Qatar’s Fares Ibrahim competed in the men’s 89kg weightlifting during the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games. At the Tokyo International Forum in Tokyo yesterday, Fares was in a close-in his own six to win the gold medal (338kg) and beat the world record (332kg), and became the first Qatari to win gold in the sport. Fares produced a clean and jerk lift of 279kg to win the gold medal. After winning the gold medal, Fares said: “I dedicate this gold medal to my countrymen and women. I am very proud of me. I promise this is not the last gold medal for Qatar, we are going to raise Qatar’s flag at the Olympics for many more years to come.”

Fares’s gold is Qatar’s sixth Olympic gold medal, and his win was a result of the joint efforts made by both the QOC, and the Qatar Weightlifting Federation. "For Fares, this is the result of hard work and dedication," said the QOC’s President His Excellency Sheikh Joaan bin Hamad al-Thani, as he praised Fares for his performance. "The QOC president also praised the Qatar Weightlifting Federation for their efforts to make this achievement possible, which made the country proud."

"We are going to continue raising the Qatar flag at the Olympics, and we will make this achievement a reality for many more years to come," said Sheikh Joaan bin Hamad al-Thani.

Fares won gold in the men’s 89kg category, and became the first Qatari to win gold in the sport. Fares had made two successful attempts in the clean and jerk lift, and will now focus on improving his overall performance in the future.

Joint efforts to address key issue of human trafficking

The National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking, under the Ministry of Administrative Development, Labour and Social Affairs, has issued its annual report highlighting the efforts and achievements in combating human trafficking in the country.

The report, titled “Combating Human Trafficking in 2021”, outlines the key initiatives, strategies, and outcomes of the committee’s efforts to combat human trafficking.

The committee has reported a significant reduction in the number of cases of human trafficking in the country, attributed to the implementation of stringent laws and regulations.

The report also highlights the efforts of various governmental and non-governmental organizations in raising awareness and providing support to victims of human trafficking.

The committee emphasized the importance of continued collaboration with international partners and the need for sustained efforts in addressing the root causes of human trafficking.

The committee underscored the importance of international cooperation and the need for the establishment of a regional network to tackle human trafficking in the Gulf region.

The report also highlighted the need for further strengthening the legal framework and the need for the establishment of clear mechanisms for the protection and rehabilitation of victims of human trafficking.

The committee called for continued support from the international community, including financial aid, technical assistance, and knowledge sharing, to combat human trafficking.

The report concluded by expressing the commitment of the committee to continue its efforts in the fight against human trafficking and to ensure the protection and rehabilitation of victims in the country.

Fast-track vaccine may help economically weak states out of recession

With a projected 5.6% GDP growth in 2021, the global economy is likely to mark the strongest post-recession rebound in 80 years! The global economy is booming — or so it might seem. But in reality, the situation is quite different. While in some parts of the world, the pandemic's impact is being mitigated, various countries, especially those in the poorest regions, continue to struggle.

The poorest countries, which have already been battered by Covid-19, now face an additional threat: the financial crisis. With the pandemic, their economies have been hit hard, leaving them more vulnerable to future shocks.

As of July, only 3 doses of Covid vaccine per every 100 people have been distributed in poorest countries. That amounts to less than one-tenth of the rate in advanced economies.

How to make supply chains more resilient

The world has recently experienced a cascade of supply-chain disruptions, and will likely suffer more from pandemics and extreme weather in the future.

The global economy is booming — or so it might seem. But in reality, the situation is quite different. While in some parts of the world, the pandemic's impact is being mitigated, various countries, especially those in the poorest regions, continue to struggle.

The poorest countries, which have already been battered by Covid-19, now face an additional threat: the financial crisis. With the pandemic, their economies have been hit hard, leaving them more vulnerable to future shocks.

As of July, only 3 doses of Covid vaccine per every 100 people have been distributed in poorest countries. That amounts to less than one-tenth of the rate in advanced economies.

How to make supply chains more resilient

The world has recently experienced a cascade of supply-chain disruptions, and will likely suffer more from pandemics and extreme weather in the future.

More countries make climate pledges

A group of mostly smaller developing nations, many of which have ambitious climate goals, said on Friday they would work to double their efforts in line with the Paris accord. The group includes China—considered to be the main economic engine of the global climate effort—and nations across Latin America, Africa and Asia. The group's aim is to accelerate efforts to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels, which it says could prevent the worst consequences of climate change.

Thousands of people protest in France over health pass

Thousands of people in Paris and other French cities took to the streets on Friday to protest against the country's health pass, which is required for entry into public venues, contained within the government's controversial public health plan. The protesters, some wearing yellow vests, called the health pass a form of social exclusion and said it would disproportionately affect low-income groups. The protesters said they were fighting for the right to use public spaces and against what they see as a erosion of democratic rights.

Hungary nurses demand better pay

Hungary nurses demand better pay

More than 1,000 nurses gathered in Budapest on Friday as part of a nationwide protest demanding better pay and working conditions. The nurses are protesting against a proposed 3% pay rise, which they say is insufficient given the cost of living. They want a 15% increase in pay and better working conditions, including reduced work hours and improved benefits.
