Doha – 28th April 2021

Baladna Q.P.S.C. yesterday announced its quarterly results for the three months period ended 31st March 2021. Following its strong operational performance in the year 2020, the Baladna team has continued to deliver positive results in the first quarter of 2021 despite the challenges of a softening retail market.

During the first quarter of the year, revenue generated was QAR 182 million (+1% growth compared to the same period in the previous year). The company delivered a strong net profit of QAR 44 million (+54% growth compared to the same period in the previous year), representing a net profit margin of 24%. Earnings per share (weighted average) equate to QAR 0.023 and the retained earnings balance on 31st March 2021 stands at QAR 167.3 million.

Introducing quality innovative and value accretive products to the market has been a key strategic objective for Baladna since establishment and its successful product portfolio management has allowed Baladna to gain market leader positions across all its core categories. In Q1 2021, Baladna successfully launched an additional 13 SKUs.

Focus on operational efficiencies continues to deliver results in Q1 2021. Improved herd management resulted in higher milk yield per cow of 36.4 Kgs per day, improved efficiencies and higher yield in the manufacturing process, reduction in sales wastage through improved controls and systems as well as cost control of overheads all contributed to enhance the profitability.

During the Annual General Meeting held on the 28th April 2021, the Shareholders approved the distribution of the proposed amount of QAR 101 million (QAR 0.053 per share) final dividend for the year ended 31st December 2020. To date, the total dividend per share paid to shareholders since establishment to QAR 0.074, equating to 7.4% of the nominal value.

Baladna plans to continue its growth in the future. The Board of Directors approved plans to establish an evaporated milk processing facility and to extend the current facilities for a butter processing facility. Management together with the Board of Directors diligently assessed and evaluated the feasibility and potential return prospects for the facilities and have decided to pursue this growth opportunity. In addition to the estimated strong revenue and net profit contributions, management is pleased to provide its customers and all residents of the State of Qatar the opportunity to purchase locally produced products of high quality in these segments, contributing further to the self-sufficiency as well as Food Security Program in the State of Qatar.

Baladna’s strategic focus remains on shareholder value creation and further strengthening food security and self-sufficiency in the State of Qatar by delivering superior products, expanding the product portfolios, and focusing on efficiency gains across the entire value chain.

National registry releases data on cancer incidence

A total of 14,784 new cancer cases were diagnosed in 2018 in Qatar, latest data released by the Qatar National Cancer Registry of the National Cancer Programme at the Ministry of Public Health. Among these cases, 7,997 were Qatari and 6,787 were non-Qatari. Of these cases, according to a statement issued yesterday, the most common disease among all nationalities was breast cancer, accounting for 35.5% of all cancer cases, followed by cancer of the colon at 9.6%. Throat cancer was the third most common, at 7.1%.

The national registry represents an excellent model for effective partnership and continues its cooperation with other countries, including Qatar, the Ministry of Health and the Qatar Cancer Society. The registry is an important achievement and a vital source of information for policymakers and researchers who should benefit from this data.

How to attain sincere repentance

The reason behind repentance is to return to the path of Allah The Almighty, gain His acceptance and reinstatement into the fold of the righteous and improve one’s life. Repentance should not be for the sake of earning praise from people and gaining worldly benefits, but rather from fear of Allah.

(“Except those who repent misunderstanding things that are good deeds, hold fast to Allah, and Allah is forgiving and most merciful for the people who repent” [Qur’an, 4: 166]).

1. Fearing from sinning repentance is not considered genuine or accepted if a person continues to commit sins while in the process of repentance. On the contrary, repentance will be accepted if it continues after the repentance.

2. Continuous mentioning Allah The Almighty.

3. Mending one’s ways, such as avoiding the crime and all similar actions that were committed in the past.

4. Continuing to fear and worry, as fear and worry will not be accepted if the repentance is not sincere.

5. Sincerity of repentance; it should be genuine.

6. Sins are not forgotten. Repentance does not excuse the person from being punished for the sins they committed. Respect and fear of Allah should be accompanied with repentance.

Sincere repentance becomes effective when a person intends to return to the path of Allah the Almighty, gs, rather than thinking about his sins and feeling sad because of it, and it continues to be correct and accepted. Repentance is sincere when a person regrets it and feels sad, and it continues to be correct and accepted, until the person has admitted his sins and accepted it, and said: “O Allah! I have committed sins.”

Allah, the Almighty says (what means): “Whoever fears Allah and keeps His約 trust in the Hereafter...” [Qur’an, 17: 78].

So, a person who intends to return to the path of Allah the Almighty, gs, rather than thinking about his sins and feeling sad because of it, and it continues to be correct and accepted, until the person has admitted his sins and accepted it, and said: “O Allah! I have committed sins.”

