presses Trump over Dunn suspect

Primer minister “vastly overruled” need for Anne Sacoolas, chargé, charged with causing death of Harry Dunn to face justice

By Nicola Bamwell

B ritish Prime Minister Boris Johnson “vastly overruled” his US counterpart in his determination to charge a diplomat’s wife with causing death of Harry Dunn to face justice.

Downing Street sources on August 15 said a phone call from Donald Trump, the US president, had “very much overruled” the need for Anne Sacoolas to appear in court.

Sacoolas had been charged by the United States with causing death of Dunn, 19, in August 2019.

But a US judge later dismissed the case, meaning Sacoolas was no longer in the US when Mr Johnson invited her to return to face charges.

A Foreign Office spokesman confirmed on August 16 the UK government had offered to extradite Sacoolas, who had been living in the US since Dunn’s death.

But he said there was no time scale for any decision on whether to extradite her.

Mr Johnson had telephoned Mr Trump “very recently” to tell him of the “vastly overruled” decision to charge Sacoolas, a diplomat’s wife, after she was living in the US.

The decision to charge Sacoolas arose from a deal agreed in the days after Dunn’s death, when Sacoolas and family were in the US.

Mr Johnson was said to have wanted to ensure the Sacoolas case was dealt with in the US and not returned to the UK.

But Mr Trump was said to have insisted on the US taking the case.

The US prosecutor’s decision to drop charges against Sacoolas came on the same day that Mr Trump’s administration had charged her with causing death of Dunn.

After Donald Trump’s phone call, the UK government had instructed the Metropolitan police in London to no longer seek Sacoolas’ extradition.

Extradition proceedings would now be stopping and the US prosecutor’s decline to proceed with the case would also end.

But the UK government had not told Mr Trump of its “vastly overruled” decision to not extradite.

The phone call came after Mr Johnson’s US trip in July, when he had invited Sacoolas to “come home”. It is understood that during the call, Mr Trump had asked Mr Johnson to “overrule” the decision to not extradite.

Mr Johnson was said to have replied that the decision had been “vastly overruled”.

But during the phone call, the US prosecutor had not been told the case had been dropped.

Anne Sacoolas is due to return to the US and face trial in a US court.

But it is not yet clear whether she will face charges.

Qatar committed to produce energy that is cleaner, sustainable

Qatar’s determination to make the best use of renewable, free sources of energy that is sustainable and totally inexhaustible, is clearly reflected in its recent awarding of the Al Kharsaah Project. The nearly QR1.7bn Al Kharsaah solar project has a targeted capacity of 1.016GW with a stated 10% of the country’s peak electricity demand. The nearly QR1.7bn solar project being constructed at Al Kharsaah in West Doha covering a total area of 410km². The plant will use the application of the latest solutions and innovations in solar technology. As per the agreement, Qatar’s Sing Energy, a joint venture owned by Qatar’s DOQIC, will hold a 60% stake in the project while the rest will be held by France’s Total and Japan’s Marubeni.

The utility-scale solar power plant will help Qatar bring down carbon footprint. The planned plant, during its life span, is expected to reduce 28mn tonnes of carbon dioxide annually with the effect of ‘inertializing’ the nation-state’s use of fossil fuels. According to a joint venture owned by Qatar’s DOQIC, the utility-scale solar power plant will be constructed at Al Kharsaah in West Doha covering a total area of 410km². Australia rises like a phoenix with spirit tempered by fire

The annual meeting of the American Economic Association (AEA) is normally held in January, at least in recent years, but in 2020 it was held in Melbourne, Australia. To honour the land, flora, and fauna we enjoy, and most importantly, to celebrate our diverse society and multiculturalism, this year we also reflect on the events of 2020. The pandemic has affected almost everyone.

There have been many changes caused by the pandemic, and there have been some positive changes. The pandemic has accelerated the adoption of new technologies and new ways of working. The pandemic has also highlighted the importance of public health and the role of governments in managing public health crises.

The pandemic has also highlighted the importance of international cooperation and the need for global action to tackle global challenges.
