Australia look to Smith again as hosts take charge

Visitors were 124-3 – a lead of just 34 runs – when bad light stopped play.

Smith, on 41, was struck on the side of the head by a bouncer after a previous delivery that cut back sharply to the wicket. He was taken off by Australia’s all-rounder Ben Stokes.

But a ninth-wicket partnership of 56 between Buttler and Woakes 1-13 (Warner), failed to hold a tough slip chance off Moeen. England lost three wickets for 14 runs, with Woakes adding 1-13 (Warner) to the side of the head by a Stokes bouncer after missing an inside edge. He was taken off by Moeen Ali.

Smith, on 41, was struck on the side of the head by a bouncer after a previous delivery that cut back sharply to the wicket. He was taken off by Australia’s all-rounder Ben Stokes.

Smith’s arrival at the crease prompted a huge cheer from English fans who feared the day had been lost with three wickets for 59. England had not been able to hit three sixes in a row, and this was a welcome return to the big run feast.

Smith was caught behind for 11, but Buttler, who had been caught out for 72, was still on 72.

Stokes was called off duty after missing an inside edge off Moeen. He was taken off by Moeen Ali.

Moeen lasted just five balls before being clean bowled by a short ball by Stokes, who ended with 4-194 and 6-296 for the day. India’s fielding was superb, with four wickets taken, and the visitors were left to win the match.

India will be seeking to clinch their first Test series victory in Australia since 1988. They are now 3-2 up in the series and need one more win to seal the victory.
Cardiff and Fulham beaten on Championship return

On Friday, Championship newcomers Luton celebrated a first-time to-be-confirmed win at the first try, with a 2-1 victory over Middlesbrough. Cardiff got off to a great start in their second away game, with their opening goal coming in the second half, thanks to a spectacular strike from the French champion Kylian Mbappé. It was a frustrating finale for former England striker Enner Valencia, who scored with five minutes remaining. The result ensures the Bluebirds remains unbeaten in the season so far.

United told Lukaku to delete controversial tweet

By Ron Fisher

Manchester United have released a statement to the social media account of striker Romelu Lukaku, confirming that the player has been instructed to delete a controversial tweet he posted on Wednesday.

The tweet, which was later removed, appeared to be a response to a report suggesting that Lukaku was considering a move to Inter Milan. The statement from United said that the club had taken note of the incident and would be taking appropriate action.

Rennes magic as PSG claim Champions Trophy

It was revenge, of sorts, for PSG after a loss on penalties to the same side in the French Cup final last season. PSG were the dominant team in the match, with a 2-1 victory on aggregate, but it was Rennes who came out on top in the penalty shootout.

Cardiff whilst Fulham fell at Barnsley 1-0. The 20-year-old superstar duly rose to the fanfare in the second half as Mbappe's second goal of the season confirmed his place in the team's starting XI. The Frenchman had missed the previous game due to a suspension, but came into the game when it was at a dangerous time for the hosts and he delivered.

Klopp warns Liverpool to deal blow against Liverpool transfers in recent years, the Spaniard says, this week when Guardiola hit back at Liverpool's manager. "We have to deal with the fact that the club attracts like this," Klopp said.

With City yet to win the Champions League and Liverpool without an English title since 1990, it is possible they would gladly settle for a top-four grouping this season. But Guardiola knows competition is fierce, particularly since the club's previous Premier League titles since 2014. "There are no doubts, it's not just about the Premier League," the German man said.

"He's going to be in an incredible challenge and Liverpool is not the only team," Guardiola said.

Guardiola's sentiment is that City are one of a handful of clubs who live in a transfer "fantasy land".

"We will be nicer this season. These are the transfers we did last season. There are no doubts," Klopp said. "Guardiola, who you havetodo;" said Guardiola, "you have todo..." and Guardiola,

"Do Liverpool have a transfer plan?" Klopp was asked. "We have a transfer plan. We have a transfer plan," Klopp said.

But Guardiola's side did not have a transfer plan. "We are not going to win any new recruits," Klopp said.

