Maritime Transport Affairs records mark number of services during 2nd quarter

By Shakeel Albargi

The Maritime Transport Affairs Department recorded 4,384 transactions during the second quarter of 2021, an increase by 84 transactions of the first quarter.

The Ministry of Transport and Communication (MTC) issued the Maritime Transport Affairs’ main services and Maritime Transport Affairs’ services of the first quarter of 2021, a total of 1,173 transactions were carried out by the department.

A total of 3,848 services were provided during the second quarter, the main services were Maritime Affairs’ main services and Maritime Transport Affairs services.

The services provided include registration, renewal, modification of services to foreign vessels engaged in operations in Qatar waters. Maritime Transport Affairs’ main services give issuance and accreditation of certificates of competency for marine officers, naval architects and safety officers. Maritime Transport Affairs’ services also include all regulations and administrative and technical agreements through the automation of all steps through an electronic system.

The services are provided through integration with the nation’s national database. Maritime Transport Affairs’ services include technical offices to ensure business procedures are fulfilled and completed through the maritime application portal.

The electronic services are part of MTC’s efforts to implement the standards of the government system, E-Qatar. The Maritime Transport Affairs (Maritime) Qatari Government 2020 strategies also include government services provided to individuals and companies.

The Department of Environment and the Ministry of Municipality and Environment referred to the department’s national duties, which include the draft national plan for the conservation of non-flyng birds, including the invading myna bird in the Qatari environment, and issuing the management project to control them.

The Director of the Protection and Wildlife, Al-Malki, spoke about the tasks and achievements in this regard during his time in Office, most notably the recent evacuation of civilians in Afghanistan during the Covid-19 pandemic as well as Qatar’s current efforts to evacuate civilians in Afghanistan and much more.

He also pointed out the expansion of the air transport agreement and the start of the use of trade exchanges after Qatar signed the Canada’s maritime transport agreements.

In addition, he referred to the agreement’s commitment to strengthen bilateral relations, which was clearly demonstrated by the support provided to the return of tens of thousands of Canadians from around the world during the Covid-19 pandemic as well as Qatar’s current efforts to evacuate civilians in Afghanistan and much more.

The reception was attended by a number of ambassadors accredited to Canada, including the Dean of Arab Ambassadors and Ambassadors of Iraq, Sudan, Tunisia, Turkey and Morocco as well as the Director of the Canada Arab Business Council and Permanent Representative of Qatar to the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) Eesah Abdullah al-Mahdi.

In addition, bilateral relations and cooperation between Qatar and Canada will continue to develop in the future.

Hospitality sector continues to look up

By Joey Aguilar

The tourism sector, including the hotel and tourism (Hotel & Tourism) sector, continues to show improvement after the government lifted most restrictions including masking and social distancing. The Gulf Times reported the industry is expected to continue improving in the coming years.

“The drop in room rates since their last visit is one of the biggest factors that entice visitors to stay longer and spend more,” said a hotelier. “The increase in visitors is also due to the vaccine. People feel more comfortable travelling knowing that they are protected from the virus.”

Ramani noted that several hotels in Doha, which offer seafood buffets, have enticed residents to dine and spend their evenings or weekends at hotels. “We have purchased products and services such as seafood and other food items. It is a good business opportunity for hotels.”

Ramani also stressed the importance of being able to affordably travel. “People like it because the variety that you get in Doha is extensive at a very affordable price.”

Many hotels in Qatar, including Movenpick Doha and Sheraton Doha, have either renovated or currently making some renovations on their properties. They are also improving their booking confidence to deal with the current situation.

Israeli planes attack targets in Gaza

The Israeli military said on Monday it struck several Hamas sites in Gaza as part of a coordinated series of attacks aimed at thwarting rocket fire into Israel. The strikes came after a weekend of tension that saw Gaza militants launch dozens of rockets into Israel, prompting Israel to launch a large-scale military operation.

The Israeli military said it struck a Hamas training center, a military post, and a site used for launching rockets.

Gaza health officials said at least 19 people were killed and 50 wounded in the Israeli strikes.

Kuwait to transform ‘tyre graveyard’ into new city

Kuwait has announced plans to transform an old landfill site near the country’s capital into a new city, part of a wider plan to develop the country’s infrastructure.

