O [a Rehabilitation Institute] at Hamad Medical Corporation (HMC) has opened a new online ‘Covid-19 Wellness Clinic’ for the elderly. The institute’s online medical platform enables patients to access telemedical consultations and receive virtual ‘wellness passports’, which are designed to improve the health and safety of the elderly as they travel around the world. The wellness passport is a digital certificate that attest to the patient’s health and provides assurance to airlines and governments that the individual is fit to travel. The passport is based on the latest Covid-19 guidelines and is accessible through a digital platform that allows patients to book appointments with a team of specialists, including doctors and nurses, and receive a comprehensive health assessment.

Qatar Airways to try out IATA Travel Pass

Q [atar Airways is aiming to be the first airline in the Middle East to trial the Digital Travel Passport app. This initiative is part of a broader push by the aviation sector to develop post-pandemic travel solutions that ensure the safety and well-being of our passengers, and at the same time maintain the highest levels of operational efficiency and sustainability.

The travel app will allow passengers to demonstrate their compliance with health regulations and entry rules for their destination country. Qatar Airways is committed to ensuring that all passengers travelling with the airline are fully vaccinated and able to provide proof of their vaccination status. The airline is also working closely with governments and health authorities to ensure a seamless transition to a fully vaccinated travel environment.

The Digital Travel Passport app will be launched on a trial basis, and the airline is currently engaging with relevant stakeholders to ensure the smooth roll-out of the initiative.

Qatar Airways chief executive officer, Mr. Akbar Al Baker, said: “We are committed to providing a safe and healthy travel experience for our customers, and the Digital Travel Passport app will play a crucial role in this regard. We are committed to ensuring that our passengers have access to the latest information and guidelines, and that they are able to demonstrate their compliance with health regulations and entry rules for their destination country. The app will also enable us to streamline the travel process and reduce the administrative burden on our passengers and the authorities.

The Digital Travel Passport app will enable our passengers to easily and securely access their vaccination certificates, test results, and other relevant travel documents, and will be available for download on the Apple App Store and Google Play. The app will also allow passengers to securely store and share their vaccination records, test results, and other relevant travel documents, and will be available for download on the Apple App Store and Google Play.

We are confident that the Digital Travel Passport app will provide a safe and seamless travel experience for our passengers, and we look forward to rolling out this initiative in partnership with governments and health authorities across the world.”

Qatar has strong ‘potential to become eSports hub in the world’

By Jenny Aguilar

Qatar, with its state-of-the-art structures and technology, has the potential to become a premier hub in the world for eSports, a professional Virtuocity Centre manager Stefan Negru has said.

“The infrastructure, training facilities and the region’s talent pool are all in place,” Negru told Gulf Times.

“With this collaboration we want to show the local community that we can support the needs of bright, talented young students. The agreement with the Johns Hopkins Centre for Talented Youth is an example of this commitment.

“An international event – this is what we are aiming for. I cannot reveal the details of these plans at the moment, Stay tuned, we will be able to announce it in the near future,” Negru said.

“With this agreement we are increasing digital experiences for businesses and residents in Qatar through the potential of an array of interactive attractions that are up and down the community to work with others. I believe that events in the near future will be bigger and bigger, not only for us to host events, but for any game to be played in the region. As one of Leisure’s parks at DHFC (owned and operated by the Cultural Village Foundation) Virtuocity here in Doha, at Negru said.

“Ahmad al-Meghessib has said. The five-day festival features various educational and entertainment activities for both residents and the region, providing them with an interactive digital experience for businesses, entertainment and culture, said Negru.

He said that they have plans to organise major e-sports gaming tournaments in the near future, to accommodate all the interest and growth in the region.

“An international event – this is what we are aiming for. I cannot reveal the details of these plans at the moment.”

Qatar Foundation launches programme for gifted students

Qatar Foundation (QF) has launched a programme to identify and support talented students. The programme is part of a co-operation agreement with the Johns Hopkins Centre for Talented Youth (CTY).

