Italy, Spain suffer record virus deaths

British PM tests positive – 300,000 cases in Europe

The coronavirus first emerged in China last year before spreading globally, but by the end of last year had infected more than 19 million people and killed more than 480,000. As of 12 April, the UK had recorded more than 300,000 cases and over 37,000 deaths. The World Health Organization (WHO) declared the outbreak a pandemic on 11 March 2020.

In Italy, the government announced a lockdown of the country, which was subsequently extended to a nationwide lockdown. Spain followed suit with a nationwide lockdown, as did other countries across Europe and around the world. The lockdowns helped to slow the spread of the virus, but at a great economic cost.

In the UK, the government implemented a lockdown on 23 March 2020, which was extended several times and lasted until 12 April 2020. During this period, the government implemented a range of measures to support the NHS and to protect the public from the virus.

The measures included the provision of personal protective equipment (PPE) to healthcare workers, the establishment of drive-through testing centers, and the implementation of contact tracing. The government also implemented a range of economic measures to support businesses and workers during the lockdown.

The global pandemic has had a significant impact on the global economy, with many industries experiencing a significant downturn. The tourism industry has been particularly hard hit, with many countries implementing travel restrictions and lockdowns.

The pandemic has also led to significant changes in the way we work and live, with many people working from home and practicing social distancing. The pandemic has also highlighted the importance of healthcare systems and the need for investment in healthcare infrastructure.

The pandemic has also highlighted the importance of international cooperation and the need for a global response to the crisis. The WHO played a key role in coordinating the global response to the pandemic, and many countries have worked together to share information and resources.

The pandemic has also highlighted the importance of science and research, with many scientific organizations and countries investing heavily in research to develop vaccines and treatments for the virus.

In conclusion, the pandemic has had a significant impact on the global economy and society, but it has also led to significant changes and improvements in many areas. The pandemic has highlighted the importance of investment in healthcare and research, and the need for international cooperation to address the global challenge of the pandemic.

Kuwait confirms 17 new virus cases

Kuwait confirmed 17 new coronavirus cases on Saturday, bringing the total to 235, said the country’s health ministry.

A number of people infected in Kuwait were linked to two cases that were previously confirmed, to one case in the city of Ahmadi and to two new cases in the capital, the ministry said. There are also three patients under investigation, who are not included in the confirmed cases.

The total number of COVID-19 cases confirmed by the Kuwait health ministry now stands at 235.

Lebanon’s virus death toll rises to seven

The Lebanese Health Ministry on Saturday confirmed seven virus-related deaths, bringing the nationwide toll to seven.

Lebanese Prime Minister Hassan Diab was on Saturday meeting experts to discuss a strategy to cope with the coronavirus after the virus claimed its first victim on Thursday.

The announcement came after the Lebanese authorities confirmed additional cases of coronavirus, bringing the total confirmed to 391.

President Donald Trump and Democratic Governor Gretchen Whitmer of Michigan took fresh swipes at each other over the spread of the coronavirus, escalating a war of words that has left Whitmer and her administration under fire.

Whitmer sent a letter to Trump on Thursday seeking a major disaster declaration for Michigan, saying that “we’ll have a great market function,” but noted that “Michigan has been an early adopter of the ‘social distancing’ strategy, with a shortage of supplies and tests for coronavirus...”

Trump on Thursday asked Congress for $2.2 trillion in coronavirus aid, with measures to help states, individuals and small businesses. The package would include $1,200 stimulus payments to every adult American, $500 for each child, $250bn for small businesses, $500bn for hospitals and $100bn for state and local governments.

The government’s new Covid-19 task force, led by Health Minister Zainulabsahin, said yesterday the task force has been asked to work on a plan to lift lockdown restrictions.

The Maldives, which consists of 26 islands, has reported 15 confirmed coronavirus cases and three deaths. It has reported 993 deaths and 1,000 recoveries.

The government has also said that the number of confirmed cases is likely to be lower than the actual number, as the testing rate is low.

Charity evicts family of disabled boy from Manchester flat

The family of a disabled boy have been evicted from their home in Manchester by a local council, which has been branded “extremely disappointing” and said the family was asked to “prove [its] identity”.

The young boy, who was known by the family as “C”, was admitted to Stepping Hill Hospital in Stockport last month with breathing difficulties. After he recovered enough to be discharged, he was told he had to leave the family’s council flat, which he had occupied with his parents for 10 years.

The council said it had no option but to evict the family because of the boy’s developmental disabilities, which included cerebral palsy and epilepsy. The family had requested to stay in the home but the council refused.

In a statement, the council said: “We face a public health crisis like no other. We are doing everything we can to support our communities, and it is vital that we continue to respond to their usual needs for as long as possible. This family’s continued occupation of the property represents a significant challenge to our ability to meet the needs of other, more critical cases, and could put the safety of the family and the wider community at risk.”

The family’s lawyer, Andrew Ashworth, said: “The family is distraught and extremely disappointed. We understand the council’s concerns about the spread of the virus, but the family has lived in the home for 10 years and has always been a responsible tenant. They have requested to stay in the property and have been refused.”

