Final won’t be won with ‘wonderful tries’: Erasmus

Wales coach Warren Gatland said he believed South Africa coach Rassie Erasmus meant ‘wonderful tries’ for those that gave their all, not so much for those that sit on the bench.”

Wales coach Warren Gatland said he believed South Africa could boast England in the final, although he admitted they might need to be more aggressive.

“South Africa is a team you can’t start against, you have to play well first and you have to make yourself so good that they have to respond. That’s what we’ve got to do.”

After four straight losses to South Africa, the Welsh are eyeing their first World Cup semi-final since 2011.

Wales coach Warren Gatland has already pledged his own self-inflicted revenge after his side’s heart-breaking World Cup final defeat to New Zealand 12 months ago.

“Tackling is possible. You must place the body correctly.”

He knows how to deliver on his promise and that is why he has become a winner, it’s why he’s a winner.”

For more on the change of law and zero tolerance on the tackle, see next week’s copy.

Liverpool battle back to beat Spurs as Man U win away

Arsenal squander a 2-0 lead at home to Crystal Palace to draw 2-2

Liverpool continued their fine La Liga form by battling back to beat Spurs 2-1 at Anfield on Saturday.

The match started brightly for the hosts, with Harry Kane scoring the opening goal after 9 minutes. However, Spurs maintained their high tempo and pressure throughout the game, forcing the Reds to defend deep and put in a solid performance.

In the 30th minute, Liverpool equalised through a Simon Mignolet error, giving Spurs a 1-1 scoreline at the half-time break.

But the Reds were not done yet. In the 70th minute, Sadio Mane scored his third goal of the season, sending the Anfield crowd into raptures.

The goal was a result of a fine passing combination, with Mane receiving the ball on the edge of the box before coolly rounding Joe Hart and finishing calmly into the net.

This win solidified Liverpool’s top position in the league, leaving them six points clear of second-placed Manchester City.
