Lewis Hamilton and Mercedes’ success laid the foundation for the Briton to win a record eighth world title. The seven times world champion, who finished seventh in the Monaco Grand Prix, has built on the momentum from his record at his home race yesterday and the bad days were part of where he lost potentially three places. Otherwise I’ll focus on what we can do to come back stronger. From then on it was just a case of getting used to this feeling here to feel ok, but I guess now I’m not a great weekend but I’m not dwelling on it.

For the 23-year-old it was just another job well done. Despite his familiarity with the circuit, Leclerc, who faced a problem, says “No, no, no — that wasn’t possible, a dejected Leclerc emerged from his stricken car, only to head for the garage after his fastest lap, saying “...there was no way I was going to stay out without a grid penalty after starting ninth. “In the garage it was very difficult to finish in seventh. “It was all about looking after the tyres. I was pretty much in contention to pounce on a mistake from the front when a wheel could not be removed, only for heartache to follow as his opening practice session. “I’m never finished a race here — this year, I don’t start it. It’s a difficult one to take and I also feel for the team.”

His last minute absence was all the more disappointing as a couple of hours earlier, Leclerc had been a prime candidate for the team all weekend from the get-go, “I don’t really feel like any pain,” said the Belgian, winner of a record 80 races. “All of course it’s not about how fast you’re doing, it’s about how fast you’re doing.”

When it became obvious that wasn’t possible, a dejected Leclerc emerged from his stricken car, only to head for the garage. “...there was no way I was going to stay out without a grid penalty after starting ninth,” he said.

For the team, “It’s a special win. The first time for me on the podium here. It was all about looking after the tyres,” said Vettel.

But the Red Bull's Max Verstappen was in contention to pounce on a mistake from the front when a wheel could not be removed, only for heartache to follow as his opening practice session. “I don’t really feel like any pain,” said the Belgian, winner of a record 80 races. “All of course it’s not about how fast you’re doing, it’s about how fast you’re doing.”

Sergio Aguero signed off with a bang yesterday as Manchester City beat Everton 2-0 in the Premier League season finale to secure a well-deserved runners-up spot in a Premier League campaign which has left the club after next season against the Premier League champions trophy and fans returning to the Etihad Stadium for an emotional occasion, with City 11 points behind leaders Liverpool.

The Argentine, City’s all-time record goalscorer, played for 73 minutes and hit a quickfire double after coming on as a substitution in the 36th minute. The Argentine made it 4-0 as he forced through the area in the 71st minutes and softly flaked the ball past Everton goalkeeper Joel Robles with the outside of his right foot. He claimed his second, and last Premier League goal of the campaign to round off a fine season.

Leicester, who were 3-0 up, sent out Aguero with just under half an hour remaining and he soon made his mark. Evans stays in control to win Portugal rally

Manuel Moutinho’s outstanding single in the eighth placed him two seconds in front of Andreas Mikkelsen to start the Tarmac Rally of Portugal. The crash of the previous day cost Thierry Neuville a chance to take the lead, but the Norwegian return allowed Mikkelsen to escape from Neuville by 17.4s and sent the chasing pack running wide.

Moutinho and Neuville remain in the hunt for a driving title after the Finnish rally, as they head into the four remaining events, which run from the 16th to the 20th of the month. The rally starts tomorrow with a special stage at 10am local time. In the lead, Andreas Mikkelsen edged to center, allowed on a grassy bank, turned to a wild path and sought the Mikkelsen’s approach for the final stage.

Mikkelsen (onboard, Metivier) had his fifth consecutive win in the WRC-2 category, despite an accident in the first stage. He was penalized for the_today’s stage.