As part of a co-operation agreement, the two organisations have agreed on the roll-out of the Johns Hopkins Centre for Talented Youth’s (CTY) Gifted Enrichment Programmes (GEP) in Qatar.

The GEP is an example of a programme that can serve these needs as it provides an immersive digital experience for businesses and entertainment and culture. It is an example of a programme that can influence and continuously improve education across the globe, QF stated.

Commenting on the festival, Negru echoed al-Meghessib.

“Whether I am training for my career or just for fun, I need the right environment to practice as it significantly improves my performance in major tournaments. The virtual event reviewed the progress of the virtual 2020 international Arabian Horse Festival, with the highlight of the festival being an international event. “An international event – this is what we are aiming for. I cannot reveal the details of these plans at the moment.”

The highlight of the festival was the ‘Title Show’ featuring more than 200 prized Arabian horses belonging to owners in the region and Europe with prize money that is among the highest for such an event at a total of QR13mn.

Vodafone named official telecom partner of Katara International Arabian Horse Festival

Vodafone has been announced as the official telecom partner of the first edition of the Katara International Arabian Horse Festival. The festival, supported by Vodafone Qatar, is part of the Qatar 2022 Master Plan.

Vodafone Qatar is the first telecom partner to support the festival. The company’s state-of-the-art network is increasing digital experiences for businesses and entertainment and culture, said Negru.

He said that they have plans to organise major e-sports gaming tournaments in the near future, to accommodate all the interest and growth in the region.

UNHCR, Eid Charity sign $2mn agreements to support displaced families in Yemen, Iraq

UNHCR, the UN Refugee Agency and Sheikh Eid Charity Foundation signed two new agreements worth $2mn to help families throughout Iraq, in line with protection efforts for displaced families in Yemen and Iraq.

The agreements aim to support UNHCR’s efforts to help families facing the displacement of families due to the fighting conditions, to improve access to and quality of services and to continue to provide services to displaced families in Iraq, in particular families of women, children and elderly children.

“We are grateful to Eid Charity Foundation for its ongoing support. UNHCR looks forward to working closely with the foundation and the Ministry of Interior to support the families in need,” said Engineer Hassan Al Khayyat, UNHCR’s deputy representative in Iraq.

The agreements are expected to benefit displaced families in the first quarter of 2021 through providing targeted assistance, including food, income generation and rent assistance, to internally displaced families in Yemen and Iraq.

The agreements cover support to UNHCR’s work to improve access to essential services for displaced families, to support families in achieving a dignified living standard, and to improve access to health care and education.

UNHCR’s work in Yemen continues to focus on providing humanitarian assistance, while the conflict in Yemen is ongoing.

The training programme contains a series of one-week workshops and training courses that aim to raise awareness and promote the benefit of human rights in Qatar and the Gulf region.

The training programme, which will continue during 2021, aims to advance the participants’ knowledge and understanding of human rights, as well as to strengthen their ability to promote and protect the rights of vulnerable groups in Qatar and the Gulf region.

The programme’s objectives include enhancing the skills and abilities of the participants and improving their understanding of human rights issues.

President of the Arab Institute for Human Rights, Abdul Khaleq bin Ismaeel, said the training programme is part of the deep and continuous mutual relationship with the NHRC in Qatar to further strengthen human rights and international human rights law and everything related to human rights protection mechanisms.
Its new leader, Hassan Diab, vowed to defend local farmers and the environment.

The Indian military, cultural diversity, social and economic developments were displayed during the 72nd Republic Day celebrations. The parade, which began at Rajpath and continued till the India Gate, showcased the nation’s strength, unity, and modernity.

The theme for this year’s Republic Day was “India@2022: Together Towards光明的未来.” The parade included a range of floats, cultural performances, and military displays. The parade was viewed by millions of people across the country and showcased India’s cultural diversity and military might.

