HMC Tobacco Control Center warns of cancer through smoking

On the occasion of the World Cancer Awareness Day, which is observed on February 4 every year to raise awareness on cancer, Dr. Ahmad Mabli, "Cigarettes and tobacco smoke contain a number of harmful chemicals that cause cancer. Tobacco smoking is a major cause of many types of cancer and a main risk factor leading to other types of cancer. Tobacco smoking is also a factor leading to genetic disorders and even leukemia in babies, if Dr. Mabli warned. "This cancerous transformation occurs in the lungs, throat and mouth, nose, nose passages, skin, bladder, prostate, and cervical cancer. Tobacco smoking also is a factor leading to other types of cancer such as breast, stomach, pancreas, and colorectal cancers as well as leukemias." Individuals who are unable to quit smoking and smoking even after 30 years of age, still have a chance to quit because tobacco smoking cannot resist anymore and they begin to quit smoking early can reverse much of the harm caused by the cigarette habit and reduce the risks of cancer.

Dr. Ahmad Mabli said, "Speaking on the mechanism of how agents contained in tobacco cause cancer, Dr. Mabli said, "There are more than 60 known carcinogenic ingredients in tobacco smoke that can disrupt the genetic structure of body cells. These cells try hard to resist and prevent such disorders from happening but, eventually, the cells cannot resist anymore and they become cancerous. Moreover, tobacco smoking reduces immunity by promoting a vigorously growing mass of cells." In Jamal Alabadi, smoking never speaks, which is a popular saying, Alabadi said that quitting smoking early can reverse much of the damage caused by the cigarette habit and reduce the risks of cancer.

He added, "The public must be aware that tobacco smoking is a major cause of cancer and all citizens are urged to stop smoking. Tobacco smoking is not only responsible for cancer but also contributes to the development of lung disease and other chronic health problems. It can cause serious health problems that can lead to other diseases such as heart disease, stroke, and kidney disease. Tobacco smoking is also a factor leading to genetic disorders and even leukemia in babies. Therefore, if a woman is pregnant, she should not smoke. Smoking during pregnancy can lead to genetic disorders and even leukemia in babies, if Dr. Mabli warned. "This cancerous transformation occurs in the lungs, throat and mouth, nose, nose passages, skin, bladder, prostate, and cervical cancer. Tobacco smoking also is a factor leading to other types of cancer such as breast, stomach, pancreas, and colorectal cancers as well as leukemias." The Ministry of Public Health (MOPH) has issued an updated list of 48 health facilities that have been approved by the Health Ministry as centers for the medical social media channel. This list will be updated regularly on the ministry’s social media channels. The public is encouraged to use these facilities to obtain medical care and treatment. The list includes the following health facilities: Al Emadi Hospital, Turkam Hospital, Alnasir Specialist Hospital, Qatar University Hospital, Sheraton Clinic, Nova Healthcare, Al Sultan Medical Center, Allevia Center, and Qatar Petroleum-Al Salata. The list was published on the ministry's social media channel.

The government has called on the public to stop smoking and start a new life, emphasizing the importance of immediate cessation of the habit often regret it, especially when they find out that the damage done to the body cannot be reversed such a damage. Many of the smokers who sought help at MOPH’s Tobacco Control Center succeeded in kicking the bad habit. With the help of first-class care and advanced medications they managed to quit smoking and start anew with a new tobacco-free life, thus regaining themselves and those living around them the health and serious complications of tobacco smoke.

Mohammed bin Abdulrahman Al-Mahmoud, head of the Ministry of Public Health (MOPH) reported yesterday, 408 new confirmed cases of coronavirus (COVID-19) during the last 24 hours, which bring the community and 20 from transfers returning from tourists who are quarantined. The MOPH also recorded 21 recoveries from the virus within the last 24 hours, bringing the total number of cases recovered in the country to 21,061. All new cases have been introduced to isolation and are receiving necessary healthcare.

Due to the measures put in place by the Ministry of Public Health and the Department of Health and Preventive Medicine in force in Qatar, the community and prevention measures are imposed in Qatar to contain the spread of the virus since its peak in July. However, over the past month Qatar has partially lifted the restrictions and obviously opened the borders. The MOPH has a gradual and consistent increase in the number of new daily infections. Additionally, and of great concern, is the latest wave of cases which has increased since October of last year due to the spread of COVID-19. The data over the next few days will tell more, but these increases appear to be the early sign of a potential second wave in Qatar. For this reason, it is allowed to pass the preventive measures, it is told to the public and more comprehensive procedures are being implemented. It is not the first time that the number of cases has increased as more people return from the Hajj, so the MOPH has requested people to continue to be patient and consistent in the preventive measures to avoid the more serious complications of the second wave. It is also called to continue to pay special attention to the importance of immediate cessation of the habit often regret it, especially when they find out that the damage done to the body cannot be reversed such a damage.