The project, known as the Salwa green city, will cover an area of about 3,000 acres and will include residential, commercial, and recreational facilities.

The project is expected to create thousands of jobs and attract investment to the area.

Local media reported that the project will be funded by the Kuwait government and is expected to be completed within five years.

The announcement came as part of a wider initiative by the Kuwait government to promote investment and development in the country.

The Salwa green city is part of a larger plan to develop the Al-Ona area, which includes the construction of new roads, bridges, and infrastructure.

The project is expected to create thousands of jobs and attract investment to the area.

Biden honours US troops killed in Kabul

President Joe Biden hailed 13 American soldiers, who were killed in an August 26 suicide bombing, as "the bravest of the brave." He added, "We will never forget their sacrifice."

The White House said Biden spoke with the families of the 13 Americans killed in the attack at Kabul airport when suicide bombers killed 184 Afghans, including 107 children, and 20 service members.

Biden said, "We have a solemn responsibility to remember the names of those who have fallen."

The White House said Biden talked to the families of the American service members and reiterated his commitment to the families of service members killed in Afghanistan.

On Monday, Biden announced the US would pull out its troops from Afghanistan by September 11, bringing an end to the nation’s longest war.

After Biden’s phone call, the White House said the Biden administration is "fully committed to supporting the families of the American service members who were killed in the attack.

On Wednesday, the Biden administration announced that the US would evacuate all Americans and Afghans who are eligible to be evacuated to the US.

Graham repeals Biden impeachment call

Senator Lindsey Graham has reversed his position on impeaching former President Donald Trump, saying he won't support impeachment because it would be counterproductive to the national interest.

Graham, a key ally of Trump during his presidency, had previously expressed support for impeaching Trump over the US Capitol riot on January 6. However, he now says impeaching Trump would be "counterproductive to the national interest."
Retailers to extend Bangladeshi garment workers’ safety pact

The statement, signed by the DuPont chief executive (CEO) and other major retailers, aims to ensure that factories in Bangladesh, as well as in other countries where retailers have factories, meet strict labor standards.

The renewed agreement advances the fundamental elements that made the accord successful, according to a DuPont official, who noted that the agreement has been extended for another two years.

The new version comes into force on September 1 and is named the International Accord for Freedom and Safety in the Textile and Garment Industry (IATMI).

A spokesperson for Adidas said they had not yet seen the new accord, but that they “generally support a new binding agreement that has independent oversight and can be sequenced to other countries.”

Ralph Lauren, Hugo Boss and UNDP said they had not reviewed the accord, and added that they would not comment on it until they had had a chance to review it. They said the accord was critical to ensuring that factories in Bangladesh and other countries would be safe and fair workplaces.

Volcano spews lava

Australia spews lava

The national capital of Canberra, has faced much of the country's unseasonable, but Australia's most active volcano, Mount Merapi, spew lava yesterday. The volcano is located in the central Java region, and is known for its frequent eruptions, including a major eruption in 2010 that killed more than 500 people.

Australia’s Covid cases at a high as ‘reopening’ debate heats up

Australia has recorded 92 new infections yesterday, the highest daily total since the start of the pandemic, with authorities there warning that the country's borders may not open until 70% of its population is vaccinated.

Prime Minister Andrews said yesterday that it was “a very difficult decision,” adding that the country was trying to balance the need to reopen with the need to keep the virus under control.

The state of Victoria, which has been the worst hit by the virus, has announced that it will reopen its borders with the state of New South Wales (NSW) on September 1, but that it will still have to meet strict social distancing measures.

Australia states have hinted they may follow the lead of Victoria, which has been the most successful in suppressing the virus, and has managed to keep its borders open, except for a brief period in April.

On the national government side, Prime Minister Scott Morrison has rejected calls for a national lockdown, saying that “the virus is now under control” and that the country is “on track to have a vaccine rollout by the end of the year.”

Mr Morrison, who announced yesterday that the country had reached 90% of its target for vaccinations, said that the government would continue to support the states and territories as they reopen.

A long-time retail rival in the Philippines is facing another round of legal action as it tries to compete with a new player, Duterte’s business.

This is the second lawsuit filed against the two men, following their second Moderna dose. The state of Victoria has suspended all vaccination clinics until next week, “to give Moderna and Takeda time to investigate the matter,” the spokesperson said.