The parade started with the traditional military contingents, followed by cultural performances from various parts of the country. The parade concluded with the display of the Indian Air Force’s aircraft, the Indian Army’s tank display, and the navy’s submarine display.

The parade was watched by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, other dignitaries, and millions of people who gathered along Rajpath to witness the grand spectacle.

Call for peaceful protest after farmer rally clashes

According to a senior police officer, the Delhi Police had registered an FIR against several people for the violence that took place during the farmers’ parade. The FIR was registered under sections 143, 147, and 307 of the Indian Penal Code, which deal with promulgation of false rumor, rioting, and causing injury, respectively.

Police had been on high alert for the farmers’ parade, and several measures were taken to ensure the event progressed peacefully. However, some farmers turned violent, and clashes broke out between the farmers and the police.

The police had used batons and tear gas to control the situation, and several people were injured. The violence led to a temporary suspension of the parade, and the farmers were asked to disperse peacefully.

Violence was a well-planned conspiracy: BJP

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) alleged that the violence at the farmers’ parade was a well-planned conspiracy. According to BJP leaders, the police had been used as a pawn by the farmers to cause chaos and create a stir.

The BJP accused the Delhi Police of being complicit in the violence and said that the police had failed to control the situation. The party also demanded an investigation into the matter.

Republic Day celebrations showcase economic progress

The Republic Day parade showcased India’s economic progress, with several floats highlighting the growth and development in various sectors. The floats displayed the progress in infrastructure, agriculture, and technology, reflecting India’s commitment to sustainable development.

The parade also highlighted India’s cultural diversity, with floats from various states showcasing their unique traditions and customs. The floats featured traditional dancing, music, and costumes, adding to the festive atmosphere.

Hyderabad police arrest serial killer

The police arrested a serial killer who had been terrorizing women in the city for years. The suspect, identified as Ravi, had been on the run for several months and had been linked to at least six murders.

The police had been tracking the suspect for weeks and had finally arrested him on January 31. Ravi was charged with six murders and is expected to face trial in court.

The arrest came as a relief to the women of the city, who had been living in fear for months. The police had received several complaints from women who had been threatened by the serial killer.

The police had been working tirelessly to track down the suspect and had used various techniques, including DNA analysis and surveillance, to identify him.

The arrest of the serial killer is a significant development in the city’s crimefighting efforts and serves as a reminder of the importance of law enforcement in protecting the safety of citizens.
Although some remain inclined to point the finger at the UK government's mistakes in tackling the Covid-19 pandemic, the explanation for its evolving approach is more complex. Although some remain inclined to point the finger at the government's response to the crisis, the explanation is more complex. It also builds important lessons for managing future crises.

U nlike Prime Minister Boris Johnson's recent warning that the UK government's approach to the Covid-19 lockdowns will no “pointed open issues. Despite the twin infections and the ongoing struggle of the country's Covid-19 vaccination programmes, should come as no surprise to anyone who has been following the unfolding drama of the virus. So, why didn’t Johnson’s government take action more decisively and earlier to try and stop the transmission of the disease? Because, like the rest of the world, the UK government was and is still locked in a battle with severe limitations, discernable weaknesses and dynamic changes to its response to the pandemic. The government’s approach to the Covid-19 crisis has been largelywrongly perceived as bureaucratic, slow, and subject to many powerful political factors. The approach has been characterized by the government’s failure to respond quickly enough to the crisis and to take early steps to control the spread of the disease. This has resulted in a significant increase in the number of deaths and hospitalizations.

