‘Al Bayt’s design honours Qatar’s history, culture and heritage’

Al Bayt features a mesmerising design inspired by the tents traditionally used by nomadic people across the Gulf region.

The 60,000-seat Al Bayt Stadium will take on the role of Kingfisher in the group stage of the World Cup with its unique design that is inspired by the traditional nomadic tent (or ‘Bayt’). The stadium is built using material recovered from construction waste, which adds to Qatar’s National Green Initiatives. Its design is a tribute to the traditional ‘Bayt’ structures found across the Gulf region, symbolising the unity and strength of the region.

What's the significance of the design of Al Bayt Stadium?

What challenges did you face during the construction of the stadium?

The largest challenge we faced was the wind climate of the stadium. This is the first and only stadium in the world to be covered with a membrane from the outside. We had to carefully consider the wind speed, the wind speed, the wind direction and the wind climate. Thankfully, we have a wall of windows all around the stadium which helps to reduce the wind climate.

What sustainability measures were put in place during the construction of the stadium?

The concept of sustainability is very important to us, so we made sure to implement sustainability measures in every aspect of the construction. This includes reduced energy consumption, reduced water usage, and reduced waste. The stadium is designed to be sustainable and reduces its carbon footprint.

Rangkuti set to take over at Man United, says his lawyer

Manchester United has appointed a new manager, Rangkuti, to take over from Jose Mourinho. The team has been without a permanent manager since Mourinho was fired last month.

Rangkuti, who is from Indonesia, has been the team's interim manager since Mourinho was fired last month.

"It's a good opportunity for Rangkuti, who has been with Manchester United since 2015, to take over from Jose Mourinho," said Rangkuti's lawyer, James Thompson.

"Rangkuti is a talented coach who has been working in the United States for the past two years. He has been working with some of the best players in the country and has been able to learn from them.

"He has a lot of experience in the United States and has worked with some of the best coaches there. He will bring a lot to the team and I'm sure he will do well.
