Gasol saves Spain to set up World Cup final with Argentina

Toronto Raptors centre finishes with 33 points, six rebounds and four assists. Spain jubilantly emerged in Beijing to finish with Argentina

Gasol, the Toronto Raptors centre, finished with 33 points, six rebounds and four assists after stepping up when his country needed him most. "I was called to step up when my country needed me the most," Gasol said. "I know that it was not the easiest physically (going from the NBA to the World Cup) and I know that victory against Argentina on Sunday will cap the perfect season for me and for Spain."

The South Americans led 39-32 at half-time and were never in serious danger of surrendering their advantage after that. They finished with 28 points, 13 rebounds and four assists. Red-hot Patty Mills, one of the players of the World Cup, was unforgettable to be on the losing side, leading Australia with 34 points. He did enough to raise a few eyebrows with his second-leg whirlwind that would put the match on hold. "We won't give up until the last second. We have every opportunity to win the game," Gasol said.

Argentina opened the game up with a 15-7 run over the first mini-set, the age-old story of going from the NBA to the World Cup. The Spaniard played a key role in the Raptors' run to the NBA finals and knows that victory against Argentina on Sunday will cap the perfect season for him and for Spain. "I know that it would not be easy physically (going from the NBA to the World Cup) but it's definitely worth it. Not because of the final but because of all those times, that means a lot," said the 34-year-old.

Upset-merchant Gautland eyes one last defeat with Wales

So much has changed in the world since Gatland took over the coaching reigns with Wales

The longest-serving coach among the top four nations since he took over after the 2005 World Cup, the only major title he has not won is a glistening career that includes a string of Grand Slams as well as two titles in the Six Nations.

Wales conceded a record low of just two tries in the first of those Grand Slam games in 2010 and has not kept a defensive line-up since. The first encounter between the two sides was sponsored by the Japan Rugby Football Union.

Critics of early-era Gatland, including "Warrior" in hisTplitsu manage to score a try at the end of the game, his blood.
