After a cycle of being able to play again for Newell’s and the idea of six points in the same zone, but they are in the third and final step if they do not come to Madrid.

In an interview with Catalan media outlet Gestió, Messi had suggested he did not want to have any more problems with him playing football in Argentina, “It was not the coach’s fault because I thought he wanted to stay here. “Messi said.

FIFA Threatens to Suspend Iran over Women's Football Ban

The Islamic republic has barred women from watching football matches, but that hasn’t stopped them from finding a way to cheer on their team — from the stands.

Thousands of Iranian women have been bought electronic tickets for the Iran vs Cambodia match in Tehran, the first time women have been allowed to attend a football match in the country.

Women were not allowed to attend matches in Iran until 2020, when they were given a limited number of tickets for the World Cup qualifier against Cambodia.

The official Iranian football organisation, Iransport, has been criticized for its treatment of women, with many calling for more rights and opportunities for women in sport.

Despite the ban, women have found ways to support their national team, with some purchasing electronic tickets and joining male supporters in the stands.

Some Iranian women have even been seen wearing male attire to attend matches, while others have put on headscarves and covered their faces to avoid detection.

Iranian sports journalist Raha Pourbakhsh says women have been buying tickets for months, using social media to spread the word.

"It's not easy," she said. "But we want to show our support and we want our team to have a good result."
Wales weather a Fiji storm to reach quarter-finals

‘They’ve got some unpredictable individuals and we just had to stay in it’

Wales head coach Warren Gatland said yesterday, as his team began to find space, that: ‘For us it was disappointing to lose 39-10, resulting in our first loss of four pool games. Our forward domination has been pretty hard in the next 24-48 hours... we’ll see how the medics are going to be working into all their games... we’ve been able to put our best performance,’ he added.

Scotland will be unusually well-prepared to bat the good rugby weather and the suburb of Tokorozawa will be the home of the Rugby World Cup being staged in the Chiba area. Hagibis ‘will bring the winds to the park as much as we possibly could... and our fitness showed when they tackled and kept the ball on the ground, turning right up to this competition.’

Scottland will have to look on Japan on Sunday for their Rugby World Cup quarter-finals, coach Gregor Townsend has warned. ‘We’ve got to make sure we deliver our best performance,’ he added.

Scotland opened their campaign with a 27-20 defeat to the United States in Kumagaya, which was followed by a 31-12 win against Russia to set up a showdown with Australia.

Japans are under in their three Pool D matches, having no more than one win, but their prospects are far from bleak.

South Africa coach Rassie Erasmus said: ‘They’ve been great numbers and at the end of the day, we can’t get any more numbers. They’ll win the tournament, and they’ll be in the final. And they will win if we play them.’

Erasmus admitted it is important to take the lead, ‘to keep the ball on the ground, to get some numbers and then to create opportunities.’

Lewis Hamilton can land knockout blow at Japanese GP

As the FIA announced on Thursday that the Russian Grand Prix has been canceled for the second year in a row, two-time world champion Lewis Hamilton went on the offensive to claim that the race was "the one I loved the most as a child," in a message that could be interpreted as a dig at his main rival, Max Verstappen.

"We've been quick in Singapore, and I just want to come out of the weekend with momentum," Hamilton said after winning the Russian Grand Prix, which took place in the picturesque setting of the Nordschleife in the northeastern part of Germany. "I just need to think about how we can close the gap on the start line." Hamilton added: "I just don't try to think about it. It's getting harder and harder as the season goes on."

The win was Hamilton's fourth in a row, tying him with Michael Schumacher for the most consecutive victories in a single season. It also handed him the championship lead, 16 points ahead of Verstappen, who finished second in the race.

However, the complexity of the role of a male warrior has evolved over time, and modern culture often portrays the male warrior as a protector and a provider, rather than just a fighter. This evolution has been influenced by various factors, such as changes in societal expectations and the broader cultural context.
