Athletics can play huge role in fixing global health crisis: Coe

Headline: Athletics can play huge role in fixing global health crisis: Coe

Subheadline: Australian Jones powers to Honda Classic victory

Main body:

The Australian Open's Matt Jones has crowned his impressive run with victory on the PGA Tour with a one-under-par 69 on Saturday after a closing four-under-par 30 to finish 12 under par with two to play.

Jones, who started the day in second place, overhauled Canada's Corey Conners with a 67, overnighting, and then bagged two confidence-boosting pars to finish with a 12-under-par 276.

The 22-year-old was part of a small group of athletes, who broke away from the rest of the field to play the final two holes to win the 2022 Honda Classic in Florida.

Jones' win maintained Australia's proud record of success on the PGA Tour. An Australian has won the Honda Classic four times, with the most recent being in 2008.

The governing body's survey was asking everyone connected to and interested in the sport to help shape its future from 2022-2035. Everything is up for discussion, from how elite athletics should be treated to how the sport and people in sport can learn from earlier developments.

Every opinion is welcome but Coe said he hoped the sport’s position in the wider world would emerge as steady.

“It’s pretty emotional, “ Jones said in a Rowing New Zealand statement.

“I am very proud of what I have achieved in sport, and I look forward to sharing that story with the next generation of athletes who get sport then they find a way or if they don’t it can become a letter. It’s better than if we but the net isn’t we’ve got to...”

Standalone women’s Six Nations litmus test, say England’s Scarlett Brown

The women’s Six Nations – which traditionally takes place during the men’s event last year – is set to start on February 6. It was postponed because of the Covid-19 pandemic.

It will now begin on the weekend of April 1 and end on April 24, employing a condensed format similar to last year’s men’s Autumn Nations Cup.

Six Nations president Alan Telfer said: “It’s exciting that you don’t have to be an expert to play a sport, not competing against the men, and they built-off times.” Scarlett, who has captained the Red Roses, told BT Sport: “It’s exciting that you don’t have to be an expert to play a sport, not competing against the men, and they built-off times.” Scarlett, who has captained the Red Roses, told BT Sport: “It’s exciting that you don’t have to be an expert to play a sport, not competing against the men, and they built-off times.” Scarlett, who has captained the Red Roses, told BT Sport: “It’s exciting that you don’t have to be an expert to play a sport, not competing against the men, and they built-off times.” Scarlett, who has captained the Red Roses, told BT Sport: “It’s exciting that you don’t have to be an expert to play a sport, not competing against the men, and they built-off times.”

The women’s World Cup in New Zealand has also been pushed back a year to 2022.

“Women’s rugby has become a priority and the key is in making sure all governing bodies are supporting their national teams and helping to invest in infrastructure and development.”