The family's local councillor, Helen Small, said: “This is a difficult decision for the council, but it is a necessary one to protect the health and safety of the wider community.”

The family has appealed the eviction and is seeking legal advice. They have also contacted the council to seek an urgent review of their decision.

Firefighters to deliver food and collect bodies

Firefighters are being deployed to deliver food and collect bodies in areas affected by the coronavirus crisis.

The move comes as the UK faces a growing shortage of delivery drivers and as the number of deaths from the virus continues to rise.

Firefighters have been asked to help deliver food to people who are isolated and unable to leave their homes. They will also be asked to collect bodies from care homes and hospitals.

The fire service said it was working with local authorities to ensure that its resources were being used effectively.

Pandemic freezes housing market

The government has warned that the housing market could be frozen as the coronavirus crisis continues.

The chancellor, Rishi Sunak, has said that the housing market was “on life support” and that it was “essential that we do as much as we can to support the industry.”

He added: “We have seen a significant slowdown in house sales and purchases, which has led to a freeze in the market. This is the right decision, but it is important that we work together to ensure that the market can resume as soon as possible.”

The housing market has been hit by the lockdown, which has led to a sharp fall in house prices and a reduction in the number of properties coming on the market.

Harry and Meghan 'move to Los Angeles'

Prince Harry and his wife Meghan Markle have moved to Los Angeles.

The couple, who announced their decision to step down from their duties as senior members of the royal family last year, have been living in Canada for the past six months.

They have moved to a home in Hollywood, according to reports, and are said to be planning to spend the summer there.

The couple’s spokesman said: “They have decided to stay in North America and have also decided to make this a temporary arrangement.”

Call centres set up to stop crowding at hospitals

Health authorities set up a call centre in New Delhi yesterday to streamline the scene surrounding the city’s leading hospitals demanding immediately more than hundred thousand.Patients are facing difficulties in reaching hospitals due to the Indian Council of Medical Research’s (ICMR) suggestion calling for patients to be screened over the phone before sitting in line. The call centre was set up to avoid crowding outside Delhi’s leading hospitals, including AIIMS, Safdarjung, RML, GB Pant and Lok Nayak Jai Prakash. The call centre is being operated from 9am to 9pm daily.

Alarma as Maharashtra coronavirus cases jump

Covid-19 cases in Maharashtra jumped to 4,347 on Friday after 24 hours to stand at 1,33,759 as a warranted government worried to the army to help. Health Minister Dilip Walse Patil on Thursday announced the government would circulate live aid to the army to help patients in need of assistance. The state health authorities, the government’s main concern, are now being provided to medical aid to any patient who needs it.

Further details are being collated by state officials. The state is currently witnessing a surge in cases as patients rush to hospitals seeking treatment. The state government has so far confirmed 13,929 deaths, with 1,091 new cases reported on Thursday.

Unseasonal rains add to Gujarat farmers’ woes

The government in Gujarat on Thursday ordered over 20 dams to open in the north after heavy rains resulted in floods. The chief minister of the state, Jayant Patil, has ordered all the major dams in the region to be opened to release excess water. The state is currently facing a severe drought with many areas suffering from water scarcity. The government has urged farmers to prepare for the upcoming monsoon season.

Brazil cuts back environmental enforcement amid virus

Brazil has cut back on air strikes to fight environmental deforestation, an official from the nation’s environmental agency has said, despite concerns that re- strictions on the fumigation of land incited protests.

A radio station said the environment ministry, which said air strikes are essential to prevent deforestation, had cut back on them in recent weeks.

Brazil’s environment minister, Ricardo Salles, said the cuts were due to logistical and administrative challenges.

Salles said the air strikes were necessary to fight deforestation and that the government was committed to reducing deforestation.

In Haiti, virus crisis leaves cancer patients in limbo

The virus crisis in Haiti has left some cancer patients without access to treatment, according to a doctor who has worked in the country for 15 years.

Dr. José Luis García said the situation has worsened due to the lack of medical supplies and personnel, which has forced many patients to delay their treatments.

García said that while some patients have been able to receive treatment, others are struggling to access it, and that the situation is dire.

A baby cub born in a Mexican zoo has brought hope to the institution, which has been closed due to the virus crisis.

The cub, born on March 14 to parents brought to Mexico from the island of Cuba, is the first of its kind to be born in the zoo in years.

The zoo’s director said the cub is already receiving positive attention from the public, and that it is a symbol of hope for the institution during these difficult times.
Pakistanis' biggest charity, the Edhi Foundation, is providing free services for the poor, is trying to adapt to the new normal by providing rubber boots to the battle against the virus as it can't get rubber boots in the battle against floods which had wreaked much harm because I don't have enough rubber boots in the battle against floods which had wreaked much harm, " he said during a speech.

Pakistani leader Imran Khan said today that his government's leadership is firmly committed to supporting Pakistan.

"We are providing 12,000 rupees to 10 million Pakistanis," he said.

Khan then addressed the matter of putting the customers in chalk circles.

"They did not do it to us. So we asked them how to control social distancing and keep a safe distance amongst the people," he explained.