"But while desire and expectations are high at Anfield, Klopp knows he cannot guarantee success. "It's very important and extremely important," Klopp said. "But the champions didn't lose a player, apart from (Vincent Kompany).""}

Froome undeterred by injuries, eyes still on Tour crown

‘It’s safe to say I’m ahead of all the predictions made initially of how long that would take,’ he said. "The news from the surgeons when he said I could make a full recovery and that cycling might be a possibility — that’s all I wanted to hear at that point."

After surgery, Froome was initially just looking to get on the road and the first responders was to get out of his head. It was incredibly lucky not to have suffered more broken bones," Froome, who has seven Grand Tours victories to his name (UAE, 2017; Movistar, 2018; Team Sky, 2012-16), said. "I am just happy to be able to get on the bike to get to the start line in this Tour (2020) and be a similar role in the peloton than I was this year — no tour.

"That’s what’s driving me at the moment is to compete in the Tour again and have strong competition from within the team, from riders young and old next year with both Bernal and Julian Alaphilippe in the team as to who is team leader for the moment."

"It was scary when I came down the mountain — I was lying in that bed, “ he said. "I can remember speaking to my team and my first question was, ‘When can I get back to the training?” “We’re very quickly put that out of my mind. They made it very clear that I wasn’t moving out of my mind. They made it very clear that I wasn’t moving down the hill."

"I can remember thinking to myself: ‘The only other option is that I’ll have to do this treatment and the operation and fall and hope I come out on the other side of the mountain still intact,’” Froome said. "But it’s been incredible to see the way I’ve been able to recover and come back to the training and then be able to be successful in the Tour.

"The dream is now to see SUP as an Olympic event, “ said Baxendale. “It’s been amazing and just really heartwarming and motivating for me to see how much I’ve been missed in the race this year "It’s motivation for me to want to get back there in the future.

Ahead by a century, US storms to 100 Pan Am medals

July 8, 1924 is the day that the US broke an Olympic milestone: It won 100 medals at the Paris Games, becoming the first country to exceed 100 medals in a single Games. The feat is considered one of the greatest sporting achievements in history.

The US had been a dominant force in Olympic sports for many years, and its success in Paris was a testament to the country’s athletic prowess and dedication to excellence. The American athletes, who included such stars as swimmer Johnny Weissmuller and runner Jimmie Thomas, won medals in a variety of sports, including boxing, swimming, gymnastics, and track and field.

The Paris Games were the first to be held after World War I, and the US had emerged as a global superpower. The country was proud to showcase its athletic talent and compete against the world’s best athletes. The American athletes were well-prepared and in top form, and they were able to win golds in a variety of events.

The US had won 43 medals at the 1920 Games in Antwerp, but the Paris Games were a quantum leap forward. The US team of 1924 was the first to approach the 100 medals mark, and it set a new standard for Olympic success.

The US has continued to excel in Olympic sports since then, and its athletes have brought home hundreds of medals from the Games. The 1924 Paris Games were a turning point in Olympic history, and they remain a shining example of American sportsmanship and athletic excellence.

Verstappen takes his first pole in Hungary

Budapest, Hungary

Red Bull's Max Verstappen took pole position for the Hungarian Grand Prix on Saturday as Lewis Hamilton's Mercedes suffered a qualifying blunder.

Verstappen, taking a record-equalling seventh pole in 2022, was nearly 0.683 seconds faster than the runner-up.

The Dutchman, who was on pole for the 2022 Austrian Grand Prix last month, was able to start the race at full throttle.

"This was a tough one", he said. "I worked extremely hard over the winter to get my first pole so I'm really happy for the lads".

Verstappen was the first to install himself at the front row, despite making bad mistakes in the first row and allowing his car to move away, resulting in a quick change.

"I've been very lucky to go again and I have to thank the lads for what they did and the 20-year-old Verstappen, who scored his first victory last weekend in France, was sharing the fastest feeling for the lead.

"It was a completely unnecessary mistake at that moment in qualifying, and that's two mistakes in Grand Prix races".

Teammate Sebastian Vettel will be up fifth, with Red Bull teammate Alexander Albon sixth in the absence of the injured Sergio Perez.
