Qatargas LNG cargo for India

Qatargas LNG and SCF have been major contributors of LNG cargoes to India since Qatargas given its geographic location and the successful transportation of LNG unloaded from ship to the terminal is central to the transport of LNG cargoes. As such, all LNG unloaded from ship to the terminal is fit for the short term / spot market.

The terminal has two above ground storage tanks, with a capacity of 180,000 cubic metres. The terminal is dedicated for LNG import, storage, regasification and dispatching, with the terminal's pipeline infrastructure and management of the PHCC, in cooperation with the Ministry of Public Health, Hamad Medical Corporation, volunteers from Qatar Red Crescent Society and the administration of Qatar National Convention Centre.

The QNCC vaccination center opened under the supervision of the Ministry of Public Health and Quarantine (PHCC) by appointment only. It also observed that failure to attend one’s scheduled appointment adversely affects the service.

Please ensure you arrive at your designated appointment time to avoid overcrowding and long waiting times. All attendees are requested to share the PHCC vaccination centre link as soon as your phlebotomy results (blood test) have been confirmed. The advisory said, “Failure to attend scheduled appointment adversely affects service. Failure to attend your appointment please ensure you provide your valid QID and invite SMS as well as your Elithna (remote health card) invitation SMS as your invitation SMS as your valid invitation SMS is specific to PHCC and not the PHCC invitation SMS.”

Alfardan Exchange Announces Membership into the Union of Arab Banks (UAB)

Nationally Distinguished Organization Becomes the First Exchange House in Qatar to Join the UAB in Time with Celebrating 50 Years of Achievements

Alfardan Exchange announced its membership into the Union of Arab Banks (UAB), becoming the first exchange house in Qatar to join the regional organization which exists to unite banks and financial institutions by acting as a liaison.

The Union of Arab Banks seeks to support ties and strengthen cooperation, develop banking and financial work in Arab countries and optimise the role that Arab banks and financial institutions play in the economic and societal development of Arab countries.

Partnering with over 120 major institutions, the UAB’s mission perfectly aligns with the mission of Alfardan Exchange to strengthen relations with banks and financial institutions in the Arab world.

“This step comes in time with celebrating our 50th anniversary, when our constant quest to strengthen relations and open up opportunities and prospects for cooperation with prestigious financial institutions such as banks, exchange companies, etc. throughout the Arab world is paying off. This is reflected in our providing of more distinguished and innovative solutions and services to our customers, and it also strengthens our leadership in the sector in the State of Qatar,” Mr. Fahad Hussain Alfardan, President of Alfardan Exchange.

Where the Union of Arab Banks seeks to join together banks and financial institutions, Alfardan Exchange seeks to break the divide between large institutions and customers. For half a century, Alfardan Exchange has provided world-class exchange solutions and financial services to the people of Qatar, establishing themselves as the gold standard of exchange houses across the country.

Through innovative partnerships with banks and prestigious financial institutions from around the world, Alfardan Exchange provides the most direct access to financial services to their customers, regardless of location thanks to the exclusive digital services for their customers.

About Alfardan Exchange

Alfardan Exchange is Qatar’s premier exchange house and it was ranked as the top Exchange Houses in Qatar by Forbes and amongst the top 20 Exchange Houses in the Middle East, offering financial services with the best rates and competitive margins, in addition to faster and more efficient services. Launched in 1973, Alfardan Exchange was created to meet the demands of a country facing a rapid influx of expatriates and overseas businesses. Through the use of innovative partnerships and unconventional trading channels, Alfardan Exchange rapidly became the gold standard for effortless exchange and exceptional customer service. What sets Alfardan Exchange apart from conventional banks is the outstanding care and consideration for their customers, focusing on the success of the customer rather than the institution. This commitment to excellence and moral ethics has launched Alfardan Exchange to the top of their industry, gaining recognition both locally and internationally.

As part of the ‘Reflection’ exhibition
Qatar Charity organizes three-day panel discussions on the impact of volunteering

Qatar Charity (QC) organized three-day panel discussions on the impact of volunteering under the title ‘Wellness in Giving’, within the framework of the ‘Reflection’ exhibition, in which QC participated, as a community partner, with some topics reflecting the concept of wellness from the aspect of giving, and provided many volunteers.

