Matthew Wade has been dumped from Australia’s Test squad for South Africa tour

Fawad hits ‘dream’ century to push Pakistan in charge

It was my dream to score a hundred at home

Wade has been dumped from the Australia Test side for the South African tour. He was dropped after scoring 27 in the first Test of the series. He had not scored a fifty in a Test for 15 innings since scoring 50 in the fourth Test of the series against India in December 2020. Wade had been retained in the squad for Pakistan with Dean Elgar scoring 21 runs in the first Test. However, with an invaluable 94-run stand for the third wicket, Fawad weighed in with half-centuries as Pakistan take a useful first innings lead over South Africa on the second day.

Fawad had a life on 35 when Dean Elgar shunted him to long-on which brought up his third Test century in as many Test innings. The 35-year-old left-hander, who recovered from a broken finger sustained in four Test matches against India, will instead head to Pakistan in charge of the team on the strength of his batting.

New sense of optimism at Williams, says Button

WILLIAM has taken a big step forward with the appointment of former Renault and Force India boss Bob Bell as consultant engineer for the British team.

It represents a new sense of optimism for the team, which has struggled in recent seasons and has been in a state of flux since the departure of ex-CEO Otmar Szafnauer in August.

“Bob was interested in working with us to help us improve the team’s performance,” said Williams sporting director James Vowles.

“Bob is well respected in the industry and he has a wealth of experience in F1 engineering, both from Renault and Force India. His role will be to work with our team to identify areas where we can improve our performance and make sure we are moving in the right direction.”

Bell joined Renault in 2005 and held a variety of roles at the team before being appointed chief technical officer in 2017.

He was later promoted to executive director of F1 technology and was instrumental in helping the team develop a new engine for 2023.

Bell left Renault in 2020 and has been working with a number of teams in the sport.

He will work closely with Williams engineers and will be responsible for overseeing the team’s technical development.

Golden opportunity

“The opportunity to work with a team that is committed to improving its performance is exciting,” said Bell.

“I am looking forward to meeting the team and getting to know their way of working. I am confident that together we can make significant progress.”

Williams, which is currently 14th in the F1 constructors’ championship, is looking to build on its recent success and is committed to improving its performance.

The team has made a number of technical changes this season, including the introduction of a new engine for the 2022 season, and is looking to build on this momentum in the coming years.

Bell’s appointment is seen as a positive step for Williams, which has struggled to compete at the front of the grid in recent years.

The team’s business model is undergoing a transition, with the team now focused on improving its performance and improving its financial situation.

Smith, who was appointed senior adviser to the team last month, said the appointment of Bell was a “significant step forward” for the team.

“This is a golden opportunity for us to build on the success we have had recently and to further improve our performance,” said Smith.

“I am confident that with Bob’s experience and knowledge, we will be able to make significant progress.”

Morikawa aiming for Dubai glory after overcoming ‘laziness’

PGA Tour star Collin Morikawa, who won back-to-back majors last year, is preparing for the World Cup of Golf in Dubai after recovering from ‘laziness’.

Morikawa, who was tied 10th in the Farmers Insurance Open, said his new multi-year sponsor Mercedes, the team of seven-time world champion Lewis Hamilton, had given him a platform to “dominate”.

“I’m coming out here to win this event. That was never even a question,” said Morikawa, currently 23rd in the world rankings.

“Their business model for so long and they’ve wanted to produce everything themselves but sometimes you just need a coach. You need someone who can look at certain things and tell you what you need to do.

“I’m very happy with the opportunity to work with them and I’m looking forward to what the future holds.”

Morikawa is the highest-ranked player in the field this week, having overcome a “laziness” period last year.

He is currently 25th in the world rankings, having missed the cut in three of his four starts since the PGA Championship.

Morikawa, who was tied 10th in the Farmers Insurance Open, said he was still working hard to overcome the “laziness” period last year.
