QRCS provides support for Covid victims in Montenegro

Qatar Red Crescent Society (QRCS) has concluded a project to address the needs of the Covid-19-affected population in Montenegro and reduce its impact on the well-being of affected communities.

With a total 3.9mn funding from QRCS, the Red Cross of Montenegro was able to secure protective supplies for these communities, which were of great need in products such as masks, sanitizers, and other essential items.

In a press statement, QRCS said the Covid-19 situation in Montenegro is very challenging, with increasing numbers of confirmed and hospitalised persons. Among the main population at risk is the elderly and people with underlying medical conditions.

The Red Cross of Montenegro procured basic aid items, which were then distributed to the elderly and people with underlying conditions who were most vulnerable and needed these aid items. Special focus was put on the delivery of essential goods and medications.

It is worth noting that QRCS distributed aid items mainly through their own staff, and only in some areas where local organisations were not able to reach the areas, QRCS distributed aid items through local organisations.

"The main goal of our project was to reach those who were in need, especially the elderly and people with underlying conditions," said a QRCS official. "We are proud to have contributed to the fight against the pandemic in Montenegro."

The first Covid-19 outbreak was reported in Montenegro on 22 January 2020, and the country reported a total of 3,979 confirmed cases as of 15 July 2020.

Vodafone offers customers convenience of making transactions via AhliBank’s digital channels

Vodafone Qatar and AhliBank have performed a pilot where the customers of both companies can now use their mobile numbers to make transactions on the bank’s digital channels, allowing them to pay for recharge, online shopping, and other services.

With just a few clicks, Vodafone customers can now use the bank’s online and mobile banking application to do their tasks, such as top-up mobile and online shopping, and more.

Controlling the power, Qatar’s main challenge, and the need to be connected, has been the main driver behind the introduction of digital solutions.

"We are happy to offer our customers the best and most secure banking experience and allowing our customers to pay their bills on the go," said the Head of Innovation at AhliBank.

The bank’s officials explained that the move was part of the bank’s strategy to improve its services and to provide a better customer experience.

Qatar Charity delivers 35 blood glucose screening devices to Qatar Diabetes Association

Qatar Charity (QC) has donated 35 blood glucose screening devices to the Qatar Diabetes Association (QDA) to help raise awareness and identify early signs of diabetes.

"We are pleased to support QC in its efforts to raise awareness and identify early signs of diabetes. These devices will help us screen more people and detect the disease at an early stage," said QDA’s Head.

QC’s General Director, Eng. Ahmad bin Ali Al Harthy, said QC is happy to support the QDA in its activities and work towards a better future where diabetes is no longer a threat.

He added that QC supports projects and initiatives that help reduce the prevalence of diabetes and improve the quality of life of those affected.

Census to have a big impact on healthcare

The Qatar Census 2021, the first population census of the State of Qatar, is expected to have a significant impact on healthcare and social services in the country. The census will provide data on the population, including demography, education, and employment, which can be used by various stakeholders to inform policy decisions and allocate resources effectively.

"The census data will help us understand the population better and plan our services accordingly," said Dr. Ali Al Samad, the Director of the Qatar Census.

"We are excited to see how the data will be used to improve our services and enhance the quality of life for Qatar’s residents."

The census is scheduled to be conducted in 2021, and the results will be released in 2022. The census will cover all residents of Qatar, regardless of their nationality, and will provide a comprehensive picture of the population's composition and characteristics.
Kahrama records highest level of performance in ‘20

The distribution network of the Electricity and Water Corporation (Kahrama) achieved the highest level of performance in 2020 despite facing numerous challenges.

According to a Kahrama statement, the company maintained an average of 99.8% of substations, a record-high for the company.

The statement explained that this level of performance was achieved despite a record increase in electricity consumption and heavy rain and dust storms, which caused mechanical failure rates. Nevertheless, Kahrama’s performance was consistent with the precautionary measures that were taken during the year to mitigate the effects of the pandemic and extreme weather conditions.

Indonesia locates black box recorders from crashed plane

Bali airport, April 2

By broadly tracking wrenching attempts to find the black boxes of the crashed Lion Air 737 MAX 8 aircraft, Indonesia’s search-and-rescue teams have located the plane’s flight data recorder and cockpit voice recorder, authorities said.

The two flight data recorders (FDR) and the cockpit voice recorder (CVR) were found on March 29 in Surat Thani, Thailand, according to the Indonesian National Transportation Safety Committee (KNKT).

The KNKT is now working on downloading data from the black boxes, which could provide key information about the plane’s final flight.

The plane crashed into the sea off the island of Bali on March 29, killing all 189 people on board. The crash is the second fatal accident involving the 737 MAX 8 model in less than five months.

The KNKT said it had not yet determined the cause of the crash or whether the plane’s avionics had failed.

The black boxes were located after an extensive search involving aircraft, ships, and divers from the Indonesian military, the National Search and Rescue Agency (BASARNAS), and the KNKT.

