Women playing key role in fighting Covid-19: minister

Qatar

The Minister of Public Health Dr Hanan Mohamed al-Kuwari highlighted the important role played by women leaders in the fight against Covid-19, noting that women constitute a high percentage of the workforce in the health sector.

"The meeting discussed the challenges posed by the novel coronavirus (Covid-19) outbreak, the important role played by women leaders, the global cooperation and solidarity to combat the pandemic, registering that women and girls are at the heart of the socioeconomic response that has emerged to meet the needs of persons who have been affected by the disease," she said in a statement.

"We will see how women will continue to play a strong role in the socio-economic response and in supporting policymakers in all countries," she added.

The minister also underlined that Qatar has adopted an effective approach characterised by least-developed countries.

"On Thursday, His Highness the Amir announced the World Simultaneous Vaccination Day 2021 and new pledge by Qatar to provide medical assistance to developing countries, especially those that are targeted at women specifically," she said in a statement.

The minister also noted that during the meeting, the committee sought steps to resolve complaints and accelerate the distribution of vaccines in different sectors across the country, as part of its work to implement the UN secretary-general’s call for global cooperation and solidarity to combat the pandemic.

The minister said in a statement: "We are keen to provide the extra support that women and girls need to meet the needs of persons who have been affected by the disease."

PHCC highlights Covid-19 testing facilities

The Primary Health Care Corporation (PHCC) has emphasized that it has allocated four health centers (Al Bidda, Al Nahrain, Al Khor, and Al Thaniyah) to carry out Covid-19 testing. These centers will be open from 8am to 8pm.

The centers have free- ford Al Bidda, Al Najada and Al Thaniyah, which operate on a 24-hour basis, charge QR 30, which was reduced from QR 180, seven days a week.

PHCC also confirmed the possibility of receiving samples for other primary health care centers. "In the case the result is positive, the patient will be referred to one of the four main health centers and will remain monitored for monitoring and follow-up to release the results."

Mall of Qatar defers rent payments for another month

"We are all partners during this pandemic, and we are confident that our united effort and patience will lead us all to a better tomorrow," Al Amiri said. "We look forward to the moment when we overcome these challenges and bring business as usual to Qatar."

Mall of Qatar, which has already deferred rent payments, has extended its support to tenants in the second half of July to around QR 20 million for 200 tenants. The company’s efforts to help tenants during the pandemic include deferring rent payments, offering flexible finance and leasing options, and providing support and assistance to tenants.

The company has already deferred rent payments to tenants in Qatar and the Middle East, including Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, and Kuwait. The company has also deferred rent payments to tenants in the UK, the US, and other countries.

The efforts were focused on providing tenants with the necessary support to help them during the pandemic.

"Our tenants are our partners and we have always been committed to providing support and assistance to them. We are committed to supporting them during this challenging time," Al Amiri said.

Libya govt plans new advance as ceasefire proposed

Dozens hurt in clashes as protesters flood Beirut

Tens of thousands of Lebanese rallied in the capital yesterday to demonstrate against the government’s plans to annex part of the occupied West Bank. Demonstrators waved Israeli and Palestinian flags, and held placards against the US president’s plan to annex Jewish settlements and other strategic points of strategic value to Israel, while many others waved pictures of Palestinian martyr-homeland hero Yasser Arafat. The plan also envisions the transfer of Israeli and Palestinian welfare to the Palestinian Authority, in what some of the protesters referred to as “a green light to annex Jewish settlements and conflict points between Palestinians and Israelis.” The Palestinians have rejected the plan’s implementation.

Israelis rally against annexation plan on axes of West Bank

Thousands of Israelis rallied in Tel Aviv yesterday against the government’s plan to annex parts of the occupied West Bank. Demonstrators waved Israeli flags and chanted slogans against the US president’s plan to annex Jewish settlements and other strategic points in the West Bank. As part of a recent agreement, the Israeli government has been preparing for the annexation of the West Bank, including areas designated as “Area C” by the International Court of Justice. The annexation plan is being opposed by Palestinian leaders and international organizations, who view it as a violation of international law and a threat to the prospects of a two-state solution. The plan has been met with strong criticism from the United Nations, the European Union, and the Palestinian Authority.

The health ministry added that the new infections came from different parts of the country. The statement noted that the number of patients discharged from hospitals reached 24,600, leaving 884 cases in isolation centers and 14 cases in hospitals. The total number of cases registered in the country is 25,484, according to the Ministry, while the number of deaths has reached 10.

26 killed, village torched in central Mali attack

Twenty-six people were killed and a village burned during a clash in central Mali, officials said on Monday. According to the mayor of a town in the region, the attack was carried out by members of an armed group that has been active in the area for several years. The Mayor of the town, identified as Tabital Pulaaku, said the attack was carried out by a group of armed men who arrived in the village on foot, targeting the local medical clinic. The group then set fire to the clinic, killing several patients and injuring others. The attack is the latest in a series of violent incidents that have plagued the region in recent years, with armed groups frequently targeting civilians and security forces.

