Over 100,000 Covid booster vaccines administered in Qatar

The Ministry of Public Health (MoPH) has announced that more than 100,000 Covid-19 booster vaccines have been administered in the country. A total of 105,792 Covid-19 vaccine booster doses have been given to the country till date, the MoPH said yesterday. The ministry informed that 4,979,699 Covid-19 vaccine doses have been administered since the start of the National Covid-19 Vaccination Programme, with 8,222 doses given in the past 24 hours. With this, 85.3% of the total population are now fully vaccinated with two doses. Anyone who had their second Covid-19 vaccine dose more than six months ago is eligible for the booster dose. "Clinical evidence shows that the protective immunity from the first two vaccine doses begins to decline after six months," the MoPH said in a post on social media. "Booster vaccines increase immunity and provide long-term protection."

The Primary Health Care Corporation (PHCC) is directly contacting eligible people to fix an appointment for their Covid-19 booster vaccine. "If you are eligible and have not yet been contacted, call the PHCC hotline on 40277077," the MoPH added. Meanwhile, the MoPH yesterday reported 157 new confirmed cases of Covid-19 among the community and 23 among travellers. It also recorded 125 recoveries from the virus during the past 24 hours, bringing the total number of recoveries in Qatar to 240,971, Qatar News Agency said.

The fourth phase of the gradual lifting of precautionary restrictions began on October 3 and is part of a four-stage plan to gradually lift the precautionary restrictions imposed in Qatar due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the MoPH said in a statement. It is important during the current period that all members of society continue to cooperate in controlling the virus by following these precautionary measures: adherence to physical distancing; avoiding close contact with others, crowded places and confining closed spaces where people congregate; wearing a face mask; and washing hands regularly," the statement advised. "People should take the Covid-19 vaccine at the earliest opportunity when their turn comes."

Anyone suffering from Covid-19 symptoms should contact the 16000 helpline immediately. "This is important as the earlier the disease is detected, the easier it will be to receive the right treatment and recover from it," the statement added. The MoPH website contains regular updates and new information.

Nissan marks Patrol’s 70th anniversary with #PatrolLegends

As part of ongoing celebrations around the 70th anniversary of the iconic Nissan Patrol, Nissan has launched a multi-platform initiative called ‘Patrol Legends’ that helps build the SUV’s rich legend.

Titled ‘Patrol Legend’, the platform spotlights stories from around the region and forms part of a global initiative underlining the role of those who have sat behind the wheel of the Nissan Patrol to contribute to the region’s social fabric. In celebration of the Patrol’s legacy and reputation over decades, a cross-border competition titled ‘Patrol Legends’, the platform spotlights stories from around the region and forms part of a global initiative underlining the role of those who have sat behind the wheel of the Patrol to contribute to the region’s social fabric.

The platform also extends the celebration to all across the Middle East by crowdsourcing content from Patrol drivers from around the region, sharing their stories, photos, and videos that make the Patrol a memorable moment for them.

Only 4% of elderly patients in Qatar aware of palliative care: WISH study

A recent study commissioned by the Ministry of Public Health and Social Development and conducted by Qatar University found that only 4% of elderly patients in Qatar are aware of palliative care, which is defined as care for people who are terminally ill with a limited life expectancy.

The study, which involved 450 patients aged 65 and over, found that many patients lacked information about palliative care, which is a type of care that focuses on improving quality of life and minimizing suffering for people with serious illnesses.

The findings suggest that there is a need for improved education and awareness campaigns to inform patients and their families about the benefits of palliative care.

The study also found that many patients were hesitant to discuss palliative care with their doctors, with some patients expressing concerns about the associated costs.

The results of the study were presented at a conference in Doha, where experts in palliative care discussed the challenges and opportunities of providing care for elderly patients.

HMC Medical Imaging Services starts call centre for appointments

The Hamad Medical Corporation (HMC) has launched a new call centre for patients to book appointments for various clinical imaging services, including CT scans, MRIs, and ultrasound.

The call centre, which is available from 9am to 10pm daily, will provide patients with a convenient and efficient way to schedule appointments for their imaging procedures.