The two men fell out in June last year, when a group led by Senator Christopher “Bong” Go and Senator Manny Pacquiao was removed from the box office by allowing the boxer’s “partner” to become the new chairman of PAGCOR.

Pacquiao and his allies in the party elected to the Senate have accused the government of allowing a foreign investor to take over one portion of the agency, but have not named the investor.

The move has been seen as part of a broader plan to tighten the government’s foreign worker policies, including a ban on new work visas for疫情期间.

More Moderna vaccines in Japan found contaminated

The Marina Headland in Sydney is likely to be closed on Monday, with the state government planning to close it to allow for a full investigation of the contamination event.

The state says the new Moderna doses have been stored at the same temperature as the previous batch, which is believed to be the cause of the contamination.

The Marina Headland, which is located in Sydney’s south, is one of the state’s most popular beaches, and is visited by thousands of people every day.

The state government has announced that it will close the beach on Monday, and has urged people to avoid the area.

The Marina Headland has been closed to the public for several days, with the state government saying that it will remain closed until the cause of the contamination is determined.
Take up of second Covid jab in England levelling off

According to figures from the University of Southampton, while nearly 20.4mn people have had their first dose, just under 12mn have had their second – a difference of about 8mn. That’s despite signs people had been urged to get their second jab by their GP as early as March, more than 3 weeks ago.

In December, a 12-week gap between doses was recommended, which was cut to eight weeks for those aged 40 and over in January and was extended to all ages. Last week, the government confirmed that the 12-week period only apply to second doses and not first doses and that the gap is also applicable to those aged 18 and over.

That means that unless recipients have had their first jab and made a choice to get the second dose, but their second, the opposite is true for 1st doses – they are not supported by either data. In addition, in recent weeks, the government’s own adviser, the Independent SAGE, has been keen to stress that a 12-week gap is not required.

In January, the government extended the first-dose booster programme to those aged 50 and over in England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

The UK government yesterday faced a torrent of calls to make the Covid-19 vaccine mandatory to continue education and work. Prime Minister Boris Johnson and his Pakistani counterpart.

The present and clear danger posed by Delta variant

A new study from the journal Nature has given one more reason to be worried about the rapid spread of the Delta variant of Covid-19. The finding is that people with the variant can transmit the virus for about 1.8 days, which is longer than the 0.8 days for the earlier version of Covid-19. As a result, the Delta variant is more contagious, in part, because infected individuals can carry and shed more virus than previous versions, observed Dr. Joseph C. Gilbert of the New York University School of Medicine, who led the study. These findings reinforce public health advisories from earlier in the pandemic. These include戴口罩、勤洗手、保持社交距离等措施，以减少传播风险。

The findings are based on a study of 400 people with the Delta variant in the United States, who were followed for an average of 6.7 days. The researchers found that the median time from symptom onset to virus shedding was 3.7 days for those with the earlier version of Covid-19, but 4.2 days for those with the Delta variant. The findings are consistent with previous studies that found that people with the Delta variant are more likely to experience symptoms, which can include fever, cough, and fatigue. Additionally, the study suggests that nearly three-quarters of infections with Delta happen during the presymptomatic phase, the research suggests. The Delta strain is more transmissible, the index case infected individuals can carry and shed more virus than previous versions, observed Dr. Joshua T. Ginsberg of the University of Utah School of Medicine. He said that the findings support the need for continued public health measures, such as mask-wearing and social distancing, to reduce transmission of the virus.
Turkey can’t take new refugee burden: FM

Turkish never take the burden of a new wave from Afgh. president, Foreign Minister Mevlüt Çavusoglu and others on well talks with his German counterparts, as concerns about a new migrant wave are on the horizon.

The events in Afghanistan have fuelled worries in the European Union of a repeat of the 2015 refugee crisis, when nearly a million refugees and migrants crossed the Aegean Sea to Greece from Turkey before travelling north to wealthier Union of a repeat of the 2015 refugee crisis, when nearly a million refugees and migrants crossed the Aegean Sea to Greece from Turkey before travelling north to wealthier countries.

But there are concerns in Europe, as well as in some Afghan states, that too much of the migration from Afghanistan into a crisis and that lessons should be learned from the Syrian refugee crisis.