Thousands took to the streets across Australia yesterday, as did hundreds of thousands in cities worldwide to support US protests against police brutality, after a white police officer was filmed apportioning the death of George Floyd in Minneapolis. The global civil rights protests have drawn center stage after a police officer was seen kneeling on the neck of a black man for nearly nine minutes as fellow officers stood by.

The protests escalated into sporadic violence. In Sydney, police estimated 200,000 people posted a peaceful protest, wearing masks and holding “Black Lives Matter” placards, while 2,500 events calling “Whose lives matter? Black lives matter.” In Melbourne, hundreds, Adelaide and other Australian cities. In Tokyo, marchers protested against racism. The city has seen more than 200,000 people march. In Japan, protests are expected around police brutality, while demonstrations were expected around the world. Politicians adopted the slogans “I want to show that there’s no room for racism in Japan now,” “We are here to fight for justice,” and “We will not accept police brutality.” The crowd chanted “You’re not angry, you’re not being listened to.”

The legislation has reignited tensions between Washington and Beijing, and led the European Union to call for the recall of its ambassador to Beijing. The US has not commented, but it has been a source of friction between the two. The European Commission has not commented, but it has been a source of friction between the two sides.

As protests raged worldwide, France backed “one country, two systems,” the official said. The Chinese Ministry of Culture and Tourism warned of “an alarming increase in violence against Chinese tourists.” China’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs said it had no basis in fact. “Australia is enjoying world-leading success in suppressing the spread of the COVID-19 and has been praised by the international community for its management of the pandemic,” it said.

In Seoul, dozens of South Korean anti-government protesters held a rally calling for the resignations of President Moon Jae-in and Prime Minister Moon Jae-in, who was attacked today. South Korea is becoming a “viral photo protest.”

Government moves to reduce protection for separated children in care system and criminals

By Mark Townsend

Three charities have documented a “tsunami of child trafficking” in the UK in the last two weeks, with evidence the government was “turning a blind eye” to the problem. Estimates suggest more than 200 children have been trafficked in the UK since December 4.

The charities, which are working with law enforcement agencies, have documented cases of children being trafficked and exploited across the UK. The evidence includes reports of children being trafficked to other countries, including Albania and Spain.

The government has previously said it is working with law enforcement agencies to tackle child trafficking. However, the latest report suggests the problem is getting worse, and the charities have called for urgent action.

The report also highlights the lack of support available for children who have been trafficked, including access to healthcare and education.

The charities have called for urgent action to stop the trade in children and to provide support for those who have been trafficked.

Cheers, jeers over Trump’s plan on troops in Germany

By Lorenzo Tondo

Trump has ordered the US military to withdraw more than 11,000 of its 35,000 troops from Germany, where about 57,000 American military personnel are stationed.

The move, first reported by Reuters, would reduce US forces in Europe by 9,500 per the National Security Adviser’s directive signed recently by President Donald Trump.

The second official said the US withdrawal decision had been made after discussions with German officials.

This official said there was "no particular or specific pressure at this time".

In the Netherlands, mink farms are 140 mink farms in the Netherlands that will be closed down. The mink are to be culled after coronavirus infections were found at those farms.

The second official said the US withdrawal decision had been made after discussions with German officials.

The move would reduce US troops from 35,000 in Germany to 25,000, from the 50,400 current levels.

The official, who did not want to be identified, said the move was due to the US military’s need to reduce its footprint in Europe.

US troops in Germany are stationed in an area that is a key symbol of the migration to Europe.

Coronavirus in pandemic will subside by Sept-end: experts

As lockdown 4.0 is in full swing, experts are predicting that the pandemic will subside by the end of September. According to this mathematical model called Rayleigh’s Model, it is based on Relative Basic Rate which means how many new cases are occurring per day and how many cases are going good. The model has different parameters.

Weekly Cured and Death Rate

The weekly cured and death rate of the virus has been calculated for the past 7 days. The cure rate is calculated by the number of recoveries divided by the total number of cases. This rate is known as the ROC (Rate of Cases) and it is showing that the first week of June is the peak of the pandemic.

Govt's top priority is to slow spread of virus: Umar

Planning Minister Asad Umar has rejected the people to take precautionary measures against the spread of the deadly coronavirus. The minister said that the government's first and foremost priority was to protect the citizens from the coronavirus. Umar said two of the most important components of this strategy are to strictly follow the government protocols adopted by medical community and to bring new patients to other hospitals. He said the people who are not adhering to these protocols are putting the entire world in danger.

The minister said that the basic aim of the government is to improve testing systems, and now new cases are expected to be reported, despite the implementation of SOPs. "We will regularly give instructions on what you need to do, and we will regularly give instructions on what you need to do," the prime minister said.

The prime minister said that the home isolation policy had rendered the Field Hospitals "a waste of money", as critical care facilities were being looked after in isolation centres set up in the private sector. The prime minister said that the government will continue to look for ways to provide additional resources to health facilities across Punjab.

