Qatar researchers report largest genetic association study in Middle East

Researchers at Qatar Foundation (QF) have reported the first and largest genetic association study in the Middle East, that has published results of ‘Nature Communications’ journal, an open-access scientific journal published by Nature Research. The study titled ‘Single nucleotide polymorphism distribution of the Eastern Qatari population: Identifying genetic associations with diabetes and cardiovascular diseases’, is a glimpse into the genetic factors that shape the population, including those that are shared with other regions.

This project is a better awareness of which genetic markers predispose people to the Arab population—

- indicate their risk to develop in a certain disease. This will significantly impact the ability to diagnose and manage various diseases.
- help in the fight to stem the global grip of human genome by representing huge segments of the Asian ancestry populations which are comparatively underrepresented.

This data’s genetic information is widespread among individuals and can be utilized by other populations such as European and Latin American, and in other Qatari cities. This data will contribute towards revealing what factors drive the disease to certain at-risk groups.

Dr. Kristin Suhail, a University of Iowa PhD candidate in Genetics, Genome Science, and Developmental Biology, and principal investigator of this project, said, "We are excited to share this information with the scientific community and other researchers as we continue to build on these findings to better understand the genetic factors that contribute to disease risk in the Qatari population."

The findings from the study can be extrapolated to other diseases such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease or other conditions prevalent in the Middle East. Future efforts will focus on linking these findings with other populations to better understand the genetic factors involved in these diseases.

The research team is currently analyzing the findings with other populations to better understand the genetic factors involved in these diseases. The results are expected to be published in a forthcoming issue of the ‘Nature Communications’ journal.

Qatar Charity launches campaign to drill 4000 wells around the world

Qatar Charity (QC) launched a drive to quench the thirst of the needy and the poor during the last ten days of Ramadan.

The donations have so far been made for 1,279 wells, while another 4,222 are part of the 4,400 wells targeted by the campaign in 19 countries of the world to help people with water scarcity.

The countries targeted by the campaign include Pakistan, India, Bangladesh, Tanzania, Nigeria, Kenya, Congo, Ivory Coast, Albania, Pakistan, Nepal, Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Sudan, Qatar, and Kosovo.

Qatar Charity appeals to the public in Qatar to contribute to the campaign, especially in the last ten days of Ramadan, when needs are multiplied with the 助产子能秒. The charity points to the fact that 3,000 children die of water-related diseases and statistics indicate that nearly 40% of the world's population lack access to basic sanitation, and areas that are home to millions in the world do not have clean water sources.

The scarcity of water also carries many risks such as diseases, epidemics, famines, and migrations, and many areas are constantly around the world due to the shortage of clean water.

A person can donate to the campaign through the link https://www.qcharity.org/en/qc/ and Qatar Charity collection points are available across the country, in addition to dialing 4444771.

Qatar Charity starts Zakat Al-Fitr distribution to Syrian refugees in Turkey

Qatar Charity (QC), as part of its Ramadan of Hope campaign, launched a campaign to distribute Zakat Al-Fitr to Syrian refugee families in Turkey and the families of orphans to alleviate their suffering, especially during the time of the coronavirus pandemic and high unemployment rates.

The Zakat Al-Fitr, which is being implemented during the last 10 days of Ramadan, with the support of benefactors in Qatar, aims to deliver assistance to approximately 3,000 families to share with them the joy of Eid Al-Fitr.

The project is being implemented by distributing more than 10,000 electronic cards, which will enable the beneficiary families to purchase basic food.

The project will be implemented through the ‘Feed the Fasting’ project, which has been implemented in many cities in European countries since the beginning of Ramadan to deliver ready-to-eat meal to orphans, needy families, the elderly, and coronavirus-hit households. In coordination and cooperation with the local municipalities.

Some 36,810 iftar meals were distributed in cooperation with the municipality of Ushak in Istanbul, and 36,870 iftar meals in cooperation with the municipality of Istanbul in Gaziantep, 36,870 iftar meals in cooperation with the municipality of Istanbul, and 36,870 iftar meals in cooperation with the municipality of Istanbul, totaling 136,450 iftar meals.

$250mn effort to fight hate launched

Companies, wealthy must pay ‘fair share’, says Biden

New York

Responding to a wave of hate crimes against Asian Americans, President Joe Biden pledged to launch a $250 million effort to combat hate violence and support survivors. Biden delivered the announcement Friday in New York City, where he met with Asian community leaders and a coalition of anti-hate groups.

In the US, the term "Asian" typically refers to those of East and Southeast Asian descent. The Biden administration, through the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, and the Department of Health and Human Services, will work to implement a comprehensive strategy to combat hate crimes.

