Pakhtakor have been inarguably the biggest talent factory in the region, with a host of clubs having benefited from the graduates of the academy. But there is no denying that the club has enjoyed a tremendous amount of success at the domestic level.

With nine domestic league titles, Pakhtakor have been the dominant force in Uzbekistan football for the vast majority of the last decade. But when it comes to AFC Champions League success, Pakhtakor have been lesser successful.

Pakhtakor have only reached the semi-finals of the AFC Champions League once, in 2003, when they lost to Iraq’s Al-Hasawiya. The club’s best performance in the tournament has been reaching the quarter-finals in 2012, when they lost 2-0 to Saudi Arabia’s Al-Hilal.

The club has also been a consistent presence in the AFC Champions League, appearing in the group stage 13 times, with the last of those being in the 2018-19 campaign.

In the 2020-21 campaign, Pakhtakor were semi-finalists in the AFC Champions League, losing 2-1 to Saudi Arabia’s Al-Ahli in the semi-finals after extra-time.

Pakhtakor have never been able to get past the quarter-finals, with their best performance being a run to the semi-finals in 2003. The club have also only reached the quarter-finals once, in 2012, when they lost to Al-Hilal of Saudi Arabia.

For a club that has been如此 successful at the domestic level, reaching the semi-finals of the AFC Champions League in 2003 was a major achievement.

Al Nassr's Asiari was thwarted by Al Ain advanced to the 2020 AFC Champions League quarter-finals despite losing to the defending champions and continental record holders Al Ain 1-0 at Al Ain FC's Al-Bab Round of 16 match on Sunday. Asiari's first-half header from a goal from Moroccan top scorer Youssouf M’deni who clinched the only goal of the night at the Education City Stadium with a header on the 1st goal on the board. The most important thing is that we won the match,” said Asiari. We didn't have many chances, but we had a goal. Al Ain is a big team in this competition, you make one mistake and you are out. We did so well but we committed a mistake at the end, we are out.”

Heat scorched Celtics to reach NBA Finals

BASKETBALL

Heat crush Celtics, 110-91

As the Boston Celtics tried to make a late charge, the Miami Heat put the game out of reach with a 41-point third quarter.

The Heat led by as many as 35 points in the third quarter and cruised to a 110-91 victory.

Boston Celtics guard Jayson Tatum scored 24 points, while Miami's Jimmy Butler added 22 points and 12 rebounds.

The Heat's Tyler Herro, who stepped up in the absence of shooting guard Duncan Robinson, scored 19 points, including four 3-pointers.

Miami Heat guard Jimmy Butler led all scorers with 23 points. Butler made 7 of 11 shots from the field and 3 of 4 shots from the free-throw line.

The Heat improved to 15-5 in the playoffs and will face the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA Finals.

"I couldn't let my teammates down like I did in the game before," Butler said. "I feel like we've still yet to realize what we have to do going into the game tonight," Butler said. "It wasn't long before he stripped the ball of the Lakers forward. We have to be near-flawless today and I felt like we did that tonight." Butler added 17 assists, and Marcus Smart had 10 rebounds.

Fittingly, it was Adebayo who jammed in a reverse two-hand shot to put the Heat up by 10 with 3:31 remaining. It was 116-102 with 2:40 remaining.

The Heat's Bam Adebayo scored 32 points on 10-of-14 shooting, and Goran Dragic added 13 for Miami.

Iguodala scored 15 points apiece off the bench, while Butler had 11 assists, and Marcus Smart had 12 rebounds.

"I couldn't let my teammates down like I did in the game before," Butler said. "I couldn't let my teammates down like I did in the game before," Butler said. "I couldn't let my teammates down like I did in the game before," Butler said. "I couldn't let my teammates down like I did in the game before," Butler said.

Butler said the 23-year-old Adebayo's physicality were simply too much for the Lakers.

The Heat led by as many as 29 points at one point in the fourth quarter, but the Lakers led 90-80 with 2:19 left.

"I didn't score my presence was so warranted," Butler said.

"I feel like we've still yet to realize what we have to do going into the game tonight," Butler said. "I didn't score my presence was so warranted," Butler said.

Springboks face hurdles in Championship participation

“We desperately want to play, it will be terrible to go a year without the Springboks playing”

A new-look Springboks squad faces hurdles in their quest for a return to rugby union's highest stage.

The world champions are still recovering from a quarter-final exit against the All Blacks in Wollongong, with their hopes of claiming the Rugby Championship in 2021 hanging by a thread. The Springboks' hopes of retaining the Rugby Championship, which they have won for seven years, have been dashed by a string of injuries and the uncertainty surrounding the start of the season.

“Swafford to victory

Hudson Swafford had a birdie of the 17th with a clutch par on the 18th to win the World Golf Championship in Punta Cana, Dominican Republic.

Swafford, who had missed the cut in the Mercedes-Benz Championship in January, had struggled for form since then. But he put in a solid performance on Sunday to win the event.

“Winning is not always easy,” Swafford said. “You have to work hard for it and put in a lot of effort.”

Swafford had struggled with his putting in recent weeks, but he found his groove on Sunday and shot a 69 to win by two strokes.

“We have been working on our putting a lot,” he said. “It’s been a big part of our game and we’ve been able to improve.”

Swafford's win was his second on the PGA Tour in two weeks and he now moves to 11th in the world rankings.

Horses from QF’s Al Shaqab hit the auction block

By Sports Reporter

The sport of horse racing has not stopped them from taking advantage of the opportunities to own some of the best pure-bred Arabian horses in the world – including those bred by Qatar’s Al Shaqab. Organised by Al Rayyan Equestrian Club, the auction was the first local event of its kind for Al Shaqab-bred horses since the sport club was created in 2008.

The event took place at Qatar Equestrian Federation Indoor Arena, and showcased a group of the most prestigious Arabian horses on offer. There were two separate phases to the event – pre-auction and the auction proper staged by the legendary Al Shaqab. Despite the challenges caused by the pandemic, the event proved a great success, and as soon as one horse entered the arena, it caught the attention of horse trainers, local owners, as the competition to own Arabian horses of the highest calibre became more intense.

The event organised by Al Rayyan Equestrian Club proved to be a highlight for those interested in owning purebred Arabian horses and engaged a number of original bidders as well as international buyers. The prices fetched at the event varied between QR10,000 to QR105,000, which was the highest price fetched at the event. The horses were sold in different categories of mares and foals.

Stewards acted fairly against Hamilton, says FIA

By Sports Reporter

Brit was hit with two five-second penalties for pre-race misdemeanours on Sunday, but Brawn, a former Lewis Hamilton and Mercedes team leader, said yesterday: “The Briton, who is still four points away from a maiden World title, had to be ‘squarely cleaned up’.”

Brawn added: “I won’t go into the fumes, he thought about it and the team have made a decision in the future in the best interests of the drivers.”

Brawn continued: “I don’t think it was dangerous, ‘they’re not doing it on purpose’.”

Mercedes team chief Toto Wolff described it as “difficult” for the Briton to be taken out in such circumstances.

Wolff said he had been “very surprised” at the decision to penalise Hamilton and that Mercedes had been “very surprised” at the decision to penalise Hamilton.

Mercedes, who won with Valters Bottas, were fined 25,000 euros (£22,000) by stewards for clearing Hamilton to practise his title when he did.

The Austrian race on Sunday saw two penalty points, which would have left him perilously close to a race ban, but the stewards overruled the points.
