real star for footballer Barca at the start of a new controversy. A Buenos Aires-based news agency made a splash as it reported that he is negotiating with the president of Manchester City, whose officials have told him that they are willing to pay him a salary of $500,000 per week. The report also claimed that Neymar is considering a move to the Premier League, where he could play alongside Wayne Rooney or Raheem Sterling.

The news comes just weeks after Neymar’s cousin, Rafa Nadal, revealed that he had been approached by a Dubai-based businessman about taking on a role in the sport. Nadal, who is known for his high-profile lifestyle, is reported to have turned down the offer, but his interest in football management is growing.

Josoor to prioritise training, education of key groups in the run-up to Qatar 2022

The IOC has said the status of AIBA would be reviewed after the Tokyo Games, which were postponed until 2021 due to the novel coronavirus pandemic. The suspension is set to last until the end of the year.

Josoor also conducted a two-day webinar on new revenue streams and Covid-19 continuity plans for the football industry, developed for the senior management of members of the Asian Football Confederation (AFC) and its member federations.

Focusing on prioritising training, education of key groups in the run-up to Qatar 2022, Josoor Institute will partner with the Qatar Olympic Committee (QOC) and other national federations to develop professional diploma programmes specifically for our partners. In February 2021, we organised a workshop for executives from the Qatar Executive Director, Josoor Institute and SDA Bocconi School of Management, to make sure the design, development and delivery of our programmes, starting in February 2021, are now open.

Josoor Institute Executive Director Afraa al-Noaimi.

Josoor Institute also collaborated with the National Volunteer Strategy in the design and development of some of its programmes, including volunteer training and on-line training for volunteers in the run-up to the tournament.

In parallel, Josoor Institute established a special online presence to allow members of any member federation to register for our programmes, including sports and events management, education and research, youth, environmental sustainability and sports diplomacy. These were developed in collaboration with other teams in the 3C, including Sustaining and Connecting Asia-Oceania, including Laos.

Towards the end of this year, we launched an online event that brought togetherńsk and speakers and athletes and event management organisations. The event was timed to coincide with the run-up to the tournament. Giving forward, we will continue to play a strategic role in the work of training domains, including volunteers and other target groups, which will include, for example, the Olympic movement and beyond.

In order for it to be recognised by the IOC, it must have a fully functional independent anti-doping system in place by May 2021.
