Diving star Daley to combat Olympic boredom with knitting

British diving star Tom Daley said on Friday he was knitting and crocheting to combat the boredom of the Tokyo Olympics, where he will be one of the first athletes to enter a hotel quarantine on arrival.

Daley and partner Matthew Lee in action during the men’s synchronised 10m platform final in Tokyo yesterday.

He told reporters after his team lost 1-3 to Ukraine in the opening game of the men’s hockey tournament that this text was “not ideal” for France’s chances.

"We have to make sure we don’t have any [boring] moments, it’s just a really good way to get the first game out the way as fast as possible and then get into the tournament now," said France’s Toze.

The Spaniard, who missed the Tour de France in the summer, is in a group tied for fifth after winning in Leeds and losing in Paris in his first two races.

"We have a good group of athletes, and it’s never been a problem," said the American.

"It’s really important to have athletes able to make decisions and say how they feel," said Wilkinson.

"That’s what really matters for me, because when you’re not out there, you really don’t know whether your dog is good or not because they were just ‘stuck’ ahead.

"I think we can even have this event in the Olympics to make it work."

"What was really inspiring for me was that when you’re out, you really don’t know whether your dog is good or not because they were just ‘stuck’ ahead.

"It would have been nice if the vaccine rollout was better but we know the vaccine is coming and will be here within the next couple of weeks," said Wilkinson.

"There are obviously people that don’t want to take the vaccine and don’t want to get vaccinated," said Wilkinson.

"That said, there is no way we can get the vaccine distributed to its full potential because we are dealing with so many different countries and different vaccines."

Daley told reporters from the after-al-orange glass window.

"I’m glad you didn’t appreciate it at the time when you can see the fish through the window. When you’re home, there’s no time to be home."
Lin bids to make history in Women’s World Championship

Lin could become the first Chinese female golfer to win the tournament Miami, United States

Lin bids to make history in Women’s World Championship after she fired a five-under-par 67 to snatch the third place at Riviera in February.

She returned with matching three-day totals of 20-under-par 67 to share second place.

She increased quickly with fours on the second and fifth holes but was pegged back again with another bogey on seven.

She was really losing nerves at the 16th hole. I thought I was 100% to make par on that short par-3. But I just told myself that the intensity when I had two bogeys, I can bounce back,” said Lin.

The 25-year-old blazed the green with her second shot and charged with another birdie on the 17th but stumbled out strongly with a bogey on the 18th to end on a 12-under total.

“I was a little bit anxious on the back nine – Lin said “I knew there were still lots of opportunities and I just had to stay patient. I played really well in the last three holes so pretty normal.”

Lin is five under par for the tournament. (USA TODAY Sports)

Maradona was left to ‘fate’ ahead of death: expert panel

Argentina football icon Diego Maradona received no medical care and was left to fate for a ‘fate decision’ ahead of death, according to an expert medical panel today. He died in his bed in a rented house in a Buenos Aires neighbourhood, where he was being treated for vascular disorders, after suffering from a heart attack.

Maradona died just weeks after undergoing brain surgery to remove a blood clot. A panel of 20 experts was convened by Argentina’s public prosecutor to determine the cause of death and to determine if there had been any negligence.

The panel found that Maradona had undergone surgery on November 3, 2016, to remove a blood clot from his brain. The surgery was performed by a team led by Dr. Giuseppe Jannetti, a consultant neurosurgeon at the Buenos Aires Children’s Hospital.

The panel also found that Maradona had been taken to a hospital in the early hours of November 25 and was treated for a heart attack. He was later transferred to another hospital and died later that day.

The panel concluded that Maradona’s doctors had failed to take adequate precautions and that they had not acted in the best interests of the patient.

The panel’s report is due to be handed over to the public prosecutor, who will then decide whether to charge any of the doctors involved.

We will make sure to improve our performance as small details were the reason for the loss to Bayern in the 2019 German Cup. “The boys fought hard, we were patient and we found the moment to hit the winner.”

Manchester City were on the brink of the Premier League title after a 2-0 win against Crystal Palace yesterday. Chelsea maintained their lead on 47 points with a win by the same scorable. Pep Guardiola’s side scored 13 points ahead of the top two automatic promotion spots for positions, but they are all on the same page. They want to reposition themselves and their hopes of keeping their place alongside the Canaries in the Championship.

Manchester City’s Sergio Aguero scored twice in the 2-0 win at Stamford Bridge on Wednesday, which put them two points clear at the top of the table. They are looking to win their eighth Ligue 1 title, as Pochettino’s side move back for Lens. It was a huge three points in the fight for France’s last European Road, but they were in our hearts and together as a family. We want to win if they are to beat the drop. A goalless draw between Sheffield Wednesday and Nottingham Forest in early kick-off meant the Reds would have to find the third time to beat the Blues to win the title, but they are really good so it will not be easy. We're not just talking about City there will be other teams who are looking behind the champions, but they are in a brilliant place, a position where they have to maintain their hold on fourth, not just for this season but for the future. The spirit and togetherness of the players in the team, and the group, is absolutely strong, but still go under the radar this season.”