The exhibition, which was organized at Ali Bin Ali Mall in Al Rayyan, included 974 volunteers. In the period from January 25 to February 28, 2021, it offered visitors an interactive experience on the concept of comprehensive wellness, which is a harmony of the health of body, soul, mind, and heart.

Panelist on Day One
On the first day, two sessions were held by Qatar Charity and moderated by Ahmed Al-Shahab, a social media influencer. These heads of the sector at Qatar Charity, participated in the first session.

Platform of Volunteers
Mr. Faisal Al-Mana, Assistant CEO for the Programmes and Community Development Sector, Qatar Charity, said, Qatar Charity promotes the culture of volunteering and contributes to society development by enhancing the capabilities of volunteers through training and volunteering opportunities. He added that Qatar Charity supports youth initiative to contribute to achieving the Qatar National Vision 2030. He noted that Qatar Charity has a platform that has thousands of volunteers who participate in various programs and activities to provide service to the community.

With regard to Qatar Charity’s cooperation with various bodies in the country. Al-Shahab said that Qatar Charity is always keen to coordinate directly with partners and cooperating parties to implement projects and programs. Al-Pahlawan, mentioned the Programmes and Community Development Sector of Qatar Charity enjoys support from families with limited income, who need help, through the history of volunteering, which dates back to 100 years. He also termed a humanitarian worker as a “wage-earner” working for the needy and the weak, and this humanitarian job is associated with the values of the society. Al-Pahlawan added that the voluntary work practiced by individuals within the framework of the moves, it is a personal, professional and social field.

Al-Fahad also noted the wonderful role played by the volunteers, including the disabled and non-disabled volunteers, in combating the coronavirus pandemic, indicating that Qatar Charity train volunteers to enable them to perform their voluntary activities correctly and properly, so the role of the volunteer has become important and complementary to the roles of private and public sectors at the present time.

‘Safaat AlKhair’
Al-Fahad also launched his trip to Bahrain, as part of the ‘Safaat AlKhair’ of Qatari Community, where he met the daily sufferings of the poor and needy, in addition to his voluntary activities in Qatar during the coronavirus pandemic.

Mr. Nasir Al-Ahmad Al Hammadi, Assistant CEO for the International Operations and Programmes Sector, Qatar Charity, described voluntary work as a ‘safety net’ for a large number of society in Qatar, whether from the society itself, or from the society.

‘Refugee Crisis’
Al-Fahad also noted that Qatar Charity organizes activities among volunteers to enable them to understand the culture of the family and the methods of addressing their needs, including QC’s considerations for the safety of its volunteers.

Al-Fahad also said that QC’s Centre for Humanitarianism is always present among volunteer to enable them to understand the culture of the family and the methods of addressing their needs, including QC’s considerations for the safety of its volunteers.

Mr. Muhannad Al-Mahmood, Assistant CEO for the Governance Sector, Qatar Charity, has emphasized the importance of voluntary action, as said that people need this work to be involved in it for at least 3,500 hours, teaching on the history of volunteering, which dates back to 100 years. He also termed a humanitarian worker as a “wage-earner” working for the needy and the weak, and this humanitarian job is associated with the values of the society. Al-Pahlawan added that the voluntary work practiced by individuals within the framework of the moves, it is a personal, professional and social field.

These sites, along with other cultural institutions, are key to fostering a sense of cultural pride and identity.

In 2022, Qatar hosted the Islamic World Event, which brought together leaders, scholars, and representatives from around the world to celebrate the Islamic culture and heritage. The event focused on promoting cultural exchange, understanding, and cooperation between different nations.

The event aimed to foster a sense of unity and shared identity among Muslim communities worldwide. It highlighted the importance of preserving and promoting Islamic heritage, as well as the need for continued dialogue and cooperation to address common challenges.

The event was a significant milestone in Qatar’s efforts to promote Islamic culture and heritage. It underscored the nation’s commitment to fostering a culture of peace, understanding, and cooperation, and its role as a leader in the Islamic world.

In conclusion, the Islamic event by Doha is a testament to Qatar’s commitment to promoting Islamic culture and heritage, and fostering a sense of unity and shared identity among Muslim communities worldwide. The event serves as a valuable platform for dialogue and cooperation, and is a significant milestone in Qatar’s efforts to promote Islamic culture and heritage.

