Gauff the ideal new poster girl, says Serena Williams

‘Soon she’ll be on other girls’ walls. It’s nice, because it will keep us going from the next generation to next generation’

Cori Gauff of the US celebrates winning her first round match against Venus Williams. At bottom, Serena Williams.

Murray, Serena form Wimbledon dream team ny Murray and Serena Williams will form a mixed doubles team at Wimbledon when the tournament gets underway next month. Murray, who has described himself as the ‘greatest tennis player ever to have lived’, was at his best in a tennis court in London yesterday as he prepared for his return to the tournament. His form was at its best and he dominated the roost over both Wimbledon and Australian Open finals.

The two-time Wimbledon champion’s partnership with Williams will make them instant favourites for the title. Murray said: “We’ve got a big plan for this. We’ve got a lot to do. We’re going to be the best team in the world.”

Williams, who will play her second match in the tournament, has not played a match since she lost to her sister in the first round last year. She said: “I’m really excited to be back. It’s the biggest stage in tennis.”

The pair have been training together and are looking forward to the tournament.

Real hawk-eye Rufus winging from Wimbledon to Lord’s

Hawk-eye technique long been a feature in cricket and has now also been adapted for use in tennis. Rufus, in ruling the skies over Nadal and Murray, has been described as a “pigeon hawk”. The birds are now working in tandem with the hawk-eye technology to keep track of the ball’s movements.

Rufus has had his work cut out for him during the first round due to fading light. He had to dive into a tree, full force, and they scatter. He is the ideal new poster girl for a younger generation.

The new retractable roof on Centre Court will be a blessing for him, “said Rufus. “It’s like a new playground for us.”

Rufus is announced on Wednesday.

Tokyo Olympic stadium to open in December

The Tokyo Olympic stadium will open in December. The new stadium is being built as the main venue for the Tokyo 2020 Olympics and will host the opening and closing ceremonies.

The stadium, designed by Japanese architect Kengo Kuma, aims to have the roof come into operation.条件 look like it’s going to be a pre-Wimbledon media day. The 12,000-seater Court One will be held at the same venue. The stadium will also host the athletics finals.

The Musashino Forest Sports Plaza, a venue to be used at Tokyo 2020, was recently opened.

More than 90 percent of the construction on each of eight new venues to be used at Tokyo 2020 will be completed by the end of next year. Construction will continue at the National Stadium, set to be the main venue for the Games, was designed by Japanese architect Kengo Kuma and aims to be ready for competition with nations.

Wood collected from all of Japan’s 47 prefectures has been used to build the stadium. The wood is said to be the most sustainable building material ever used in a major stadium.

21. “The work for this stadium has been going on for three years and the construction is on track,” said National Hadm Development Director Takahashi. “About 90 percent of the construction has been completed. We have now worked on the roof and the facility equipment.”

The grass and track had yet to be laid but it was expected to be completed in the next month. The Olympic stadium is one of eight new venues to be used at Tokyo 2020. Of which are to be located in Tokyo and its surrounding areas.

The canoe slalom venue is set to be completed by the end of November while the new rowing venue has been completed.

Qatari pro boxer Sheikh Fahad does not want to be caught unawares as he looks to extend his 10-bout unbeaten run

By Marius Racaru

June 27, 2019

A 31-year-old’s hunger for extension is evident.

Ismael Salas, for instance.

He was knocked out in his 10th bout – July 17 and last bout – in the presence of Sheikh Fahad and Abdelwahab Al-Mahan in Doha.

While the opponents are not to be confused, Sheikh Fahad is looking forward to the two bouts as learning experiences.

“Both the bouts are extremely important for learning, learning more and getting more tools under my belt,” he told Gulf Times.

“IT is critical to keep the activity flowing at these stages. I use to go every style, move, punch, move, switch, etc. I try to understand my opponent and how they think. I have seen all kinds of boxers face off. This time, Sheikh Fahad found himself facing off with a Spanish boxer.

Salas, a double Spanish champion, suffered a hammer blow during his Lightweight bout, which kicked off on 14 June. Qatar’s lightweight boxerhe is a great step forward. He was one to support Spanish boxer Ismael Salas.

Fahad knew me even before I came on the scene, which has been a blessing for me. I am 80 years old. He isn’t just a coach, he is a mentor, a friend, a very different relationship. He has evolved as well, and we have done this thing together.

I was working every day in the gym with Salas, working on my body, my hand placement, my speed, my 心态 control (all these things), and I looked forward to show a higher level of my craft.

I have been fighting with such a high profile, so this is a very big event for me.

Salas feels he is more, what ticks and what does not, and he is very much interested in Spanish boxing.

The Sheikh and him are friends, he is a mentor, a friend, it is a very different relationship. He has evolved as well, and we have done this thing together.

I will be training in the same system, he is my boxing career. WBC and WBA try requirements, they built a huge network of contacts within the boxing community and so I know who to bring, understand the different styles, understand my opponents, who are very different.
