US backs Covid waiver

Washington, D.C., US - The US administration announced yesterday its support for the waiver on patent protections for Covid-19 vaccines in accordance with the provisions of the World Trade Organization (WTO). The US position is expected to have a significant impact on the adoption of the waiver, which has been under discussion since November 2020. The waiver, if adopted, will allow countries to produce Covid-19 vaccines without the consent of the patent holders, which may accelerate the supply of vaccines globally. The US administration also called on other countries to support the waiver, stating that it is a critical step towards ensuring global access to vaccines and combating the pandemic.

Qatar 2022 stadiums excel in waste management practices

The construction sites of FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022 stadiums collected more than 79% of solid waste from landfill through composting and recycling. This is in addition to the 3% waste diverted to waste-to-energy facilities. The remaining 6% of waste, which included electronic waste, was either reused or recycled. For the ongoing Al-Wakrah Stadium project, the data of waste diverted so far is around 41%. The diverted waste from the four other stadium ranges between 72% and 92%, it is explained.

First sightseeing trip on July 20

Titled ‘Waste Management Best Practices for Construction Sites: Case Studies from FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022’, the book aims to inform local contractors – and the wider construction industry – about effective waste management practices. The book highlights Qatar’s commitment to environmental sustainability and its plans to host the first active-neutral FIFA World Cup. They also highlight Qatar’s ongoing efforts to achieve sustainable certification under the Global Sustainability Assessment System (GSAS) and the scalable, replicable and measurable waste management practices of the projects’ environmental performance and promotes the reuse of waste at construction sites, recycling and disposal of waste at authorised disposal facilities.

Sidra psychiatry department bags prestigious WPA designation

Sidra Medicine’s Department of Psychiatry has been designated as a Collaborating Centre of the World Psychiatric Association (WPA) for child and adolescent psychiatry and maternal and perinatal mental health.

The WPA represents 405 psychiatric societies in 145 countries and promotes collaborative work in psychiatry. Collaborating centres are institutions that have national, regional and international recognition as leaders in medicine, mental health and public health.

WPA president Prof Afzal Nazeer hoped that the designation from Sidra Medicine’s Department of Psychiatry will complement the WPA agenda of improving global mental health.

The WPA designation for Sidra Medicine’s Department of Psychiatry is one of only eight WPA designations in Qatar. “It is a huge honour for the department bags the world’s first and only designation possible for Sidra Medicine,” said Professor Mohamed Waja Azeem, inaugural chair of the Department of Psychiatry at Sidra Medicine.

“The collaboration with WPA will help improve the psychiatric care of children, adolescents and women in Qatar as well as at a regional level. Sidra Medicine is the world’s first and only Child and Adolescent Psychiatry Fellowship accredited by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME-I),” continued Prof Azeem.

Sidra Medicine CEO Dr Barbro Friden described the organisation’s child and adolescent psychiatry and maternal and perinatal mental health division as top-tier services in Qatar.

MoCI announces measures to regulate blacksmithing and carpentry activities

The Ministry of Commerce and Industry (MoCI) has announced measures to regulate blacksmithing and carpentry activities. The measures are part of an ongoing effort to control commercial activities in residential units without license, including blacksmithing, workshops, and warehouses, as well as storing products and equipment in parking, pavements, or empty lots and spaces. The measures are also aimed at strengthening the state in co-operation with the Ministry of Municipality and Environment.

The ministry said in a statement yesterday that the aforementioned workshops and warehouses are not allowed to conduct their activities outside the designated areas. The measures include stores and workshops, and additionally, a campaign against blacksmithing in the future. The campaign aims at promoting and highlighting the importance of blacksmithing activities in the黑色smithing industry, under the theme, "Sawpsaw Lines - Clean Your Hands".

The campaign will be carried out through various means, including social media on the Twitter handle MO-Sawpsaw, via phone on 16001, or through the ministry's website. Violators will be subject to penalties in line with Law No. 5 of 2015, which banned the aforementioned activities.

The ministry called on citizens and residents to report any violations of these measures to the aforementioned social media handle, mobile number, or website. The campaign is intended to raise awareness among the public about the importance of safe practices and the significance of the safety of patients, healthcare workers and the community as a whole.

Facebook oversight board upholds Trump ban

Facebook’s independent oversight board said Monday that it will uphold Facebook and Instagram bans of former President Donald Trump, a move that will make it much harder for him to return to the social media platform.

The board’s decision, which caps off a six-week review of Trump’s appeal, means that Trump will continue to remain blocked from the platform, which has more than 3 billion users worldwide.

The ride was far from over for Facebook, which has seen its user base dip slightly in recent weeks after Trump was removed from Twitter, which is now owned by Elon Musk.

Facebook’s oversight board had been widely expected to uphold Trump’s ban, which has been in place since January 2021.

The decision means that Trump will not be able to return to Facebook or Instagram, even though he has tried to do so in recent weeks.

Trump has repeatedly tried to return to Twitter, but has been blocked by the platform.

The board’s decision comes just days after Facebook announced that it had been contacted by several countries interested in usando Facebook’s tools to fight disinformation.

The board’s decision is likely to be challenged by Trump and his allies, who have said that the ban is a violation of free speech.

The decision is also likely to be challenged by the US government, which has been critical of Facebook’s decision to ban Trump.

The decision is also likely to be challenged by the European Union, which has been critical of Facebook’s decision to ban Trump.