In the years following the event, Qatar continues to play a leading role in promoting Islamic culture and heritage, and fostering a sense of unity and shared identity among Muslim communities worldwide.
A 30-day joint campaign to remove abandoned vehicles within Doha municipality was launched yesterday. The exercise was carried out by the committees concerned with removing abandoned vehicles, the mechanical equipment department, and the general cleaning department within the municipality part of enforcing law no. 18 for 2017 in Doha city.

Doha Municipality’s General Control Section head Hamad Sultan al-Shahwani took part in the launch of the campaign along with Lt. Moham- med al-Jassim from the Internal Security Forces (Lekhwana), fairly from the Traffic Department, and municipality employees.

Hamad al-Shahwani pointed out that this campaign is longer than the usual duration for each initiative due to the high population density in the city and as a result of the Capital's high traffic congestion.

Around 250 abandoned vehicles have been spotted at various areas of Doha and work is going on to remove them in co-operation with the entities concerned," he explained.

The plan for this year with regard to abandoned vehicles is to carry out two additional campaigns in each municipality besides the scheduled number of campaigns, with the number of abandoned vehicles removed from the different municipalities across Qatar since the start of January this year is not limited.

The campaign yesterday started in the New Doha Area (Doha Al Jadeeda) due to the large number of abandoned vehicles spotted. The exercise will cover all areas of Doha city with the vehicles involved in this right.

Qur’anic Botanic Garden marks Qatar Environment Day

The Qur’anic Botanic Garden (QBG), part of Qatar Foundation and the first garden in the world to exhibit all plant species mentioned in the Holy Qur’an, Hadith, and Sunnah, celebrated Qatar Environment Day, held annually on February 21, with a wild plant restoration event at Rawdat al-Faras in Al-Shahaniya, in partnership with the Environmental Protection Reserve & Wildlife Department at the Ministry of Municipality and Environment (MME), which allocated Rawdat al-Faras to be established by the QBG with the close co-operation of the Qatar Boy Scouts and the Qatar Environmental Education Centre (QEEC).

The Y outh Affairs Department at the Ministry of Culture and Sports, and the Department of Conservation and Energy Efficiency – “Tarsheed” at the Qatar General Electricity & Water Corporation (Kahramaa) participated in the event.

Ministry of Culture and Sports, said: “This event is part of our solid belief in ensuring the identity of Qatari plants, as well as introducing local youth to their environment and the importance of sustainable development goals, preserving the identity of Qatar’s flora and fauna in their natural habitats, combating desertification and co-operating with various stakeholders in the country to support its commitment to preserving the nation’s environment, plants and fungal natural resources.

Qatar Boy Scouts and QEEC’s Talib Khalid al-Shahwani, director of the Department of Environment and Wildlife, said: “Protecting and rehabilitating endangered wild plants and plant wild trees in their desert habitats to reduce carbon emissions and limit desertification in Qatar," she added.

Fatma al-Misnad, president for Awareness and Social Development at the Qatar Boy Scouts, said: “Such community initiatives contribute to achieving the 17 sustainable development goals, preserving the identity of Qatar’s plants, as well as introducing local youth to their environment and the importance of sustainable development goals, preserving the identity of Qatar’s flora and fauna in their natural habitats, combating desertification and co-operating with various stakeholders in the country to support its commitment to preserving the nation’s environment, plants and fungal natural resources.”

The event was held in line with the United Nations’ SDGs (sustainable development goals): the environmental pillar of Qatar National Vision 2030, which aims to protect nature and wildlife, and the pillar of Qatar’s identity, related to the simultaneous protection of the nation’s environment and its natural balance.

The QBG’s mission of restoring wild plants and plant wild trees in their desert habitats to reduce carbon emissions and limit desertification in Qatar, was also highlighted.

The event was held in partnership with the Ministry of Municipality and Environment (MME), which allocated Rawdat al-Faras, one of the most important restoration areas related to Qatar Environment Day.

To introduce plant wild trees in their desert habitats to reduce carbon emissions and limit desertification, the event provided detailed explanations of the types of wild plants, insects, and reptiles inhabiting the area, all activities were held with strict adherence to social distancing regulations.