Khan said he had asked all the customers to follow the 0.5-meter distance from front to back of their shoes, adding that he returns to sell medicines to those who do not follow the rule. "There is no need to police them otherwise either," he added, adding that people should not get scared in India too, but in other parts of the district too, had begun chatting in front of his pharmacy.

"The distance is just less than feet so I don't have enough space to keep a safe distance amongst the people," he explained.

The Prime Minister's office disagreed and decided to provide 12,000 rupees to 10 million Pakistanis.

President Duterte remains hospitalised after test for coronavirus came back negative

Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte has been hospitalised for self-quarantine for the past three days after being exposed to some of the Philippines’ coronavirus patients, a source said yesterday. Former Health Minister Enrique Castle said: “The President is not feeling well, his doctors advised him to go into self-quarantine. He has been doing teleconference while in hospital.”

The Duterte administration has been under increasing pressure to reveal how officials have been exposed to the virus. It has been reported that the President and staff have been exposed to some of the Philippines’ coronavirus patients, which has led to self-quarantine for some cabinet members.

According to the Manila Times, the Philippines has received more than 100,000 personal protective equipment kits from China, Japan, and the United States. The country has also received more than 1,000 ventilators from various countries, but only 200 have been deployed so far. The Philippines has also received more than 100,000 testing kits from China, Japan, and the United States.

Europe’s Covid-19 plan revives union’s historic disputes

An EU summit to conceive an economic plan against the coronavirus impact instead unraveled the union’s deep and historic divisions, leaving the bloc’s leaders to wonder if they can ever agree on anything.

The block’s 27 leaders met for six hours on videoconference on Thursday while, with Europe’s economies deep in a recession and 27 members facing something like a crash, with restaurants closed, tourism dead and public transport faltering while children are stuck at home from schools.

The situation is especially tricky for Italy: a country saddled with a eurozone debt, a banking sector burned and where anti-EU sentiment is high.

Italy’s request is simple: to keep market speculators at bay, the bloc’s 27 leaders met for six hours by videoconference on Thursday, with Rome and Madrid pleading their partners to do divisions, with Spain and Italy hurt by Dutch insensitivity.

The lesson is clear: governments must seek to reverse the eurozone’s precarious situation – the coronavirus has said Antonio Tajani, the Italian commissioner for internal market and consumer protection.

“It is the world at war. The anxiety, the fear, the uncertainty, the impossibility of a return, the impossibility of a return to normalcy, the impossibility of a return to the normal obsession with consumerism, the impossibility of a return to the pursuit of wealth.

“All has fallen more than 20,000 and infected over 1,000,000. The ordinary worker is in the corner of a small private home and in desperate need of an economic support where it makes sense, to provide healthcare if necessary and to make sure to have access to normal necessities to continue to assure their homes. Unlike a conventional war, the Covid-19 pandemic is not a diversion of a war.

“COVID-19 is something new, it can be named a ‘corona virus, with Italy and Spain each counting more deaths than China, as an example

To slow the spread, Europe’s economic system has been put into something like a coma

To some, a complete ban on wildlife consumption could be necessary to address the question of whether China and Italy have both done enough.

“More than 5.3 million to 24.7 million lost jobs due to the Covid-19 pandemic,” the International Labour Organization forecasts.

Organisation forecasts anywhere from 600,000 to 2.25mn.

The United Kingdom’s prime minister and his government, which is frequently accused of holding out for a computational lockdown before its “Minsky moment” – when investors start panic selling, shock becomes a crash, and a ‘bubbly’ goes.

Active monetary and fiscal policy is necessary, so is strong action to curtail suppression and price distortions.

During the first two months of 2020, the US Federal Reserve cut interest rates by 1.5 to 2.25 per cent, and total sales dropped 10.5%. In December 2019, they had been 6.9%, 7.8%, 8.7% and 9.8%, respectively.

If Morgan estimates that the median cash buffer is 10 days for small businesses, 30 days for retail stores, 37 days for small business, 37 days for tech services, and 47 days for most auto companies.

Coronavirus and the economy: What does it mean for you? thumbnail
The Qatar government’s decision to ban all forms of gatherings aimed at preventing the spread of the novel coronavirus (Covid-19) has been met with mixed reactions.

Critics have argued that such actions could potentially prolong the existing conditions, while proponents believe they are necessary to protect public health.

The ban has been enforced by the Supreme Committee for Planning and Consultation, and the Ministry of Endowments and Islamic Affairs has announced that all religious and cultural gatherings are prohibited, including the Corniche, public parks and beaches.

“I think this is, in some way, the final nail in the coffin of the Western liberal model of governance,” said Dr Parag Khanna, a leading author and analyst on global affairs, and it is changing “at a social, political, and cultural level, and it is changing as an community.”

Khanna, who launched a new book “The Fourth Phase of Human Civilization” last week, said the Western model of governance is no longer effective.

The book, which is the final instalment in the series that started with “The End of the Third Wave,” is about how the Western liberal model of governance is no longer effective and how we need a new model.

Khanna said that Asia has got it right and is making progress, while the West is still in the first phase of the process.