Dr. Khaled al-Marri, assistant minister of Public Health, explained that the call centre will enhance patient experience and streamline the process of booking appointments for imaging services.

The call centre is available by calling 999 or by visiting the HMC website.

HMC has also introduced a new SMS reminder service for patients who have made appointments.

The SMS service will send a reminder two days before the appointment, allowing patients to cancel or reschedule if necessary.

HMC has also launched a new call centre for patients who require support, which is available from 9am to 10pm daily.

The stand-alone call centre will provide support for patients who are experiencing difficulty in scheduling appointments or have other concerns.

The call centre will be staffed by trained staff who will provide patients with assistance and answer their questions.

Patients can also use the call centre to cancel or reschedule their appointments.

Omircon reminder for global economy: Dig in for a longer war

The West’s wasted crisis

By Yiannis Varoufakis

The other day in the gloomy land of the panic-stricken, the ECB’s Summit of the Gods stumbled on its way. Truly, the European Union was forced to contemplate a final action. Then, it helped rescue Donald Trump from the White House. And global Greens played an ungrateful role.

For, the ECB in its folly has seen the trend of inflation rise from a “mild” category to a near-zero one, with the result that it has to change its monetary policy in a way that will lead to a further increase in inflation and interest rates. This is all that the ECB needs to do.

In its second-worst scenario, a large infection wave in the first quarter of 2022 could lead to a 1% to 2% quarterly increase in energy prices.

For sure, the new variant is shaving a clear rim of optimism that the world economy could be on a firmer footing. The imposition of travel restrictions will make consumer and corporate confidence, likely limiting activity in some places just as the Omicron variant emerges.

So, in a comment for the Financial Times, the ECB’s chief economist, Philip Lane, on Monday, played down the risk of the new variant and said that the ECB’s decision to keep interest rates at their current level was not a “false alarm,” with no significant impact on global inflation expectations.

But the out-of-the-blue emergence of Omicron gives the world economy another economic shock and a new reason to worry about the future of the world economy. The ECB’s decision to keep interest rates at their current level was not a “false alarm,” with no significant impact on global inflation expectations.

MoCI warns traders on activity that prejudices such values

The Ministry of Commerce and Industry (MoCI) has warned traders on any activity that prejudices Islamic values, customs, and traditions. The Ministry also called upon all authorities concerned to take the necessary measures to prevent any goods that violate basic consumer rights.

The MoCI also said it will not tolerate any negligence in terms of meeting obligations to consumers as stipulated in Consumer Protection law No. 2004. The MoCI will implement inspections and, if that will not deter local callers, going to court to draw down on violations.

All consumers are required to report any goods that violate the religious and cultural heritage of Qatar and to specify their locations so that the ministry’s inspectors can take the necessary measures to prevent any products bearing immoral connotations that violate the religious and cultural values of the community.

Any party that violates laws and regulations that are referred to the relevant authorities and organizations to apply and ensure that any actions that violate Islamic values, customs, and traditions are prohibited.

The MoCI also stated that the supplier bears full responsibility for any damage it causes to any consumer the fault of the supplier.

The MoCI also emphasized that the consumer shall be liable for any damage he or she may cause to the supplier or other materials with immoral connotations that would increase the strong relations between the two countries. The MoCI also thanked the US government for its support and efforts in the框架 of the MoCI’s strategies, to abide by the circulars issued by the Ministry, and to ensure that products provided in shop fronts that would violate the religious and cultural heritage of Qatar and the country, as stipulated by the law. MoCI also warned traders about displaying any goods that do not comply with Qatar’s laws and regulations.

The MoCI also called upon all authorities concerned to implement inspection campaigns to prevent the trade of products that violate the religious and cultural heritage of Qatar.

Minister of Commerce and Industry Dr. Mansour bin Tarram said that all stores and shopping malls operating in Qatar must ensure that products provided are in accordance with the laws and regulations that govern them. The MoCI also stressed that all stores and shopping malls operating in Qatar must abide by the following:

1. Co-ordinating with immigration authorities to ensure that products provided are in accordance with the laws and regulations that govern them.
2. Ensuring that products provided are in accordance with the laws and regulations that govern them.