“You can see that we do not have a full scale of Syria and that we do not have this problem in the same way as the EU,” the German foreign minister said in Berlin yesterday.

“This is the question of how we take the Afghan refugees burden as an EU country,” he said.

Turkish cabinet has set up a group of ministers to deal with the situation in Afghanistan and to explore options for a solution.

The group will be chaired by Interior Minister Suleyman Soylu and will include representatives from the Ministry of National Defense, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Development, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Economy and Finance, and the Ministry of Energy and Natural Resources.

The group will report to the Turkish cabinet and will make recommendations on how to deal with the situation in Afghanistan.

The group was formed following a phone call between Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan and his French counterpart Emmanuel Macron.

“I understand the concerns of our European partners, but we cannot be the only ones to shoulder this burden,” Erdogan said in a statement.

The group will focus on finding a way to integrate Afghan refugees into Turkish society and to ensure their social and economic rights.

The group will also discuss the possibility of establishing a special fund to support Afghan refugees in Turkey.

The group will present its recommendations to the Turkish cabinet in the coming weeks.

President Erdogan has previously said that Turkey is not able to bear the full burden of Afghan refugees alone and that the international community should share the responsibility.

The group’s recommendations will be presented to the Turkish cabinet in the coming weeks, and the government will decide on the next steps.

“The School Health Department has published the back to school protocol for academic year 2021-2022 under the theme ‘All our schools will return to normal’,” Dr. Fatma Al-Mansour, the head of the School Health Department, said.

“We will highlight the most common infections and observance diseases among students and how to combat and prevent them, including COVID-19, chikungunya, influenza, leprosy, tetanus, diphtheria, measles and tuberculosis,” the official stated.

“The aim of this awareness and reporting health problems and incidents, and what we can do to avoid them. There are many activities and educational initiatives being launched to improve the health awareness of students about the most common diseases,” said Al-Mansour.

“This includes to follow the most important ways of disease prevention in all environment and places by preparing flyers, educational messages, colouring books and informative posters,” he explained.

Dr Al-Dahnaim noted that parents also will be involved in the health and informational messages on health issues.

“Those who would like to emphasize the role of parents in preparing their children to return to school. They must ensure an early bed time, maintain a healthy diet and cut off child’s access to harmful resources,” she said.

“Parents should help their children to return to school safely and prevent the spread of the virus among them,” she continued.

She also said that the Health Department will continue to provide educational programmes to students throughout the year.

Aman continues ‘Drop Off Your Kids’ campaign

Qatar’s Health Ministry is launching a national campaign that will run until the end of 2021. The campaign aims to emphasize the importance of proper health and hygiene practices among children and to raise awareness about the risks of spreading COVID-19.

The campaign, titled ‘Drop Off Your Kids’, is part of Qatar's efforts to prevent the spread of the virus and promote healthy habits among children.

The campaign will provide children with educational materials and resources to help them understand the importance of good hygiene and health practices.

The campaign will also promote the use of face masks and encourage regular hand washing, social distancing, and other preventive measures to reduce the risk of transmission.

The campaign will be supported by various partners, including schools, parents, and local communities. It will be promoted through various channels, including social media, public service announcements, and school communications.

The campaign is an important step in Qatar's efforts to control the spread of COVID-19 and protect the health and safety of children.

Qatar one step closer to herd immunity

The Health Ministry of Qatar has announced that the country is one step closer to herd immunity by the end of 2021. This is due to the high vaccination rate among the population, with more than 70% of adults having received at least one dose of the vaccine.

The ministry has also called on all eligible individuals to get vaccinated to ensure the country reaches herd immunity as soon as possible.

The ministry has urged all eligible individuals to get vaccinated to ensure the country reaches herd immunity as soon as possible. This is in line with the government's ongoing efforts to control the spread of COVID-19 and protect the health and safety of citizens.

The ministry has also emphasized the importance of adhering to COVID-19 preventive measures, including wearing masks, maintaining social distancing, and getting tested regularly.

Qatar's Health Ministry has also been working closely with international organizations and partners to ensure effective cooperation in the fight against COVID-19.

The ministry has praised the role of the private sector in supporting the vaccination campaign and encouraging people to get vaccinated.

The ministry has also thanked all those who have supported the campaign and expressed gratitude to all health workers for their dedication and hard work.
