FIFA chief calls on global community to show solidarity with Afghan refugees

Infantino thanks Qatar for aiding evacuation of Afghan refugees, among them female football players and their families

FIFA President Gianni Infantino has called on the global football community and governments worldwide to offer support in light of the escalating refugee and humanitarian crises in Afghanistan. Infantino, speaking during a visit to the UNHCR regional office in Kabul, urged governments and football federations with ties to Afghanistan to support the country’s efforts to aid refugees and strengthen their national teams. Infantino thanked Qatar for its role in the evacuation efforts, which he called “amazing.”

“The first one who jumped in was Qatar, followed by the EU and the floating ones,” Infantino said. “We need more.”

Qatar has evacuated over 70,000 Afghans since August, more than any other country, and the FIFA President was keen to express his appreciation for the Gulf country’s efforts. In addition, he thanked the Asian government led by Prime Minister Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, which has called on other members of the Asian Football Confederation (AFC) to join the evacuation efforts.

“The last train is not the last train,” Infantino added. “We need commitment by all to get these people out.”

South Africa's off-side off-spinner Klaasen claimed nine wickets as the Proteas thumped the West Indies to secure a 10-wicket win in the second T20 international. The tourists were bundled out for 143 in their 20 overs, with the only two significant scores coming from Aiden Markram (51) and Tabraiz Shamsi (34). The hosts were never in any serious trouble and coasted to victory with 10 overs to spare.

Arsen
Aspetar cements its position as a world leader on prevention of injuries and protecting athlete health

Aspetar will take part in the 68th IOC World Congress on Prevention of Injury and Illness in Sport in Mexico from the November 20-22, 2023.

This conference, originally scheduled for March 2020 and postponed to November 2022 due to the Covid-19 outbreak, brings together specialists interested in injury and illness prevention.

It is intended for individuals and organizations with an interest in the clinical and research aspects of the broad field of sports medicine and science.

Ethical High-level deportists from Aspetar will present their research, case studies, informative panels and discussions, with expert speakers included to discuss injury and illness prevention.

The attending experts will offer insights obtained through real-life case discussions, on topics including the development of high-valued partnerships with leading authorities in field sports, case studies as well as case studies and statistical information to promote the athlete’s health through prevention of injury and illness.

Our participation in such a prestigious event demonstrates Aspetar’s commitment to the sports community.

The conference on November 2023 Aspetar created a sustainable long-term program on injury and illness prevention, the Aspetar Sports Injury and Illness Prevention Program (ASIPR), which is based on the two key elements of prevention and detection.

ASIPR’s objectives and activities are closely aligned with those of the IOC. Since 2015, Aspetar has been recognized as an IOC Taskforce of the IOC World Conference on Prevention of Injury and Protection of Athlete Health since November 2013.

The IOC World Congress on Prevention of Injury and Illness in Sport will be held in Doha, Qatar on November 20-22, 2023.

Aspetar’s clinicians have participated in the world conference, including several IOC Athlete Support Program (ASPP) Sport Scientists.

Our participation in such a prestigious event demonstrates Aspetar’s commitment to the sports community.

We are excited to be part of this conference and look forward to seeing many of you there.

We welcome the opportunity to discuss injury prevention and protection with all attendees.