7. Becoming better than the condition you were in before death.” [Ahmad, At-Tirmithi].

8. Repenting during the time of illness.

9. Repenting during the day and night.

10. Repenting in the last moments of life and before death.

The Almighty and reciting the Qur’an. You should guard your hearing and not to listen to anything that is wrong. You should guard your hands and not to use them in anything prohibited. You should guard your legs and not to use them in anything prohibited. You should guard your stomach from eating ill-gotten goods. You should guard your limbs; you should guard your hands and not to use them in anything prohibited. You should guard your legs and not to use them in anything prohibited. You should guard your sight and not to look at prohibited pictures and videos. You should guard your ears and not to listen to prohibited music. You should guard your mouth and not to say prohibited words.

Requiem est French for “prayer of the dead,” a religious service to pray for the soul of the deceased, and the Latin term “est” means “it is.”

Requiem mass is a Christian religious mass celebrated for the repose of the soul of the deceased. It is a religious service that is celebrated by a priest, and it is usually conducted in a church setting. The requiem mass is a significant part of the Catholic Church’s practice, and it is typically conducted within a week after the death of the deceased.

The requiem mass is a moment of reflection and remembrance for the deceased, and it is a time for family and friends to gather together and console one another. During the requiem mass, prayers are said for the soul of the deceased, and it is a time for the living to remember and honor the memory of the deceased.

The requiem mass is usually conducted by a priest, and it typically includes a selection of sacred texts and prayers, such as the Gospel readings, the Epistle, and the prayers for the living and the dead. The Green Tent stresses need for digitising manuscripts

The Green Tent discussed the importance of digitising manuscripts in order to preserve knowledge and history. The participants highlighted the role of manuscripts in the cultural and historical heritage of various societies.

They pointed to the great need for this type of historical documentation to preserve identity, ethnic science, developing critical sensibilities, and cultural thinking in various societies. They stressed the importance of combating smuggling and illegal circulation of manuscripts and documentary heritage while promoting and supporting research in the field of Islamic manuscripts and raising awareness about the richness and importance of Islamic heritage.

The participants explained the dangers facing the manuscripts and the need for special steps to increase visibility and restoration and maintenance.

The head of A Flower Each Avenue, Dr Fatma Al-Ahmad, stressed the value of the manuscripts in the Australian and Islamic heritages because they are the best evidence of the depth and roots of the cultural identity of the Arab and Islamic nations, which had the deepest impact on the enlightenment.

She explained the importance of digitising manuscripts, which is an investment in the long run, especially in archiving, preserving and restoring manuscripts, counting them, and subjecting them to an electronic indexing and numbering process, while strengthening and supplementing research.

For his part, Qatar-based Dr Mustafa Al-Addawi highlighted the importance of digitising manuscripts after preserving them, and explained that the digitisation process can prove to be a solution to the problem of dealing with them seriously and efficiently, and pointed out the importance of digitising manuscripts from loss and damage and the case of dealing with them in one glass and from several people simultaneously. He reviewed the experience of digitisation in Qatar, Turkey and France and some European countries and mentioned the digital manuscripts that are available to researchers in various countries and in the world and in which cases it is necessary to supplement the digital forms and support them with digital forms that will be the main resource.

A critical reading of the historical forces that stimulate the process of indexing today is that between top universities, the future of the museum, in addition to reviewing the process of digitisation. The conference discussed the importance of digitising manuscripts in order to preserve knowledge and history. The participants highlighted the role of manuscripts in the cultural and historical heritage of various societies.
CCQ conducts survey in effort to develop flexible learning model

The Community College of Qatar (CCQ), which plans to adopt flexible education and teaching models, has conducted a survey to evaluate its distance education experiences.

The survey was designed to identify the most important features of the distance education system that need to be maintained or improved to ensure success. Other topics were covered as well, regardless of any future changes.

During the first stage, students who were taking courses remotely were surveyed, while the second stage involved the professors who taught them.

The survey was conducted from February 16 to 18, with the participation of 1,500 students from all CCQ’s colleges (12,500 students) and 900 professors who taught the courses online.

According to the results, 84% of the participating students considered distance learning to be a successful experience and the lessons they learned were valuable.

The survey results show that while the participation of the students was good overall, comparing to traditional classes, 58% of the surveyed faculty members confirmed that they managed to achieve the same educational goals.

However, 68% agreed that they had to adjust their teaching methods from this experience, while 58% considered their teaching methods to be suitably flexible.

The second stage of the survey was conducted from March 16-18 with the participation of 110 faculty members, which account for 78% of the professors who taught the courses online.

The survey results show that 92% of the participating professors said that they will continue to adopt distance education methods.

