Taking courses outside majors vital for students, says OU director

Taking courses outside the student’s major is a vital part of their academic journey, said Dr Rana Sobh, director of Qatar University’s (QU) Core Curriculum Programme (CCP). "The ultimate goal is to prepare students for their future careers and lives," he said. "Taking courses outside or beyond their majors is crucial for students’ intellectual and personal growth; it helps them to become more rounded and gain a broader perspective on life. Through the Core Curriculum Programme, we aim to provide students with a broad range of skills, knowledge, values and dispositions that are essential for success, intellectual growth, and personal development."

The CCP has been reforming its programmes, which were previously known as the General Education Programme and the Curriculum Core. The new programme aims to enhance students’ intellectual and professional development while accommodating the remaining in-house General Education requirements. According to a statement, "The General Studies course structure and the General Education programme have been restructured to form the new Core Curriculum Programme, which is an enhancement process that began in Fall 2020."

"These changes will result in some implications on the student’s degree programme, affecting the coursework of departments," Dr Sobh said. "The new Core Curriculum Programme requires students to complete 40 courses, which are divided into three categories: educational experiences, professional development, and personal growth.

"The CCP curriculum culminates in the development of General Education requirements and a first-of-its-kind Core Curriculum Course (CCC) is a prerequisite for all students, who are required to complete 33 credit hours of courses. The CCC is a precursor to the Core Curriculum Programme and a first-of-its-kind Core Curriculum Course (CCC) is a prerequisite for all students.

"The CCP also launched three new educational initiatives that provide first-rate experiences for students and their peers. These initiatives include the Core Curriculum Programme, which has been restructured to form the new Core Curriculum Programme, and a first-of-its-kind Core Curriculum Course (CCC) is a prerequisite for all students."

It ordered Britain to reduce NO2 pollution to below the EU limit – which is currently 40 micrograms per cubic metre – and bring it to the limit by 2020. The court said a failure to do so could make the European Commission take the necessary steps to impose financial penalties on Britain. Britain’s environment minister said it was considering the court ruling. “Our pollution of a national level has reduced significantly since 2010, and we are well on our way to achieving the 40 micrograms standard in 2020,” he said. “We have been working closely with the European Union and there are many positive signs.”

Sarkozy conviction is a prize victory for the rule of law

The harsh sentence handed down to former French president Nicolas Sarkozy, who was found guilty of influence peddling, combats an ancient anathema of politics: Even in the world’s most family-oriented democracies, corruption remains.

Formerly generous with his favors, Sarkozy now faces a three-year prison term. “Transparency” and “accountability” may not procure good soldiers, but good soldiers will always be needed. The strong don’t need to worry about corruption, but they don’t need to be given to it.

Sarkozy, who was found guilty of influence peddling, is the mightiest person in France, given to Sarkozy, from 2007 to 2012 the mightiest person in France, the three-year prison term will not sink the French system. It will strengthen the grip of the all-providing state.

The Covid-19 pandemic also contributed to a perfect storm. As the economic policies imposed by governments and the corresponding national pride in their country and their military. SIMILARLY, IN the Korean War era, “all in”’s notwithstanding, it was not an easy war. The US military is unwavering in its support of, and dedication to, the US Constitution. Those in its ranks who harbour extremist views will be discovered and dealt with appropriately. Looking ahead, recruitment methods will be strengthened so that not everyone can qualify. The US military is not immune to these political dynamics. As the economic policies imposed by governments and the corresponding national pride in their country and their military. Lying: A disease of the heart

Lying is the complete opposite of truth. So, anything that tampers with the truth, distorts the truth, is a matter of the heart. In Islam, the heart is not only the center of physical activities but also the center of the person's essence. As such, it is the heart of a person that is reported as a disease. In fact, Allah says in the Quran, "Indeed, truth leads to virtue and false oaths lead to nothing but harm. So keep away from false oaths. [Quran 41:29]

Lying is a disease that appears in the heart of every person. It can be characterized by the following symptoms:

1. Emotional Stress: Liars often feel guilty, anxious, and stressed when they are lying. They may also experience physical symptoms such as headaches and stomachaches.
2. Cognitive Distortion: Liars tend to think about their lies, often becoming obsessed with proving their version of events. They may also have difficulty remembering the truth.
3. Social Isolation: Liars often distance themselves from others, fearing judgment or rejection. They may also avoid situations where they might be caught in a lie.
4. Emotional Vulnerability: Liars are often emotionally vulnerable, unable to express their true feelings or emotions. They may also have difficulty forming deep relationships.

Lying is a disease of the heart because it affects the person's moral fiber. It is a disease that can spread to others, affecting the entire community. In Islam, lying is considered one of the worst sins, and Allah warns, "whoever tells a lie about a believer is a fellow of him who is in Hell, wherein he will abide eternally. [Quran 9:119]

The sin of lying is a violation of the trust that is a hallmark of human relationships. It undermines the foundation of trust, which is essential for the growth of any society. In Islam, trust is considered a virtue, and the Quran emphasizes the importance of trust in its teachings. Allah says, "And do not wrong anyone by oppression. [Quran 19:3]

Lying is also a violation of the principles of justice and fairness. In Islam, justice is considered a fundamental principle, and Allah says, "Seek the welfare of your own heart without wronging others. [Quran 2:289]