In addition to planting wild plants in their desert habitats to reduce carbon emissions and limit desertification, participants undertook a night-time observation campaign of the area.

Environmental researchers present at the event provided detailed explanations of the types of wild plants, insects, and reptiles inhabiting the area, all activities were held with strict adherence to social distancing regulations. "Protecting and rehabilitating endangered wild plants and plant wild trees in their desert habitats to reduce carbon emissions and limit desertification in Qatar," she added.

Nearly 100 migrants rescued off Libya’s west coast, missing

A total of 100 migrants were rescued off the northwestern coast of Libya yesterday morning, according to the coastguard. People traffickers had tried to cross the Mediterranean but encountered the North African coast, an official said.

The Libyan coastguard reported the rescue of the migrants, who included seven women and 11 children, as they attempted to reach Europe. The migrants are believed to have been trying to escape poverty and violence in their home countries, mainly from southern Africa.

The rescue was carried out by a coastguard boat, which rescued the migrants from a wooden boat about 10 nautical miles off the coast of Libya. The migrants were taken to a nearby port, where they were given food and shelter.

The Libyan coastguard said it had rescued a total of 220 migrants in the past two weeks. The coastguard has rescued hundreds of migrants this year, mostly from West Africa and the Horn of Africa.

The migrants were said to have been on their way to Italy, but the coastguard intercepted them and returned them to Libya. The coastguard said it had rescued more than 1,000 migrants in the past two months.

The Libyan coastguard has said it will continue to rescue migrants trying to cross the Mediterranean. The coastguard has rescued more than 10,000 migrants since the start of the year.

The United Nations has called for an end to the migrant crisis in the Mediterranean. The UN migration agency, the International Organization for Migration (IOM), said it had rescued more than 1,200 migrants in the past week. The agency said it was concerned about the safety of the migrants and called for a halt to the migrant traffickers.

The IOM said it was working with the Libyan coastguard to ensure the safety of the migrants.

Indian farmers to hold series of meetings against new farm laws

Farmers protesting against the new farm laws of India have announced a series of meetings across the country. The meetings are scheduled to begin on March 10 and will continue over the withdrawal of the laws.

In a press release, the United Forum of Majlis-e-Ittihadul Muslimeen (BFU) has said that it will hold meetings in different parts of the country. The BFU said that it will hold meetings in Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh, in Jodhpur from March 7 and the reach Shekhawat programme at Ghazipur on March 6.

“False cases are beingLogLevel on Farmers. Our farmers can be anything but traitors. However, they have faced several charges.

One son of the country is defacing the country’s patent borders, the other is at the border of Delhi”

After this, Tikait will attend a programme at Chakari on March 9 and the check-up to Mahayogi Prajapati on March 10. On March 10, a Mahapanchayat will be held in Uttar Pradesh in Varanasi, in Jalgaon from March 11, and at Nathdwara (Shahpura) on March 16 and 23.

The farmers have sought to organise similar programmes in other states to intensify their agitation against the laws.

The trends indicate tensions between the farmers and the government have been inculcated. The farmers are adamant on the demand of withdrawal of the laws.

The protesters have announced that they will continue their protests until their demands are met. The farmers have been facing several charges and sedition charges.

The government has announced several measures to address the farmers’ demands. However, the farmers have refused to accept any compromise.

The government has also announced several measures to address the farmers’ demands. However, the farmers have refused to accept any compromise. They have demanded the withdrawal of the laws, the release of arrested farmers, and the reinstatement of the previous Minimum Support Price (MSP) system.

The government has defended its policies, arguing that the new laws will boost agricultural production and create job opportunities. However, the farmers have rejected these arguments and continue to demonstrate against the laws.

UN voices concern as 18 ‘die in Myanmar crackdown’

The United Nations has voiced concern over reports of violent clashes in Myanmar after 18 people were killed in a crackdown on protesters. The UN said it was aware of the incidents and was deeply concerned.

“The people of Myanmar have the right to assemble peacefully and demand the reinstatement of their government,” the UN said in a statement.

The UN has called for an immediate end to the violence and for all parties to respect the right to peaceful assembly.

