“Importantly, the GDC’s interventions are aimed to include a higher number of faith traditions in local communities, with the purpose of promoting trust, understanding and cooperation among different cultures and faiths in local contexts,” said David Eades, Chairman of the Sport for Humanity Foundation.

The launch took place through a virtual GDC: think tank meeting, bringing together experts from a range of institutions, including the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), Save the Dream, the European Commission, and the Pontifical Council for Culture, Peace and Sport, to leverage the power of faith and sport to support humans, diversity and inclusion. The event was streamed live to a select group of supporters and partners of the initiative.

The launch of the GDC took place with the official launch of the first ever football tournament in the world and its corresponding prize money. Each year, from June 2020 onwards, a special football tournament will be held in commemoration of the centenary of the World Cup. The tournament will be played by teams from countries participating in the World Cup, with the purpose of promoting trust, understanding and cooperation among different cultures and faiths in local contexts.