England’s lockdown lessons

By Mohamed S Al-Shinawi

The UK’s evolving response to the Covid-19 pandemic is following a pattern seen in several previous crises. The government, like many others, has repeatedly signalled that, despite the fall in infection rates achieved at a considerable cost during the first two lockdowns thus far, the government’s approach to the crisis has been largely wrong. Pakistan is one of the most vulnerable countries to climate change, report

Pakistan’s vulnerability to climate change is highlighted in a recent report which predicts that the country will face significant challenges due to rising temperatures, increased frequency of extreme weather events, and sea-level rise. The report, released by the Pakistan Council for Science and Technology (PCST) and the National Institute of Oceanography and Marine Science (NIOMS), warns that Pakistan’s coastal areas, particularly along the Arabian Sea and the Gulf of Oman, are at high risk of flooding and erosion. The report also highlights the need for urgent action to mitigate the impacts of climate change and adapt to the new realities.

The report notes that Pakistan is one of the countries most vulnerable to climate change, with an estimated 18 million people living in areas at risk of flooding. It calls for the government to increase investment in climate change adaptation and mitigation efforts, and to develop a comprehensive national climate action plan. The report also recommends that Pakistan join international efforts to limit greenhouse gas emissions and contribute to global efforts to tackle climate change.

The report is based on a comprehensive assessment of climate change impacts and adaptation options in Pakistan, and is supported by a wide range of experts from academia, government, and civil society. It highlights the need for urgent action to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, increase resilience to climate change impacts, and build a more sustainable future for Pakistan.

The report is particularly timely given the ongoing negotiations at the upcoming COP26 climate conference in Glasgow, where Pakistan and other vulnerable countries are expected to make significant contributions to global efforts to tackle climate change.

The report calls on the government to take bold action to address the challenges posed by climate change, including the development of a clear vision and strategies to mitigate and adapt to climate change impacts. It also recommends the establishment of a national climate change fund to support adaptation and mitigation efforts.

The report is available online and can be accessed through the Pakistan Council for Science and Technology (PCST) website.
Indian community celebrates 72nd Republic Day

By Joseph Varghese

The Indian community in Qatar celebrated the 72nd Republic Day of India with patriotic fervour at a special function held yesterday, adhering to the Covid-19 restrictions. Indian ambassador Dr Deepak Mittal hosted the Indian national anthem at the Indian embassy, which was followed by the national anthems. The envoy and the mission of the President of India, Ram Nath Kovind, were also remembered.

Several community leaders including officials of apex bodies under Indian embassy were present on the occasion. Only members of the mission and the staff were allowed to be present at the event as it was limited. Dr Mittal complimented the community members, for their efforts during the Covid-19 times.

The envoy and the mission reached out to the community members, thereby helping them access the medical and assistance including medical and financial aid.

Dr Mittal read out relevant parts of the address of the Indian president which began, “For all of us, 2021 is a year when we also paved and ponder over the core values that a country/constituent/constituent maintains and hold dear. Equality, and Fraternity – out- flanked the Constitution of Constitutions are sacred to all of us. Its abiding adherence is needed not only for those who are mandated to guard the people’s interests, but also for people of all ages and roles of a great teacher. It makes us stronger and more confident. With that confidence, India has taken giant strides in several sectors, among which the digital revolution stands out. It is a message. The event was followed by a cultural programme at the reception yesterday.

Dr Mittal said that 2021 has brought in a lot of developments. “We are proud of the successful and timely delivery of Covid-19 vaccines. India and for Indians in Qatar and the entire region, for Qatar, for India and for Indians in India in terms of vaccine, education, aviation, business, etc. The entire community celebrates and participates in Qatar’s successes, including the return of Asian Games to Qatar in 2026. “We are proud of the Indian community and the role played by them in the recent visa extensions and all other achievements in Qatar. We are thankful to the leadership of our community and our community organizations who have been instrumental in Qatar,” he added.

Indian ambassador Dr Deepak Mittal and his wife Dr Alpna Mittal are joined by Qatar’s Minister of Commerce and Industry HE Ali bin Ahmed al-Kuwari, Ministry of Foreign Affairs Protocol Department director ambassador Nihal Hamed Abdullah idleh, and Diplomatic Corps dean and Eritrean ambassador Ali Ibrahim Ahmed in cutting a ceremonial cake at the reception yesterday.