Meanwhile, the search for Akash Mehra, the son of a restaurant owner who was attacked by assailants in Kashmir, continues. Mehra, 25, was attacked and killed in a local village. The police are investigating the incident.

The government has flooded security forces in Kashmir to contain the protests. According to the government, the protests were策划 and instigated by foreign elements.

The government has also announced several measures to address the farmers’ demands. However, the farmers have refused to accept any compromise. They have demanded the withdrawal of the laws, the release of arrested farmers, and the reinstatement of the previous Minimum Support Price (MSP) system.
Thailand starts vaccination drive

Thailand kicked off its COVID-19 vaccination campaign yesterday with a pledge to give vaccines to officials and medical professionals working in the capital, Bangkok. The first dose of vaccine manufactured by the Serum Institute of India — probably the world’s largest vaccine producer — was given to Thai Prime Minister Prayut Chan-O-Cha, who also attended the event yesterday, when he declared that it is "hope for Thailand to return to normal life".

Prima Minister Prayuth Chai-O-cha, 66, attended the ceremony to flag it off and today, at the age of 66, became the first Thai to receive a vaccine. Thais will be ready for the second week, after going through quality control tests, the company said in a statement.

A vaccine campaign to administer 10 million doses a month is to be set up in January, with 20 million doses of AstraZeneca vaccine produced by a local company.

Thai police fired rubber bullets at protesters outside Prime Minister Prayut Chan-O-Cha’s residence yesterday.

The police fired rubber bullets at protesters who had gathered outside the Prime Minister’s residence.

As authorities across the kingdom yesterday to support pro-democracy protesters in the country’s largest single crackdown on the movement, the police fired rubber bullets at protesters during demonstrations in Bangkok.

Thailand seized its first 200,000 doses of the Sinovac vaccine from China and 21,500 doses of the AstraZeneca vaccine — the country’s first.

Nearly four years ago, Hong Kong pro-democracy activists and journalists were charged with sedition following a fall-out between Hong Kong pro-democracy activists and a company, around 2019. Hong Kong police had arrested some 20 people, including some activists, when they marched to the Chinese Consulate to protest against the arrest of a prominent Hong Kong pro-democracy activist.

The police said 20 people were arrested for "committing an offence against national security".

Yesterday’s arrest of some 20 people, including some activists, by the police came after an anti-government demonstration in Hong Kong.

ment. "A vaccine campaign to administer 10 million doses a month is to be set up in January, with 20 million doses of AstraZeneca vaccine produced by a local company."
Biden ‘in no rush’ to lift Venezuela sanctions

President Joe Biden’s administration will not rush to lift sanctions against Venezuela, instead taking a measured approach to normalize relations with the socialist government of President Nicolas Maduro.

The US has maintained economic sanctions and diplomatic isolation against the Maduro government since 2017, a bid to force him out of office and pave the way for a transition to a more pro-US administration.

Biden administration officials have signaled a willingness to engage with the Maduro government to discuss a potential end to the sanctions, but they have also emphasized that any such discussions would be conditional on a range of political and economic reforms.

The US has already taken steps to ease some of its sanctions, including lifting some restrictions on humanitarian aid and commercial transactions. However, the overall approach remains focused on both diplomatic pressure and economic pressure to bring about a political change in Venezuela.

Biden’s administration is expected to continue to prioritize issues of human rights and democratic governance, and any engagement with the Maduro government will be subject to a robust review of its record on these issues.

The administration is also considering the potential for indirect, back-channel talks with the Maduro government, which have been a key strategy of past US administrations in pursuit of regime change.

The situation on the ground in Venezuela remains tense, with widespread food and fuel shortages, and reports of government repression and human rights abuses.

The administration is expected to maintain a strong focus on these issues, and any engagement with the Maduro government will be closely monitored to ensure that it advances the US’s broader goals of promoting democracy and human rights in the region.

Rooting for Trump

In a surprise move, US President Donald Trump has endorsed a former Trump administration official, Kris Kobach, in the Republican primary for the Senate seat in Kansas.

The endorsement comes as Kobach, a longtime ally of former President Donald Trump, faces challenges from several Republican candidates in the primary race.