Millions killed in Yemen as coalition battle intensifies

Coalition intercepts four Houthis armed drones

The military coalition led by the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia has launched a new operation against Houthi rebels in Yemen, intercepting four drones with armed payloads. The coalition on Monday announced the intercepts, saying it was a response to a recent Houthi attack on al-Shabab airbase in Amran, north-west of Sanaa.

The group said the attack was launched on Sunday night, using drones carrying what it described as “armoured vehicles and missiles.” The coalition said it had intercepted the drones before they reached their target.

The operation comes amid tensions between the two countries over the situation in Yemen. Saudi Arabia and the UAE have supported the government of President Abdrabbuh Mansour Hadi against the Houthi uprising in the country.

The Houthis, who control parts of Yemen’s north and have placed a的压力 on President Abdrabbuh Mansour Hadi’s government in Yemen’s south, have been fighting the Saudi-led coalition since March 2015. The Houthis seized Sanaa in September 2014 and have been fighting for control of the country’s capital, Yemen.

The coalition, led by the UAE and Saudi Arabia, has been fighting the Houthi rebels and their allies, including the Iran-backed Houthi rebels, in Yemen since March 2015. The Houthis have been fighting for control of Yemen’s capital, Sanaa.

The Houthis have launched a series of attacks on Saudi Arabia and the UAE, including a rocket attack on the UAE’s capital, Abu Dhabi, in January 2020. The Houthis have also launched a series of attacks on the Saudi-led coalition’s positions in Yemen.

Japanese PM Suga to visit South America to discuss economic cooperation

Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga will visit South America to discuss economic cooperation and strengthen bilateral relations, his official residence said on Monday. Suga will visit Brazil, Peru and Chile from October 25 to 28, the residence said.

Suga will meet with Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro and Peruvian President Pedro Castillo during his visit, the residence said. Suga will also hold talks with Chilean President Sebastian Pinera during his visit.

The visit, which comes after Suga’s visit to the United States in September, is expected to strengthen economic cooperation between Japan and South America. Japan and South America have been looking to strengthen economic cooperation in recent years.

Suga’s visit to South America will be his first official visit to the region as prime minister. Suga’s predecessor, Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, visited South America in November 2019.

Suga is expected to discuss economic cooperation with the three countries during his visit. Japan and South America have been looking to strengthen economic cooperation in recent years, with the two countries agreeing to work together on issues such as infrastructure development and renewable energy.

Suga is also expected to discuss the issue of the “One Belt, One Road” initiative, China’s Belt and Road Initiative, during his visit. Former US secretary of state, George Shultz, dies

George Shultz, Ronald Reagan’s political secretary, was a key architect of the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START) signed in 1991, which led to a new era of arms control. He was also one of the most influential policymakers of his time, during and after the Cold War.

Shultz was known for his work as secretary of state under three presidents: Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, and Ronald Reagan. He served in various capacities throughout his career, including as a diplomat, professor, and author.

Shultz’s contributions to US foreign policy are widely recognized, and he leaves behind a legacy of service to his country.

California governor faces backlash over Covid response

Governor Newsom, has found himself in an escalating conflict with the larger cities, the Chicago Teachers Union (CTU), and even his own administration. Newsom’s handling of the pandemic has been criticized not only for its inefficiency but also for its economic impact on the state, which will be a minority: 28,000

Cuba opens up private sector in economic reform

Cuba has announced that it will allow private businesses to operate in a major reform of the country’s economy. The move is intended to boost economic activity and stimulate growth, according to the government.

The new policy includes measures to allow private businesses to operate in a wider range of sectors, including construction, tourism, and retail.

Mexico faces headwinds as US restrictions remain

Mexico has been facing challenges as US restrictions on essential travel continue. The government has announced that it is working to ease some of the restrictions, but progress has been slow.

A new wave of infections has emerged in the country, and the government is under pressure to act quickly to contain the spread of the virus.

Big chill

Four skiers killed, four rescued in Utah avalanche

Four skiers have been killed and four others were rescued near Salt Lake City, in the most serious avalanche in the US in several years, authorities said. Two groups of skiers, one of two and the other of three, were in Millcreek Canyon, just out of Salt Lake city when the avalanche occurred. The skiers were on their way up to the peak of the mountain when the avalanche started.