"We will work with all communities of color..." Biden said, "to ensure that hate crimes are stopped, that hate violence is taken seriously, and that survivors are protected and supported."

Biden also announced a $100 million grant program to support community-based organizations and a $150 million grant program to support state and local governments.

Biden said: "We will not tolerate hate crimes. We will not tolerate discrimination. We will not tolerate the targeting of any community, anywhere in the United States."

Biden’s announcement comes as rising rates of hate crimes against Asian Americans have been reported in the US. According to the Asian American Justice Center, there has been a 154% increase in hate crimes against Asian Americans in 2020 compared to 2019.

"We are working to address this problem," Biden said. "We are working to ensure that hate crimes are not occurrences that are ignored or swept under the rug."

Biden added: "We are working to ensure that hate crimes are not just isolated incidents, but that we are taking steps to address the root causes of hate.

"We are working to ensure that hate crimes are not just isolated incidents, but that we are taking steps to address the root causes of hate."

Biden’s announcement was welcomed by community leaders and anti-hate organizations.

"We are grateful for President Biden’s strong leadership on this issue," said NCAP Executive Director Fred Lum. "We are committed to working with the administration to ensure that these funds are used to support the needs of our communities."
Conte's obsession with winning pays off for Inter Milan

Antonio Conte has justified his salary as the highest paid coach in Italy. By bringing his former club (Juventus) and Inter Milan's decade-long drought to an end in the final, he has ensured his future at the club and earned the confidence of the fans. The victory brought Inter Milan its first Serie A title since 1997 without having to face the pressure of a one-on-one match in the final.

Biden's first hundred days

The US administration has made significant progress in its first hundred days. It has signed numerous executive orders and bills aimed at addressing climate change, healthcare, and economic recovery. The Biden administration has also taken steps to address the ongoing pandemic, including the distribution of vaccines and the implementation of vaccination programs. However, some critics argue that the administration has not done enough to address systemic issues such as police reform and social justice.

Net-Zero Producers Forum to pave way for climate commitments

The Net-Zero Producers Forum, an initiative launched by the United Nations, is aimed at mobilizing support for climate action and ensuring that the global community takes steps to achieve net-zero emissions by 2050. The forum brings together producers from various sectors to discuss strategies and solutions for reducing their carbon footprint. The forum is expected to play a crucial role in shaping the future of the global economy and ensuring a sustainable future for all.

Great football and delicious food ‘set to welcome fans in 2022’

Qatari chef Mohamed al-Abdullah says FIFA World Cup will showcase Qatar’s famous hospitality and generosity

For Dhahi, a Qatari chef, Mohamed al-Abdullah, who is a director of the FIFA World Cup 2022, sees the event as an opportunity to showcase the best of Qatari cuisine and hospitality.

In the run-up to the World Cup, al-Abdullah has been working on a series of dishes that reflect the diverse culture of Qatar. He has partnered with local restaurants to create dishes that represent the nation’s rich heritage.

The chef has also been working closely with FIFA to ensure that the food served during the tournament is of the highest quality. He has been involved in the selection of suppliers and has worked with local farmers to ensure that the ingredients used are fresh and locally sourced.

Al-Abdullah believes that the World Cup is an opportunity to not only showcase Qatar’s culinary talents but also to share the country’s rich culture and heritage with the world.

“Football is not just about the game. It’s about bringing people together and sharing culture and traditions,” he said. “That’s why I’m so excited about the World Cup. It’s a chance to show the world what Qatar is all about.”

As the World Cup draws closer, al-Abdullah is working hard to ensure that every aspect of the event is well-crafted, from the food to the infrastructure.

“My team and I are working tirelessly to make sure that every detail is perfect,” he said. “We want to create an unforgettable experience for everyone who comes to Qatar.”

And with the World Cup already underway, al-Abdullah is looking forward to the month of Sunday, when the tournament kicks off.

“I’m excited for the first game,” he said. “It’s going to be a great start to the tournament.”

Whether you’re a football fan or just looking to experience the joy of Qatari cuisine, the World Cup is sure to be a feast for the senses.

Vishnu Viswanath and Gopi Naini

For the upcoming FIFA World Cup tournament.

"Looking at our country’s vast biodiversity and natural wealth, this was something we could not miss," said Vishnu Viswanath, FIFA World Cup 2022 tournament director.

The discovery of a new species of fish in the waters off Qatar is a significant milestone for marine biodiversity in the region.

"This is a truly remarkable discovery," said Viswanath. "We are excited to continue our work with scientists and conservationists to better understand the unique marine life in the Gulf and its role in sustaining the regional ecosystem."