As many asymptomatic patients are opting for home isolation, the government is trying to draw the attention of the people to follow the guidelines. The government is trying to ensure that all health facilities are lying empty, while there are more available beds in non-Covid facilities across Punjab.

Some health facilities had been designated as isolation wards in hospitals and other places, with all the available beds being occupied by Covid-19 patients, while in non-Covid facilities across Punjab, almost 2,500 beds are lying empty, and the government is working to ensure that all these beds are occupied by Covid-19 patients by recruiting medical professionals.

"We will give instructions every day. We will explain to the patients on what you need to do, what the hospital requests, and we will explain what the government requests," the prime minister said.

The prime minister said that he can't stop that. You can lock people in Sindh, but you can't lock people in Sindh, you can't put the country in another lockdown as the country can't afford to do so.

Govt rejects UN report on rising rights violations

By Catherine V Salcedo

President Rodrigo Duterte rejected the report of the UN Human Rights Council’s special rapporteur on the situation of human rights in the Philippines, Harry Roque Jr.

Roque said that while the government will ensure rights guarantied under the constitution, it will not be“incensed” by the “faulty conclusions” about the philippines.

The report, which Roque said was “prompted” by drug suspects who were killed during anti-narcotics operations, contained conclusions “unanimously rejected” by the government.

Roque said that while the government would not be“incensed” by the “faulty conclusions” about the Philippines, it would instead proceed with“extensive” efforts to“contain the spread of the virus.”

Roque cited the report’s“false conclusions” that the Philippine government is“not prepared” to handle the coronavirus disease.“We are not unprepared,” he said.

India battles new wave of crop-munching locusts

By Annya Ramnaray

F or a few weeks in the first week of May, farmers in Haryana and the Indian capital New Delhi were in panic mode. After a bout of late monsoon rains and plenty of sunshine, locust swarms were seen by residents of the northern state of Rajasthan, whichbordersto Haryana. The presence of locusts that are not native to India was confirmed by an international team of scientists, who noted that the swarms were migrating north. In response, the government of Haryana issued a weather advisory to farmers, warning them to be on the lookout for locusts. The advisory also suggested that farmers should plant crops that are resistant to locusts, such as soybeans and millets.

India’s state-run Locust Warning Organisation (LWO) reported on May 4 that there were about 20 million locusts in the state. The agency also warned that the locusts could cause damage to crops and infrastructure, including roads and bridges. It advised farmers to be prepared to take action to prevent locusts from spreading.

In May, the Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) reported that the locust population in India had increased by 50% in the past month. The agency said that the locusts were moving north and west, and that they could cause damage to crops in other parts of India, such as Madhya Pradesh and Punjab.

A recent report by the International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD) said that a “locust tsunami” had swept across the Indian subcontinent in recent years, causing widespread damage to crops and infrastructure. The report said that the locusts were moving north and west, and that they could cause damage to crops in other parts of India, such as Madhya Pradesh and Punjab.

Meanwhile, the climate emergency has not gone away. The recent heatwave across southern India has caused widespread damage to crops, and the government has advised farmers to be prepared to take action to prevent locusts from spreading.

The Polish opposition’s last chance for change

By Evangelos Siarlis

The Polish opposition can no longer afford to be passive, almost irrelevant, on the last campaign swing of the Poland’s exceptional presidential election. The deepening economic impact of the pandemic, the political consequences of the “Great Reset” agenda, and the weakening of environmental protection are activities in the region that will have a lasting impact on the future of our societies and economies. This will be particularly evident in the upcoming parliamentary elections in the fall, which will be the last chance for the opposition to challenge the current political leadership and to bring about meaningful change.

The opposition needs to seize this opportunity and demonstrate its ability to lead and govern. The new parliament will play a crucial role in shaping the country’s future direction. The opposition must present a strong and coherent alternative vision, one that addresses the pressing needs of the people, including healthcare, education, and economic recovery. By doing so, it can gain the trust and support of the electorate and secure its victory in the upcoming elections.

To achieve this, the opposition must focus on three key areas:

1. Economic recovery: The economic impact of the pandemic has been severe, and the country needs a robust economic recovery plan that prioritizes the needs of the people. The opposition must present a comprehensive plan that addresses unemployment, poverty, and income inequality. It should also focus on the needs of the elderly, those with disabilities, and the vulnerable populations.

2. Environmental protection: The weakening of environmental protection is a grave concern. The opposition must present a strong and coherent plan that prioritizes the protection of the environment and the promotion of sustainable development. It should focus on the needs of the elderly, those with disabilities, and the vulnerable populations.

3. Political integrity: The current political leadership has been criticized for its lack of integrity and transparency. The opposition must present a strong and coherent plan that prioritizes political integrity and transparency. It should focus on the needs of the elderly, those with disabilities, and the vulnerable populations.

In conclusion, the opposition must seize this opportunity and demonstrate its ability to lead and govern. The new parliament will play a crucial role in shaping the country’s future direction. By doing so, it can gain the trust and support of the electorate and secure its victory in the upcoming elections.
