Qatar ready to host one of the best World Cups ever: Cazorla

'I've come here to do my best and help the club win titles. I'm happy in Qatar and it's the best place to end my career.'

The 2022 FIFA World Cup is just months away and the Qatari football community is buzzing with excitement. The country is preparing for one of the most anticipated football tournaments in history, and the expectations are high.

In a recent interview, Andres Iniesta, a former Spanish midfield legend, expressed his admiration for Qatar's football infrastructure and expressed his confidence that the tournament will live up to the hype.

"I've come here to do my best and help the club win titles. I'm happy in Qatar and it's the best place to end my career," Iniesta said. "Qatar has invested heavily in football and the country is ready to host a world-class tournament. I'm sure the fans will be treated to a fantastic event."
Portugal forward Ronaldo ‘fit’ for Andorra friendly after Lazio niggle

“Ronaldo, 36, who limped off with 15 minutes to go on Wednesday, we have to see the clinical picture,” coach Fernando Santos said. Ronaldo was ruled out of last week’s Nations League win over Iceland with a groin injury. The Portugal manager said: “We will discuss whether he is fit enough for this game. The decisions must be made by the medical team.”

His return is a boost for Portugal ahead of next month’s World Cup play-off against North Macedonia. The match is scheduled for November 11 at Riga’s Riga Arena and Portugal travel to Latvia on November 16 to face Estonia in the Nations League.

“Ronaldo’s men top their group on goal difference after 3-0 win over Iceland last week,” the European Football website said.

“After a 3-0 win over Iceland last week, Portugal remain unbeaten in the Nations League group stage. The team has scored 15 goals and conceded three. The quality of Portugal’s attacking players is evident and Ronaldo is back to his best.”

Patriots top winless Jets on kicker Folk's last-second FG

IT WASN'T PRETTY BUT IT'S A WIN

The NFL and the NBA are the only professional sports leagues left in the United States. In 2020, the NFL decided to announce a deal on 72-game season. Despite the reduced schedule, the NFL did not make any changes to the way the league operates. However, the decision to shorten the season created controversy among players, coaches, and fans. Some argued that the shorter season would lead to a more competitive and exciting product, while others felt that it was a concession to the New England Patriots, who had been the most successful team in the league for the past decade.

The Patriots were looking to repeat as Super Bowl champions, and they had a number of weapons on offense. MVP quarterback Tom Brady was back under center, with wide receiver Julian Edelman and running back Sony Michel providing support. On defense, the team had a solid secondary led by cornerbacks Stephon Gilmore and J.C. Jackson. The Patriots had the league's best defense, allowing just 11.9 points per game in 2019.

In Week 1, the Patriots opened against the winless New York Jets, who had a new head coach in Adam Gase. The Jets were one of the NFL's worst teams, with a 4-12 record the previous season. Gase had been hired away from the Miami Dolphins, who were also struggling.

The game started off well for the Patriots, who scored on their opening drive thanks to a 74-yard pass from Brady to Edelman. However, the Jets were able to weather the storm and stay competitive for the rest of the game. In the second half, the Patriots took over, scoring 20 unanswered points to put the game out of reach. Edelman had another big game, catching 11 passes for 145 yards and a touchdown. The final score was 38-3 for the Patriots.

Despite the victory, the game was far from pretty. The Patriots committed three turnovers, including an interception by the Jets' Marcus Maye that set up New York's lone touchdown. The defense struggled to contain the Jets' offense, allowing 448 total yards. However, the win was a crucial 1-0 start to the season for the Patriots, who were looking to continue their dominance in the AFC East division.

In the end, the Patriots were able to bounce back from their Week 1 loss to the Jets and go on to win the division and reach the Super Bowl for the second straight year. The team showed their resilience and determination, even as the schedule shortened and the goals of the season changed.

For the Jets, the loss marked the beginning of a tough season. The team would go on to finish last in the division with a 4-12 record, their first losing season in five years. However, the experience would serve the team well in the future, as they continued to rebuild and improve their roster.
New Zealand-born Johnny Sexton, who makes his 100th Test appearance at Eden Park this week, will form a 1st XV partnership with Caelan Doris. Sexton, Ireland’s all-time top try scorer in Tests, will play his 100th match and his first Test since the 2019 World Cup, against France on Saturday. He has been an integral part of the team that has won the World Cup twice and the Six Nations Championship title in 2018. Sexton’s experience and defensive abilities will be crucial in helping Ireland overcome the tough challenge. Sexton has played in every Six Nations campaign since 2008 and has been a consistent performer for the team. He has a strong record in the championship, having scored 13 tries in 32 appearances. His selection comes as a welcome addition to the team, given the absence of the injured in the back three. Sexton will look to add to his try-scoring tally as he leads Ireland to a successful campaign.

Statistical Insights

- Sexton has scored 13 tries in 32 appearances for Ireland in the Six Nations.
- He has played in every Six Nations campaign since 2008.
- Sexton’s defensive abilities will be crucial in helping Ireland overcome the tough challenge.
- His selection comes as a welcome addition to the team.

Commentation

Sexton’s selection is a testament to his consistency and reliability. He has been a key player for Ireland in the past and will be expected to lead the team with his经验和 leadership. His presence will provide the team with a much-needed boost in the attacking third of the field. Sexton is known for his ability to score try-scoring opportunities and will be a crucial player in helping Ireland secure victory against France. His selection is a nod to his continued contributions to the team and his ability to perform under pressure.

Tokyo Olympics organisers hail vaccine news as ‘relief’

AP

Tokyo Olympics organisers hailed vaccine news as a ‘relief’ yesterday but admitted that a successful shot would make them work significantly harder, and welcomed the “positive momentum” shown by several athletes who have tested positive.

Olympic officials have regularly said that a coronavirus vaccine is not a precondition for staging the Games, now postponed until July 2021.

But with Iannone’s appeal against the ban overturned, and with a successful vaccine still a ways off, they insisted that the postponement and a subsequent ban meant that a successful shot would make their task significantly harder.

“I feel like I have been playing a very good season,” Iannone said yesterday.