Kobach, who served as Trump’s chief of staff during his first term, has been a prominent figure in conservative politics in Kansas, and his endorsement is seen as a boost to his campaign.

The race is expected to be closely watched, as it could be a key battle for control of the US Senate, which the Democrats are hoping to gain.

The endorsement is also seen as a sign of Trump’s ongoing influence in the Republican Party, and it could help to shape the outcome of the primary race.

The endorsement is also significant for Kobach’s campaign, as it could help to mobilize conservative voters and provide a boost to his standing in the race.

The race could be a bellwether for the direction of the Republican Party, and the endorsement is expected to be closely watched by party activists and voters.

Humankind faces the present and clear danger of long Covid

As the crises precipitated by the Covid-19 pandemic are not ending, so far as we can tell, neither is post-Covid syndrome. Publishing a World Health Organization (WHO) report on the condition, European health experts and thousands of Covid-19 patients continue to suffer debilitating, devastating and lingering symptoms many months to years after their initial infection. The pain and suffering of the post-Covid condition are far from unique, but they are severe, and economic consequences. They estimate that around one in three Covid-19 patients are still experiencing symptoms, even months after infection, and many suffer symptoms for far longer. "This is a condition that can be extremely debilitating. Those suffering from it describe a varying combination of overlapping symptoms..." he said, and express despair and hopelessness. "The burden is real and it is significant, " said McKee, a professor at the European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies who led the report.

Publishing a World Health Organization (WHO) report on the condition, European health experts and thousands of Covid-19 patients continue to suffer debilitating, devastating and lingering symptoms many months to years after their initial infection. The pain and suffering of the post-Covid condition are far from unique, but they are severe, and economic consequences. They estimate that around one in three Covid-19 patients are still experiencing symptoms, even months after infection, and many suffer symptoms for far longer. "This is a condition that can be extremely debilitating. Those suffering from it describe a varying combination of overlapping symptoms..." he said, and express despair and hopelessness. "The burden is real and it is significant, " said McKee, a professor at the European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies who led the report.

As if the crises precipitated by the Covid-19 pandemic are not ending, so far as we can tell, neither is post-Covid syndrome. Navalny begins serving time

Kremlin critic Alexei Navalny has been transferred from a prison hospital to a penal colony in the Moscow region due to widespread criticism of conditions at the facility.

For several days, Navalny's allies and doctors argued that the political prisoner was suffering from "delirium" due to "bad food" and lack of medical equipment. The hospital was transferred from Moscow to a facility in the town of Tver, about 100 km (60 miles) west of Moscow.

President Putin has not commented on Navalny's situation, but has ordered authorities to ensure the safety of political prisoners.

Navalny was arrested on January 17 and sentenced to 3.5 years in prison for violating suspended sentence for embezzlement.

Russia launches satellites to monitor climate in Arctic

The team from the university of Edinburghs, University of Leeds and the European Space Agency's (ESA) satellite, Arktika-M, will be launched into polar orbit on Friday and will begin monitoring the Arctic Ocean.

The satellite will be able to detect and monitor changes in sea ice, sea level, and ocean currents in the Arctic. It will also provide information on the distribution of primary and secondary producers in the Arctic ecosystem, which is vital for understanding the impact of climate change on the region.

Finnish team sets giant ‘ice carousel’

A team of cold-water divers and oceanographers from the University of Copenhagen and University of Oulu in Finland have set a new world record for the largest ice carousel.

The team used an underwater scooter to create an ice carousel measuring 3.5 meters in diameter.

Germany to tighten border controls at French border

Germany is to tighten border controls at its French border as part of efforts to contain the spread of the coronavirus in Europe.

The country's interior minister, Horst Seehofer, said that the new measures would apply to travelers coming from France, Austria, and Switzerland.

The measures include more frequent checks of travelers' documents, as well as random testing of those entering the country.

The sands protest in Martinique against insecticide ‘impunity’

Thousands of people demonstrated on the French island of Martinique this week against the use of insecticides in agriculture, calling for a halt to the use of neonicotinoids.

The chemical insecticides, widely used to protect bananas and other crops in Martinique and neighboring countries, have been shown to be harmful to bees and other pollinators.

The protest was organized by the Martinique's farmers' union and supported by environmental groups and local communities.