One of the skiers who survived, a doctor, managed to rescue some of the survivors and send them for medical attention. The remaining survivors were airlifted to hospitals.

California governor faces backlash over Covid response

Governor Gavin Newsom, who has been criticized for his handling of the pandemic, is facing a new challenge from the CTU, which has called for his resignation. The union has been critical of Newsom’s decision to lift regional stay-at-home orders, and has called for the governor to take more action to protect the health of teachers and students.

Newsom has faced growing pressure to act more decisively in the face of the pandemic, and the CTU’s move is likely to add to the pressure on him.

Introducing the world’s largest radio telescope

If astronomers and amateur sky gazers were saddened by the collapse of the Arecibo telescope in Puerto Rico, which was one of the most important tools for making astronomical observations, there is something major to cheer about in December 2020.

The SKA telescope, comprising a vast formation of radio antennae, will be located in remote, uninhabited locations in South Africa’s Karoo Desert, and in the Murchison region of Western Australia. The operation, maintenance, construction and construction will be overseen by the SKA organization, based in Sydney.

The expectation is that invitations to tender will go out globally in the coming years. Invitations to tender for five phases of the project are anticipated towards the end of the year.

The SKA will be an array of 131,000 radio antennae, or “skys,” as well as a pencil beam, which looks like a little traditional TV aerial. The aim is to construct an effective collecting area measuring hundreds of thousands of square meters. The system will operate across a frequency range from roughly 50 megahertz to, ultimately, 350 gigahertz. In wavelength terms, this is the continuum to metres range. With the engineered sensitivity, this should enable the telescopes to detect very far away sources from cosmic sources billions of light-years from Earth, including those signals emitted in the first few hundred million years after the Big Bang when the first galaxies and stars started forming.

The array’s resolution and sensitivity, allowed to stellar computing support, will enable astronomers to address some of the most fundamental questions in astrophysics today — including the beginning of the universe, how and when the first stars were born, the lifecycle of a galaxy, and the possibility of discovering technologically-advanced extraterrestrial civilizations in our galaxy and understanding where gravitational lenses play a role.

Significantly, the development of SKA will use the results of the European Southern Observatory’s major project called the Southern African Large Aperture Telescope (SALT), a collaboration between New Zealand and South Africa, whose敬请。
UK mulls online sales tax

By Richard Partington

The online sales tax is being backed by government officials as a way to boost high street retail despite coronavirus restrictions.

The first wave of shops are disappearing from high streets as rapidly growing online sales have continued to increase in the wake of government restrictions on the operation of businesses and the use of public transport.

With many shops forced to close due to coronavirus restrictions and as shoppers stay at home, the British economy is being hit hard by the pandemic. The government has announced a package of support measures to help businesses, including the BritishRetail Confederation (BRC).

An online sales tax is being weighed up in a post-pandemic world, officials said.

We support the launch of an online sales tax, said the BRC.

An online sales tax may be helpful in a post-pandemic world, said the BRC.

The Treasury is considering introducing an online sales tax to help boost high street retail.

Dozens of votes were taken down on Wednesday, amid plans to bring in a sales tax, which would involve a new levy on Internet shopping, as the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) restrictions hit high street retail.

Ashghal plays role in FIFA Club World Cup success

Ashghal, the Public Works Authority, has contributed much to the successful hosting of the ongoing FIFA Club World Cup Qatar 2023 by setting up roads along with cycle and pedestrian paths to stations, linking them with metro and pedestrian paths to stadiums and improving the basic infrastructure.

The area hosting the FIFA Club World Cup will also witness the development and completion of several road, pedestrian, cycle path and stormwater drainage networks.

Ashghal has constructed a pedestrian path along Umm Al-Meem road from Al Rayyan station and parking lots for public transport.

Ashghal has also developed a network of local roads that connect with Al Rayyan Stadium and parking lots for public transport.

Ashghal has improved the Nuaija junction, popularly known as the Middle Intersection, where traffic signals are improved, allowing free flow of traffic from the Airport Road intersection towards Al-Shahal Road to collect and discharge flows to Pumping Station 70 at Al-Shab and Lusail.

Ashghal has also provided dedicated parking slots for "Fahd and Abd" car that connects Al-Bidda Station with Al-Rayyan Station.

Ashghal has built a network of highways with low traffic flow in order to ensure access to Al Rayyan City station while ensuring better connectivity.