Dr Mohamed Al-Ameen, director, said: “The results of the survey show that our ability to face the challenges of the distance education process was good overall. Comparing to traditional classes, 58% of the surveyed faculty members confirmed that they managed to achieve the same educational goals. However, 68% agreed that they had to adjust their teaching methods from this experience, while 58% considered their teaching methods to be suitably flexible.”

As many as 95% expressed their satisfaction with the technical support provided by CCQ, 87% confirmed that the educational outputs were delivered on time, 38% of the students from Microsoft Teams and the Blackboard Learning Management System contributed to knowledge sharing.

The survey results show that while the participation of the students was good overall, comparing to traditional classes, 58% of the surveyed faculty members confirmed that they managed to achieve the same educational goals. However, 68% agreed that they had to adjust their teaching methods from this experience, while 58% considered their teaching methods to be suitably flexible.

The second stage of the survey was conducted from March 16-18 with the participation of 110 faculty members, which account for 78% of the professors who taught the courses online.

Two Spanish journalists have been killed by insurgents in Somalia, officials and press groups said on Monday, after an attack on the Somali capital that killed four people.

Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez confirmed that two Spaniards were killed in the attack, naming the two journalists.

“The worst news is confirmed. All our affection for the relatives and friends of Carmen, and Roberto Fraile, who were murdered in Burkina Faso,” he tweeted.

He praised those who, like them, “continue to put their lives on the line from conflict zones,” adding: “Spanish colleagues are and will always be an example for us.”

Sanchez described the attack as “terrorist violence” and said that it was “a threat to the security of our country and all European countries.”

He did not specify who was behind the attack targeting the Spanish journalists, who worked for a now defunct Spanish branch of CNN and had worked previously for a news agency in Pamplona in the north while they were based in the country's capital.

The attack came amid a surge in violence in the country, where a new round of fighting has left at least six people dead and dozens injured.

Somalia has seen a rise in violent attacks in recent weeks, including a suicide bombing in Mogadishu on Sunday that killed four people and injured dozens more.

A police statement said the attack was carried out by a group of militants who had been a part of the al-Shabab insurgency.

The statement said the militants had targeted a police checkpoint in the city and that the attack was a response to a military operation that had killed several of their colleagues.

The attack comes amid growing tension between the government and the insurgents, who have been fighting for control of the country for years.

The government has been accused of failing to provide adequate security for its citizens and has been criticized for its handling of the country's security situation.

The attack has also raised concerns about the safety of journalists in the region, with some fear that they may become targets of violence.

However, the government has denied any responsibility for the attack and has called on the international community to help bring the violence to an end.

The attack is the latest in a series of violent incidents in Somalia, which has been wracked by conflict for decades and is one of the world's poorest countries.

The government has been trying to negotiate an end to the conflict, but has so far been unable to secure a lasting peace.

The attack has also raised questions about the government's ability to provide security for its citizens, with some calling for international intervention to help stabilize the country.
Longs vs shorts: US recovery doubts weigh on dollar outlook

The US has historically maintained a strong dollar policy. But as the world fights back to contain the coronavirus, the global economic outlook for 2021 is looking up, the race to reopen economies is heating up, and markets are bracing for another round of the dollar’s fate in the currency market.

The US has a wealth of natural resource endowments and a strong economy, which is seen as “substantially overvalued” by some analysts, according to a recent report. The dollar has been performing well in the medium term.

The US currency is one of the most important in the world. The US dollar is the world’s leading reserve currency, and the US economy is the largest in the world. The US dollar is also used as a means of payment in international trade.

The US dollar has been performing well in the medium term, and investors should also keep in mind how a strong-versus-weak-dollar equation impacts their investments.

The US has incorported more citizens than any other country with an edge in the race to reopen economies. On the contrary, not everyone is convinced the US will continue outperforming peers. For Morgan Stanley’s Shanti Mahabir, US exceptionalism is set to fade as other nations catch up to the US in terms of growth and economic re-opening.

Shusha Maharaj, US strategist at JPMorgan Asset Management, said the US dollar has been performing well, driven by factors such as strong economies, stable currencies, and low inflation.

"While we still have a long way to go in this fight, a lot of work to do in May and June to get us to July, to get us through July, to get us to August, and then into September," he said, referring to the need to continue to prepare for another surge in the virus. "Cases and deaths are down - down dramatically from where they were when this crisis began." Biden noted that, after the Covid outburst, "in the next two weeks," the US will have a "minority of the people" who are fully vaccinated. "If you are fully vaccinated, you can start doing many things that you had stopped doing because of the pandemic," the government said in a joint statement.

Biden and President Biden also said that they were "very grateful" to the public for their support in the fight against Covid, adding that "we are seeing progress in the fight, but we must all continue to do our part." They urged Americans to continue to wear masks, practice social distancing, and avoid large gatherings.