The KNKT has been working with Thai authorities to retrieve the black boxes, which were located in the waters off the island of Surat Thani.

The KNKT said it was now working on retrieving the data from the black boxes, which could provide crucial information about the plane’s final flight.

The attack comes amid growing concerns about the safety of those living in the conflict zone.

Sudan voices frustrations as latest Nile dam talks stall

Sudan went on a national strike on Friday to protest a deal that could lead to the loss of vital hydroelectric power from the Nile.

The deal, worth $3.3 billion, would see Ethiopia build a new dam on the Blue Nile that could cut power to Sudan.

Sudanese officials said the deal had been reached without proper consultation with Sudan.

The deal is expected to be signed in Addis Ababa on Saturday, but Sudanese officials said they would continue to protest against the deal.

The deal is controversial because it would affect Sudan’s access to water and hydroelectric power from the Nile.

Sudan, Egypt, and Ethiopia have been negotiating for years over the construction of the dam and its impact on their countries.

The deal was also criticized by environmental groups, which said it would harm the natural environment and the local communities.

US Capitol siege a ‘wake-up call’, says top EU diplomat

German parliament boosts security

Securities have been stepped up at Germany’s Bundestag by House of parliament by House of representatives. But the German government’s actions have been praised by the opposition, which has cited the recent security breaches at the Capitol. This is the latest in a series of security measures that have been put in place since the January 6 attack on the Capitol. The measures include increased police presence, enhanced surveillance, and stricter controls on access to the building. The German government has also announced plans to increase funding for security measures in response to the attack.

Austrian minister quits over plagiarism allegations

Ms. Kneissl, who was a member of the Austrian People’s Party (OVP), resigned from her post as minister for digital and economic affairs in January. She had been accused of plagiarism in her doctoral thesis, which she defended in 2014. The plagiarism allegations sparked a political crisis in Austria, with the OVP and the Austrian Social Democrats (SPÖ) coming under pressure to resign. Ms. Kneissl had been a key figure in the government’s efforts to improve digital infrastructure and combat fake news.

Czechs protest coronavirus curbs

The protest, which was held in Prague on Saturday, was organized by the country’s opposition parties and was attended by thousands of demonstrators. The protesters were demanding the lifting of restrictions on public gatherings and the end of the lockdown measures. They were also calling for the resignation of the prime minister, who they accused of mishandling the pandemic response.

Krygyz nationalist wins presidential poll

The Krygyz presidential election was held on October 11, 2020, and the incumbent president, Sooronbay Jeenbekov, was widely expected to win. However, the election was marred by allegations of fraud and irregularities. The opposition candidate, Uulu Bakytov, accused the authorities of rigging the vote in favor of the incumbent. The EU observers also expressed concerns about the fairness of the election process.

Kazakh ruling party set to retain power

The ruling Akorda party is expected to win a significant majority in the upcoming parliamentary elections in Kazakhstan. The party has held power since 2011 and has been led by President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev, who took over from Nursultan Nazarbayev in 2019. The election is scheduled for November 29, 2020, and the opposition is calling for a boycott, accusing the government of rigging the vote.

Spain paralysed by snow, gets ready for cold snap

The Spanish government has declared a state of emergency in several regions, including Madrid, due to heavy snowfall. The capital city has been hit by a major snowstorm, with up to 10 centimeters of snow falling in some areas. The authorities have urged people to stay indoors and avoid unnecessary travel. The minister for the interior, Fernando Grande-Marlaska, has announced that the army will be deployed to help with the rescue operations.

Rollback of environments need resetting

Through US President Donald Trump has got only less than two years to go in his presidential term, the US government announced last Wednesday one of the most significant environmental rollbacks, which it had heralded in his election campaign, as part of the “America First” paradigm. The Trump administration had rolled back 64 environmental rules and regulations, and an additional 42 rollbacks were in progress. The latest step has come as a culmination of a systematic four-year-long strategy to roll back or do away with most of the nation’s vast unspooled wild places. The giant Atlantic walrus, White-naped crane, and Wayuu turkeys are among many important species, including polar bears, walruses, and wolves.

Pakistan's nuclear reactor Khan At Khan is undergoing its single 250MW pressurised heavy water reactor (PHWR) to produce electricity for the national grid. The reactor is now operational and has started generating electricity for the national grid. The reactor is scheduled to operate for 15 years and is expected to provide 250 MW of electricity to the national grid.

The government has announced that the reactor will be shut down for maintenance and refueling in June 2023. The reactor is located in the Sindh province and is operated by the Pakistan Atomic Energy Commission (PAEC). The reactor is the first of its kind in Pakistan and is expected to provide a significant boost to the country's electricity generation capacity.

The reactor is equipped with advanced safety systems and is designed to operate at a pressure of 75 MPa and a temperature of 328 °C. The reactor is also equipped with a backup system to ensure that it can continue to operate even in the event of a power outage or other emergencies.

The government has also announced that the reactor will be used to produce fuel for the country's nuclear power plants. The reactor is expected to produce about 500 tons of fuel annually.
